Township tax collectors of 30 years ago really earned their commissions. We came across a tax bill this week issued in 1925, on which the collector was required to insert the proportion of the total tax that each taxing body received. There were nine bodies that participated. The personal property tax was included at the bottom of the bill and the $3.70 due was likewise divided between the several taxing bodies.

We discovered in our office files this week a "first cover" bearing the date of October 1, 1946, heralding the initiation of the First Air Mail Helicopter flight from Arlington Heights—16 years ago. Arlington Historical Society is bulging at the seams with historical data but we will offer this "cover" to their filing cabinets.

We have attended many prevues in theaters and other places of entertainment, but we enjoyed greater than all of those a personally conducted tour Thursday by Village Manager Hanson of the Arlington Heights new municipal building.

It is a great building with many features that will probably be the envy of many larger cities. Business at the new quarters started Monday, but we suggest that the public await the official opening in January, which will celebrate the 75th birth of the Village of Dunton (Arlington Heights).

Next week's column will be the start of a travelogue into Mexico. Our winter destination is San Miguel. We hope to find some interesting places to write home about. We know nothing about the Spanish language and are trusting the residents will be patient with us. We will have three months at San Miguel, where we hope to become sufficiently Mexicanized to understand the language.

Last week's edition revealed that Rolling Meadows has ambitious annexation plans, which include the Pure Oil building. We wonder if Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg Village and Palatine will have similar thoughts in that direction. "Jumping the toll road" is not easy, as Wheeling found out, but it is still worth trying, thinks Rolling Meadows.

If persons who send us anonymous letters, concerning our omissions and commissions, would include their names, the letters would provide some good copy for the Fence Post.

Arlington Heights' businessmen are imbued with the Christmas season as is evidenced by the number of Christmas trees that have been sprinkled about the business district, the fine creche of the nativity scene and the increase in the number of evergreens designed as a permanent feature of the shopping area.

There are other big plans afoot that include a mall and additional parking area south of the railroad. The Chamber of Commerce is formulating plans for year-round activity.

A comparison of the personal property assessments of the four townships published two weeks ago with that of a year ago, reveals that in two townships a lot of people "were not home" when the assessor made his rounds.

At a plaza stop along the toll way, we picked up a book designed to introduce mathematics to young school children. We warrant that a large part of the information given could not be understood by many college graduates.

We tried one of the problems on a gas station attendant, expecting him to be as confused as we, but we received a direct and correct answer. We asked him what kind of school background he had and he nonchalantly told us that he is a college student studying calculus.

We note in a national magazine that grade school pupils of today are expected to master mathematical problems that we never knew existed.

Village Halls Have Come A Long Way

MOVING DAYS came at the end of last week for village employes, who have been working in the old St. Peter Lutheran School pending completion of the new municipal building at 33 S. State Rd. Here a filing case is being loaded on the van.

$75 Rent Charged In 1887

by BOB CUMMINS

The new municipal building now open at 33 S. State Rd. is the seventh in line of Arlington Heights village halls, according to Daisy P. Daniels, curator of the Arlington Heights Historical Society.

And the information supplied by Mrs. Daniels suggests that the halls have been getting better all the time!

THE FIRST meeting place was above a tavern at 2 N. Dunton St. It was used from 1887 to 1891. The rental was $75 a year, including heat and light.

Then the village fathers met for two years on the upper floor of Meyer Hall, above 14 E. Campbell, before they moved to the first real village hall near the junction of Davis, Wing and Vail.

This village hall was once the Henry Luettge residence. It was purchased for $1,275 in October, 1892, and remodeled for village hall use. It did the job faithfully until 1913.

THEN A NEW combination village hall and fire department headquarters was opened at 107 W. Davis, and was the hub of municipal government until 1930, when the building at the point of the intersection of Wing and Davis became the village hall.

For 32 years this odd-shaped building housed village government until it was sold to Jewel Tea Co. last winter, and the municipal departments sought temporary sanctuary in the old St. Peter Lutheran School at 315 N. Highland Ave.

Now the moving vans have left the school, the old building seems as if it has performed its last useful service, and the pigeons have settled down in peace in the silent belfry.

THE BUSY affairs of a growing municipality are being conducted in a gleaming, spacious building, designed only for the needs of village employes.

It will be a long time before this building's day is done!

SEEKING AGREEMENT ON STREET WIDTHS

Herald Editorial

One Village Board Best

Once again the Arlington Heights Village Board and Board of Local Improvements will get together to try to agree on street widths in the Arlington Heights Park Manor section, so that a special assessment can be carried through for the upgrading of this area.

Action on the improvements has been stalled because the board of local improvements has insisted on its formula for 28-foot wide streets. Last September it rejected the village board recommendation for some narrower streets so the improvements would be within the means of property owners, and therefore become a reality.

At the time it rejected the village board's request, the board of local improvements produced a legal opinion that it was the ruling body in the village on street widths.

However, it seems clear that the law intends that the board of local improvements should be responsive to village board policies.

In some villages, trustees themselves act as the board of local improvements, simply switching hats according to the business before them. In other villages, some of the trustees serve on the board of local improvements.

There is no overlapping of membership on the two boards in Arlington Heights. All members of the board of local improvements are appointed by the village manager. However, the manager serves solely at the pleasure of the village board, so again the implication is plain that the law intends the village board to call the shots.

As an appointed body, the board of local improvements should not attempt to legislate, either directly or indirectly, or with or without benefit of legalisms.

Municipal affairs are conducted best with only one village board. The board of local improvements would be wise to yield gracefully in this case, both to get the project moving before it is too late, and to remove any doubts as to which board sets village policy.

Worst Air Loss

Canadian airlines suffered their worst financial loss in 1961—$14.5 million, despite a traffic increase.

A LONG AND PLEASANT autumn gave everyone cause for celebration this year. Two Arlington Heights girls celebrated by creating a harvest scene, not the least attractive part of which was the girls themselves, dressed as Indian maids. At the left is Dolores Thon, 25 W. Golf Rd., with Kathy Clark, 129 S. Vail Ave.

Trustees And BOLI Huddling

Agreement on street widths in Arlington Heights Park Manor will be sought Saturday morning at another joint meeting of the village board and the board of local improvements.

The meeting was arranged after discussion by village trustees Monday of the board of local improvement's request that the village guarantee 25 per cent of the engineer and attorney fees for the Park Manor special assessment.

THE PROPOSED special assessment would provide streets, sewers and other improvements for the area bounded by Central, Dryden, Davis and Arthur, which was subdivided in the 1920s, but which has not kept pace in development with the rest of the village.

The upgrading of the area has been a prime objective of the incumbent administration.

The differences between the boards may be summarized as follows: the village board believes that somewhat narrower streets are desirable to lower the cost so that the assessment will be approved, while the board of local improvements believes in sticking to its standards of street width.

A MEETING of the two boards on the matter was held Sept. 24, at which the board of local improvements, in brusque fashion, confronted the village board with a legal opinion that it alone had the power to determine street widths.

Last Monday, Trustee Eugene Schlickman made a motion to approve the guarantee of 25 per cent of the professional fees.

During discussion, Trustee William E. Sauer accused the board of local improvements of "running the project into the ground" and said it would not help for the village board to "go along with them."

TRUSTEE William J. Moore declared, "I think we are spinning our wheels if we horse around with them any longer. We have been confronted with a legal opinion on why we can't do anything."

Trustees Samuel Wit and Norval Stephens were more optimistic. Wit, who was out of town when the September meeting was

Fee Waived

Arlington Heights trustees Monday voted to waive the fee for a hearing before the zoning board of appeals on a variation required by Southminster Presbyterian Church, whose church building is under construction at Central Road and Dryden Avenue.

Park Building Will Have 4 Brick Walls

A decision to put brick walls all the way to the roof of the Arlington Heights Park District maintenance building to be erected in Pioneer Park has mollified some of the nearby residents - but not all.

The maintenance building was discussed at length Monday at the village board meeting - although some village officials noted that the debate really belonged before the park board.

The planned building had been called a "monstrous eyesore" in a leaflet issued last week calling home owners near Pioneer Park to protest meeting.

THE ORIGINAL plans called for an all-metal exterior, which was disapproved by the village architectural committee.

These plans were modified to include partial brick on three sides.

After the protest meeting, Francois Palmatier, 408 S. Patton Ave., one of the home owner leaders (and also chairman of appeals) arranged a meeting with park officials.

HE REPORTED Monday that he got a verbal assurance that the building would be brick to the roof on all four sides.

"I feel satisfied with the compromise," Palmatier said.

However, DeNux L. LeBlanc, 437 S. Fernandez Ave., said, "Many of us are unhappy with the use of park land for storage." He urged that all of Pioneer Park be used for recreation, declaring, "Save what you have! You will never get it back!" He was applauded when he finished.

MRS. LEBLANC suggested park district maintenance headquarters be located in a commercial or industrial area, as did Benjamin Mack, 427 S. Fernandez, who added, "The idea of having a garage in the area upsets everyone."

Charles Cronin, park board president, in reply stated that the maintenance building is being built to house the equipment that is now being stored outside in the park, and that it would not mean more equipment and more traffic. He said the enlarged building would look like the present structure.

"It would be inefficient to have our equipment elsewhere,"

Hold First Meeting in Building

After rapping his gavel Monday to call to order the first village board meeting in the new Arlington Heights municipal building, Village President John G. Woods paid tribute to the progressive thinking of village residents which made the new building possible.

Woods also singled out the late Ed Carlisle, former village president, among the men of vision responsible for the structure.

Woods told the citizenry the new building would make possible more efficient service to the public.

'Harvest's End'

Living in our midst — for the most part unknown and ignored but also exploited and discriminated against — are Mexican-American migrants and ex-migrants.

Restricted to rural and suburban slums, handicapped by lack of job skills and education, they are nevertheless a proud people, uncomplaining of their lot. You cannot help but believe — after visiting some of their homes — that justice has been flouted and compassion has a hollow ring.

The story of these people was first told by Paddock Publications in 1957 with the award-winning expose, "Shame of the Suburbs." Now writer Dick Hoffman and photographer Don Vickery have teamed up to report-in-depth the five-year aftermath to that original expose. Their four-part series, "Harvest's End," begins this week.

Trustees Act Upon Two CD Proposals

Several civil defense recommendations were made to the Arlington Heights Village Board Monday night by Wallace B. Daughtry, civil defense director, and the board took action on two of them.

It directed Village Manager L. A. Hanson to prepare recommendations on preserving vital public records in case of a disaster, and voted to put the question of creating a civil defense advisory board on its next agenda for Dec. 17.

Daughtry suggested an advisory board of eight to 12 leading citizens from business, the professions and education. He said he would prefer not to help choose the members.

Other recommendations by Daughtry were:

—ADOPTION OF a line of succession to authority both in the legislative and administrative departments of village government.

—Providing funds for (a) installation of an adequate outdoor warning system, (b) an emergency source of water, (c) an adequate communications system, (d) radiological monitoring system, (e) marking and stockpiling of public shelters, and (f) adult education.

Daughtry said classes will begin in February at Arlington High School, including courses in basic civil defense and first aid.

"Our objective here," he said, "is to get at least one adult member of every family in Arlington Heights trained in basic civil defense procedures and first aid."

held, said, "It is difficult to understand why we cannot reach a meeting of minds on this, instead of sniping at each other."

Stephens stated, "I don't agree that the board of local improvements is completely intransigent. I think our objectives are substantially the same. They are five men who are working hard."

Then the joint meeting was approved.

DURING DISCUSSION, reports were also heard on the discussions with the North Western Railroad on relocating the Arlington Heights railroad station to the east in the Park Manor area, which would affect Park Manor development.

The railroad is cold to the idea, it was reported, for the following reasons:

—Most commuters come to the station from other areas of town, and village growth is also in these other areas.

—Relocation to the east would make the distance between the Palatine and Arlington Heights stations too great.

—ALL NORTH Western commuter stations on this line are on the north side of the tracks, because commuters do business on their way to the city, and a station in the Park Manor area would have to be on the south side of the tracks.

Harold Klinger, of the board of local improvements, who has been active in discussions with the railroad, wrote in a letter that Palatine might relocate its commuter station to the east, thus eliminating the distance between the two stations as a reason why the Arlington Heights station could not be moved.

However, other difficulties were mentioned during Monday's discussion, including: the cost of a new station, the cost of land on which to build it, the future of the existing commuter parking lots, and the detrimental effect on downtown businesses if the station were moved.

he added.

SUPPORT FOR the earlier park board plans came from K. T. Brusa, 417 S. Evergreen Ave., who said, "I object to this all-brick building. There is not a house in the neighborhood without wood or metal as part of its exterior.

"The maintenance building would look better with a colored panel than with solid brick. The new plans make it look like a factory building."

Cronin said, in response to a question from Trustee Norval Stephens near the end of the discussion, that neighborhood residents would be invited to a meeting soon to inspect final plans and to ask any questions they wished of park officials.

Investigate Three Fires At 1 House

Arlington Heights firemen were called three times within a 24-hour period last weekend to fight fires at the house at 1431 N. State Rd.

Arson is suspected.

The first alarm came just before noon Saturday, the second at 7 p. m. Saturday, and the third at 2:45 a. m. Sunday.

The house was heavily damaged by the fires. It belongs to the public school system, and is on the site of the future Thomas Junior High School.

For School Board

To Begin Search for Nominating Delegates

Plans are being made for the selection of delegates to make up the Nominating Committee for the selection of its candidates for membership on the school board of Arlington Heights. District 25.

"This Nominating Committee is a non-partisan group organized for the purpose of making intelligent nominations of candidates to be submitted to the voters to fill two vacancies on the school board at the April, 1963, election," declared Phillip Gorman, 1821 N. Patton Ave., chairman.

THE ORGANIZATIONS which were represented on this Nominating Committee last year were the school units of the Arlington Heights Parent-Teacher Association, American Association of University Women, American Legion, Arlington Heights Nurses Club, Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club, Arlington Heights Woman's Club, Campfire Girls Association, Chamber of Commerce, Community Concerts, Garden Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Newcomers Club, Village Theater, D.A.R., Rotary Club, Toastmistress Club, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the property owners associations of the various sections of Arlington Heights

Any organization may be represented if it is non-political, non-religious, civic and/or educational in interest, has officers duly elected, and has been in operation for two years.

All organizations not previously represented, and which satisfy the qualifications, may select two delegates who are residents of District 25.

Gorman should be informed of the selection so that the delegates may be notified of the first meeting, and the organization admitted to membership at the first meeting, which has been set for Jan. 14.

Any question about whether any organization qualifies or not will be answered by Gorman.

Free Yule Movies For Kids Saturday

The free Yuletide movie for children sponsored by Arlington Heights merchants this Saturday will be "Toy Tiger," starring Tim Hovey, Jeff Chandler and Larraine Day.

The film will be shown at Arlington Theatre at 9 and 11 a.m.

An alert Don Hess, Chamber of Commerce manager, switched to "Toy Tiger" from another feature when he noticed last week that the scheduled feature was being shown on television.

TICKETS FOR the movie may be obtained from any of 24 local merchants, all of whom have posters announcing the movies in their windows. The merchants are also listed in an advertisement in this issue of the Herald.

Other free movies will be shown Dec. 15 and Dec. 22.

Meanwhile, many Arlington Heights merchants are open every evening until Christmas, and preparations are being made for the arrival of Santa Claus next Thursday in downtown Arlington Heights.

SANTA CLAUS headquarters will be at 9 S. Dunton Ave., from 4 to 8 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, Dec. 14 and 15, and the same hours Monday through Friday of the following week.

Santa's hours on Saturday, Dec. 22, will be from 1 to 5 p.m., and on Dec. 24 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Plan Yule Festivity

The St. Thomas of Villanova Catholic Women's Club will hold its first annual Christmas party on Thursday, Dec. 13, at St. Viator High School, 1213 E. Oakton St., Arlington Heights, at 8:30 p.m.

The feature of the evening will be a "Home Talent Show" presented by the ladies of the parish under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. John Scanlan. Santa Claus will be on hand to distribute the Christmas grab bag gifts to all present and refreshments will be served by Mrs. Allan Grady, hospitality chairman, and her committee.

A personal invitation to the party is extended to all the women of the parish by the club officers: Mrs. J. M. Clery, president; Mrs. Richard Kunzweiler, vice president; Mrs. Joseph O'Neil, secretary; Mrs. James Gordon, treasurer. Rev. Francis Waldron is the moderator of the Women's Club and pastor of the parish of St. Thomas of Villanova.

Trustees to Hold Special Meeting

Arlington Heights Village Board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 10, in the new municipal building to consider several items of unfinished business.

After the special meeting, trustees will meet as a committee of the whole to consider the situation regarding hiring of a finance director. Thomas DeRiemer resigned as village finance director last January.

TRUSTEE WILLAIM E. Sauer said last month that Arlington Heights is too large a village to be without a finance director.

Salary differences have been a factor in the delay in replacing DeRiemer, Village Manager L. A. Hanson said. He has been gathering data on what other municipalities pay their finance directors, which will be presented to the committee of the whole.

How to ask your bank for a Nice Big Loan

(AND BE REASONABLY SURE OF GETTING IT)

If you ever hope to be wealthy or even comfortably fixed, the logical thing to do is to learn how to borrow money. And where. Like many other important things, learning about money takes some practice, some skill—and, often, some help.

Here are five easy rules that will help you borrow wisely.

First, pick a Full Service commercial bank (like us) that's handy to your home or work. (A Full Service commercial bank is really a financial department store which makes all kinds of loans at rates generally lower than you'd get anywhere else.)

Second, do all your major banking business with that Full Service Bank. (This includes both your checking account and your savings account. The more business the better.)

Third, get personally acquainted with a bank officer and fill out a Personal Financial Statement. One of ours will be glad to help you do this.

Fourth, keep your savings account active and growing with regular deposits and try to maintain a reasonable balance in your checking account.

Last, make a few worthwhile small loans and pay them back on schedule. (This does wonders for your credit reputation.)

Get to know your banker before you need him

Almost before you realize it, you'll have earned yourself a financial partner. Now, when you're ready to go into business for yourself, send the kids to college, or whatever, we'll be able to help you, both with sound financial advice and low cost loans.

Sound logical? Why not get started with our Full Service commerical bank now?

Arlington Holiday Concert Is Sunday

Arlington High School's music department will say "Merry Christmas" Sunday afternoon with the annual holiday concert at 3 p.m. in the boys' gymnasium.

The concert band and choral groups will participate in the program, which is free to the public.

Feature of the concert will be the "Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah.

The Senior Choir will sing Roy Ringwald's arrangement of Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker Suite," and the audience will be invited to sing popular carols.

OTHER NUMBERS in the concert include "Christmas Carol" and "Sing, O. Heavens" by the freshmen choruses; "As Dew in Aprille," "Winter Wonderland," and "Fum, Fum, Fum," by the Girls' Glee Club; "Today There Is Ringing," "Come to the Manger," and "Carol of the Drum," by the Treble Clef and mixed chorus.

"Alleluia Glorious Is Thy Name," and "Hasten Swiftly," by the Senior Choir.

The band's repetoire includes "Now Let Every Tongue Adore Thee," "Break Forth, O Beauteous Heavenly Light," "The Christmas Party," "White Christmas," and "The Christmas Song."

Latin Program to Be Cover Feature

The Arlington Heights Inter-American Friendship Program will be featured on the cover of the next telephone directory for this area.

The book will be distributed next spring.

The friendship program led to a pact between Arlington Heights and Comas, Peru, to become "sister" municipalities.

The friendship program is sponsoring a basketball game Saturday, Dec. 15, at Arlington High School, which will match "Goose" Tatum's Harlem Stars against the New York Rens, managed by LeRoy "Satchel" Paige.

THE GAME will raise funds to help provide a well for the people of Comas, which is a suburb of Lima, the Peruvian capital. Because of lack of water, Comas residents have severe health problems.

The famous singing group, the Ink Spots, will perform at halftime at the basketball game.

Tickets are selling briskly, according to Wayne Brennan, chairman of the Inter-American Friendship Program. They may be obtained by calling CL 3-1703.

Mr. Burglar: Do You Have The Time?

Three burglaries were reported to Arlington Heights police last weekend and in all of them one or two watches were reported taken.

The largest sum of money reported missing was $180, taken from the Arlington Car Wash, 900 W. Euclid St. Saturday night.

Entry apparently was gained by breaking a door window and unlatching the door. The watch that was taken was not in working order.

THE PREVIOUS night, two north side homes were entered.

At the residence of Edward B. Burling, 920 N. Walnut, a bedroom window was opened and a watch, plus $2.62 in cash, was taken.

At the home of Clarence Schuette, 1019 N. Fernandez Ave., a bedroom window was opened, and two watches taken. Other valuable items were left undisturbed; apparently the intruder had a yen for watches only.

100 Singers To Present 'Messiah'

Excerpts from "Messiah" will be performed by area singers and the Arlington Heights Symphony Orchestra at 4:15 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 15, in Miner Junior High School, Miner Street at Dryden Avenue, Arlington Heights.

Admission will be free, and three rehearsals are scheduled before the concert.

ONE WILL be at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 9; the second at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 10, and the final one at 2:30 p.m. Sunday Dec. 16, immediately preceding the public performance.

About 100 singers are taking part, according to Mel Kasen, director of Arlington Heights Symphony. He said that singers can still join in the performance if they attend the Dec. 9 rehearsal.

Chamber Is Preparing Brochure

A brochure on Arlington Heights is being prepared by the Chamber of Commerce. The document is expected to have 30 pages of information on village life, plus a two-page foldout map.

Jospeh Koenen is chairman of the committee in charge of preparation of the pruchure.

IT IS expected to be ready for distribution next month, according to Don Hess, chamber manager.

The brochure will be sold at cost. Those interested in obtaining copies should write to the Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 6, Arlington Heights.

Annexation Maps Go to Commission

Maps have been completed showing areas which Arlington Heights considers desirable for future annexation, and also showing their suggested future zoning.

The maps were referred by the village board Monday to the plan commission, which is to schedule a public hearing. The maps will be on public display in advance of the hearing.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack Siegel explained Monday that the adoption of the maps as part of the village master plan would not commit the village to annex any of the areas, nor would it fix the zoning.

It would simply indicate what present village thinking is, he explained, and strengthen the master plan.

Jaycees to Open Tree Sale Friday

Arlington Heights Jaycees will begin their Christmas tree sale Dec. 7.

The Jaycees will operate two lots — one opposite the Arlington Heights National Bank parking lot, and the other on Foundry Road south of Arlington Market.

JAYCEE members spent last week putting the lots in condition and in various efforts to publicize the sale.

Several organizations will benefit from the Jaycee sale. Two which have already been designated are the Clearbrook School for Retarded Children and the Sea Scouts. Others will be named later.

Aiuppa Goes To Trial on Dove Charge

WICHITA, KAN., (UPI) — Joey Aiuppa, reputed Chicago mobster, his wife, Angela, and two of his friends will stand trial on charges of bagging 452 doves over the legal limit of 24 during a Kansas hunting trip.

All four entered pleas of innocent in an appearance before U. S. District Judge George Templar.

Templar, acting on a defense motion, transferred the case to Federal Court in Kansas City, Kan., where the dove hunters were ordered to appear Feb. 4 for setting of a trial date. Because the crime is a misdemeanor, they were released without bond. (B8

'Wanton Feast'

Christmas Observance Once Illegal in U.S.

Celebration of Christmas — the most widely observed religious holiday of the modern world — was at one time illegal in early American history.

Colonial New England did not celebrate Christmas, according to researchers at Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia, because the stern Puritan colonists believed that such activivities were wholly pagan and forbade them by law.

Christmas came to the American colonies while it was the subject of strenuous controversy in England. English Puritans condemned it as "popish" and the secular celebration as a "wanton Bacchanalian feast."

Opposition of the English Puritans to festivals culminated in an act of Parliament in 1647 which abolished the observance of Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide.

This was echoed in the American colonies in 1659 when Puritans enacted a law in the general court of Massachusetts to punish those who "kept Christmas."

THE LAW read "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forebearing of labor, feasting, or in any other way . . .shall be subject to afine of five shillings."

The law was relealed in 1681 but many of the Puritans were not reconciled to this action. Secular reveling at Christmas had often interfered with religious devotions and offended the Puritans' moral sense.

This intensified their sectarian hostility to the religious observance of Christmas — an attitude they maintained for the better part of two centuries in parts of New England.

THE FUN-loving Dutch colonists of New Amsterdam, howver, celebrated Christmas as their chief holiday. 'they brought the old customs from their homeland, especially the Christmas stocking and observance of the feast day of St. Nicholas.

In the Southern colonies, the planters celebrated the yuletide with feasting, singing, and dancing. On many plantations slaves were given a holiday as long as the great yule log burned.

The latter half of the eighteenth century saw a swing of attention to the realm of economics and politics and religious controversies became of less importance. The fact that English and Hessian troops celebrated Christmas during the Revolutionary War may have added a patriotic note to the denominational controversy.

GENERAL Washington crossed the Delaware River on the night of December 25, 1776, to surprise and defeat the Hessian troops stationed at Trenton, N.J. In the opinion of one writer, Washington's bold venture succeeded because the Hessians were enjoying their customary Christmas revels and failed to maintain the usual watch and patrols.

However, denominational opposition to the ecclesiastic observance of Christmas continued into the second half of the nineteenth century. An account in the New York Daily Times for December 26, 1855 read:

"The churches of the Presbyterians, Baptists, and Methodists were not open on Dec. 25 except where some Mission Schools had a celebration. They do not accept the day as a Holy One, but the Episcopalian, Catholic and German Churches were all open. Inside they wer dckd with evergreens."

IN THE 20th century, all denominations have embraced Christmas widely both as a religious and as a social celebration. Today, men, women and children in every Christian land crowd into churches to give their thanks. More than one fourth of the world's population —about 800 million people profess some form of Christian faith.

The splendor and beauty of Christmas observances is very different from the humble stable in Bethlehem were Christ was born; but the message He brought to the world is the same — "Glory be to God in the highest; and on earth peace, good will toward men." (B8

Famed Satire Packs Wallop

by BRUCE LADD

"Tristram Shandy," by Laurence Sterne, Signet Classics, The New American Library of World Literature, Inc., 1962, 525 pages. 75 cents.

Laurence Sterne's "Tristram Shandy" is acclaimed as an epic of 18th Century English life.

Written in nine volumes from 1760 to 1767, the frivolously-styled novel concerns Mr. Shandy, retired merchant and student of philosophy, and Uncle Toby, veteran of King William's War and a simple-minded sentimentalist, two of the most memorable and clearly defined characters in literature.

The book is without plan or order. It is Sterne's comic view of the world and his own place in it. He lampoons the social, intellectual, artistic, personal—in fact, all human activity.

Supposedly the novel was to describe the life and opinions of a country gentleman whose character had been formed by a number of accidents that befell him before, at, or shortly after his birth.

STERNE satirizes everything. A single sentence becomes a complete chapter. Asterisks are used to replace coarse language. Blank space is provided for the reader to swear in. Sterne leaves out a chapter in the fourth volume because, he says, its description is so beautifully done that it will make the rest of the book weak by comparison.

Sterne, the literary world's unchallenged champion of sentimentality, exhibits in "Tristram Shandy" sensibilities too delicate to be described. For example, one day Uncle Toby catches a big buzzing fly which has been tormenting him throughout dinner. He goes to a window, opens it, and cries: "Go, poor devil, get thee gone; why should I hurt thee? This world surely is wide enough to hold both thee and me."

STERNE'S humor is brilliant and eccentric. He wrote with his tongue in his cheek, and "Tristram Shandy" is probably the craziest masterpiece in the world, as well as one of the most delightful.

It is a shame that Sterne has no modern-day counterpart.

Party is Tuesday

St. Peter Lutheran Dorcas Aid Society will hold its Christmas Party Tuesday evening, Dec. 11, at 7:30 in the school dining room at 111 W. Olive St. Arlington Heights. Refreshments will be served by the December group with Mrs. H. Boi serving as chairman, and Mrs. R. Meyer as co-chairman. A special program of Christmas music will follow.

Secret Pals for 1962 will be revealed during the gift exchange.

The Society marked the 41st anniversary of its founding Dec. 4 and plans are underway for January dinner to celebrate the occasion.

Preliminary Steps

DAMP Negotiates for Chicago Water Supply

by MELDA LYNN

Preliminary steps were taken Friday night to attempt to purchase an auxiliary supply of water from Chicago for the City of Des Plaines and the Villages of Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine. Chicago obtains its water from Lake Michigan.

The Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine Water Commission, better known as DAMP, met with representatives of the constituent municipalities to discuss the present tentative plan. Officials from Rolling Meadows also attended, although that village is not a constituent.

Chairman of the commission, William T. Mott of Mount Prospect, reported the commissioners had met with Chicago Water Commissioner James W. Jardine and learned Chicago could supply water to the suburban towns if a request is made. Mott explained Chicago definitely was not seeking customers, but if requested would have to furnish the water at the same rate as Chicago residents pay, a base cost of 22 cents per 1,000 gallons.

BEFORE a contract could be entered into however, Mott told the various village representatives, it would be necessary for each constituent municipality to give the Chicago Water Commission a guarantee of the amount of water to be purchased.

Each community will be asked to give an estimate of expected water usage, including average day and maximum day usages, population information and other data necessary to draw up a working contract whereby DAMP can purchase the water from Chicago and sell to the constituents.

Mott reported DAMP members had consulted Jardine who had asked that his commission be provided with an up-to-date engineering and economic study needed to evaluate the possibility of providing potential DAMP customers with a supply of Lake Michigan water from the Chicago water facilities.

Mott presented an outline from the engineering firm of Consoer, Townsend & Associates for such a study at a cost not to exceed $3,500. CT&A will prepare an up-to-date analysis of the population and give a projection for future years for all four communities in DAMP.

OTHER DATA CT&A will provide includes an analysis of recent years and expected water usage for future years, including the average day and maximum day usages; a study of the present supply, treatment, storage and distribution facilities in each municipality together with improvements under way or contemplated in near future years; and preparation of preliminary design and location maps showing new facilities which would be required of DAMP to permit supplying of constituents from the Chicago Water Department.

Other items to be covered in the eight-point proposed survey includes:

Data for needed supply facilities for each constituent municipality on an individual or combination of municipalities other than the total four constituents;

The preparation of project cost estimates, annual cost estimates and necessary unit charges for water for the installations studies, either individual or combination communities plans;

Cost estimates would include projections based on DAMP constructing all new supply and storage facilities and alternately, if facilities were to be constructed by the Chicago Water Department;

PREPARATION of the report to DAMP covering the items requested to be used as a supplement to the report CT&A made under date of May 25, 1959.

CT&A would supply 10 copies of the report.

Each community represented was to take the proposal to its governing board and discuss the plan and decide if it wanted to participate and purchase water from Chicago.

Mott suggested representatives decide how they would share the cost of the survey and other funds necessary to continue the work of DAMP. He said of the original $500 received from each of the four communities when the commission was formed in 1959, there was a balance of $600. He requested an additional $4,000; $3,500 to be used for the survey.

Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect officials expressed a willingness to pay $1,000 each. Palatine objected to the flat fee of $1,000 saying it should be on a pro rated basis. This would place the fee at $500 for Palatine; $1,150 for Arlington Heights; $850 for Mount Prospect and $1,500 for Des Plaines. Mount Prospect Village Trustee Parker Ekren chastised Palatine's attitude by saying Des Plaines stood to gain the least benefit from a combined effort to get water from Chicago and Palatine the most.

"I THINK the attitude here is all wrong. I believe Palatine should be willing to go along with the $1,000 charge or just not go along with the whole idea," he said.

The four communities decided to ask their individual boards to make a $1,000 contribution each.

Ekren said Des Plaines and Mount Prospect were ready and able to enter into a contract with Chicago for purchase of water "next week if we want to."

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel on Sept. 24 told the Herald his city and Mount Prospect were making plans for a joint engineering study for the purpose of getting a direct connection from Chicago.

When DAMP commissioners learned of their plans they requested the two municipalities to hold off until a plan could be worked out so all four communities could benefit if they so desired.

DAMP was originally formed in 1959 to try to find a primary source of water for the four constituent communities. The commission got the name DAMP from the original placing of the names in its title, Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine Water Commission.

COMMISSIONERS objected to being labeled DAMP and changed the arrangement of the villages to its present form which makes it DMAP, but the commission continues to be known as DAMP because of the easier way of referring to the body.

The original plan was for DAMP to get water from Lake Michigan. Other Illinois villages which also planned to do the same were enjoined by states bordering the lake. The Tree Towns Water Commission, made up of Glen Ellyn, Lombard and Villa Park, took the case to the Supreme Court where a decision is being awaited as to whether or not municipalities can take the water from the lake.

Mott said DAMP had been accused of "sitting on its hands" by not entering into the court fight with Tree Towns. Mott said the other communities had asked DAMP repeatedly not to take any action.

UNDER THE present tentative plan, DAMP would enter into a contract with Chicago, construct its own lines and issue the water revenue bonds to build the facilities.

Compact Volumes Are Real Bargain for Art Enthusiasts

by BOB SETLIK

"Egyptian Wall Paintings," from Tombs and Temples. Christiane Desroches-Noblecourt, introduction.

"Russian Icons," from the 12th to the 15th century. Victor Lasareff, introduction.

"Spanish Frescoes," of the Romanesque Period. Juan Ainaud, introduction.

"Persian Miniatures," from Ancient Manuscripts. Basil Gray, introduction. Mentor-Unesco Art Books, The New American Library of World Literature, New York, Sept., 1962, 95 cents each.

These attractively packaged volumes may be the best bargains for art enthusiasts since the Chicago Art Institute eliminated its entrance fee.

Each book includes works of art that are not within easy access of the public and that have been seldom reproduced elsewhere.

The Russian Icons, for example, are all from Leningrad and Moscow museums. The Spanish Frescoes reproduced here have never left Spain.

EACH BOOK includes about 30 reproductions, all color, most double paged. The quality of the reproductions is excellent.

The introductions stick to the works reproduced for the most part instead of trying to provide a general commentary.

In fact, the reproductions are of such excellent quality and range that they tell enough about themselves to give the introductions footnote status.

The reader is immediately struck by the often harsh expressiveness of the Spanish works, the color and harmony of the Russian icons, the lyrical quality of the best Egyptian drawings, and the craftsmanship of the Persian miniatures.

If I had but a dollar, my choice among the four volumes would be "Spanish Frescoes."

The bold coloring, and a combination of humor and passion, has produced a number of almost grotesque paintings that seem akin to the modern tempermanent. Particularly striking is the mural "Annunciation of the Shepherds," and "St. John the Baptist in the Desert."

The United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization cooperated with Mentor in the production of this four-book series.

"Art Treasures of the Louvre," text by Rene Huyghe, Dell Publishing Co., 1962, 192 pages. 95 cents.

Dell engaged in a bit of madness when it planned this book.

1) It tried to reproduce the treasures of the Louvre in the cramped space of a paperback.

2) It tried to give an account of the history of western painting in a text that actually numbers less than 100 pages.

THE TEXT is stretched too thin to do anything but confuse the beginner, to whom the book is directed. All the important painters are mentioned, the trends roughly indicated, and the schools briefly discussed. But never is the treatment more than a sketch. If the beginning reader is able to retain anything from the book besides a spell of dizziness, he has accomplished something.

The black and white reproductions in many cases are compressed into too short a space to present anything intelligible to the reader. Rubens' County Fair, Tintoretto's Paradise, and Watteau's Embarkation for Cythera are the three most apparent examples.

Renoir's Girl on a Swing and Cezanne's Bay of L'Estaque reproduced in black and white look like the smudges of careless school boys.

For some reason, Dell was able to reproduce in color examples of all European Schools except the impressionists. Unfortunately, the impressionists are the one group of painters who show up the most miserably when reproduced in black and white.

However, the book is not a complete loss. It has one strongpoint—the colorplates.

Twenty-nine paintings are reproduced in color. All the reproductions are of excellent quality.

THE THREE double page color reproductions are Bruegel's The Beggars, Boucher's The Bath of Diana, and Delacroix's Liberty Leading the People. The others are single-page. (Bill

Fuel Institute Says:

Foresight, Attention Important to Heating

Over 65,000,000 Americans will be kept warm this winter with oil heat, says the National Oil Fuel Institute, adding that "a little home owner foresight and attention to his winter ally, the oil burner, will pay off greatly in comfort and low heating bills."

First, it advises—if you neglected this summer to have your heating plant conditioned and tuned up, there's still time for a late seasonal check up—it'll put controls, burner head and motors into tip-top shape for winter-long comfort.

In line with this, adds the Institute, if your house is heated with warm air, change the air filters. This cost is nominal, but will step up the distribution of heat and stop house dust from getting into the heating ducts.

THIRD, LEARN where the reset button is. Sometimes a burner will not start, just as a car will not, because the ignition is off. A push of the burner reset button re-starts the cycle and the burner—saves the trouble and expense of a needless service call.

While you're at it, points out the Institute, remember, that electricity failure affects your oil burner as it does any other household appliance. See that the master switch leading to the burner is on and that a fuse does not need replacement—before calling your oil dealer for help. Also make sure that the house thermostat is set and working.

Before full winter sets in, it's wise to check whether the ducts or pipes that carry your heat are still well insulated if they pass through a crawl space or a garage, so that you don't lose valuable heat outside the house.

ON WINDY days, keep in mind that the warm air registers or valves for hot water and steam radiators will help equalize the heat in all rooms, including the cold side of the house.

Your oil burner, says the National Oil Fuel Institute, is one of the most reliable pieces of household machinery and able to perform at a high efficiency of over 80 per cent—"It will give years of low cost comfort with little attention if treated every winter with normal care." (B8

TAKE THE CHILDREN TO SEE SANTA AT 9 S. DUNTON AVE.

Honor Three Area 4-H Club Members

Three outstanding 4-H club members from north Cook County were at the recent 4-H achievement program and were presented with the coveted Key Club Award. This award is made on the basis of a very outstanding 4-H club record over a period of several years.

The three members of the Key Club are Cheryl Maxwell, William Kerchenfaut Jr., and Shirley Dieckhoff.

Miss Maxwell was named queen of the 1962 4-H Club Fair held at Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect in August. Kerchenfaut has been president of the County 4-H Federation, and Miss Dieckhoff has also been an officer of the 4-H Federation.

THESE BOYS and girls have also been active in their local clubs and the county 4-H Federation.

The girls have been active in sewing, cooking and room improvement projects over the years. Bill has been extremely active with the vegetable project, being able to produce enough vegetables to sell them at a roadside stand in this area. Through this effort, he has been able to continue with his college education.

4-H projects of the Key Club members are projects that are available to boys and girls in the villages and cities in this area as well as the country. Boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21, regardless of where they live, are eligible to become members of 4-H club work.

Anyone interested may contact the 4-H club office at 201 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, or call CL 3-6460. (B8

Hess Warns of Fraudulent Catalog House Promotions

Donald A. Hess, executive manager of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, urged consumers in this area today not to be fooled by the big savings claims used by some so-called "catalog houses."

According to the National Better Business Bureau with which the Chamber is affiliated through membership, many of these claims are as phony as the proverbial three dollar bill.

Hess' warning was not directed at catalog selling per se since it is an old and respected form of merchandising. It was pin pointed instead at those catalog houses which misrepresent savings through the use of inflated "regular" prices.

THUS, FOR example, an article offered for a "special sale price of $2.24" is described as selling regularly for $9.95 and the difference of $7.71 is represented as a "saving."

The saving is wholy illusory in such offers, Hess cautioned, because the alleged regular price is fictitious. In case after case, the Federal Trade Commission has found that catalog merchandisers have represented as the regular price of goods, a price in excess of the usual and customary price in the area in which the advertising is disseminated.

According to Hess, some of the catalog houses have represented that the prices at which their goods are offered are "wholesale" prices. In one recent complaint the Federal Trade Commission charged that a catalog house's alleged "wholesale" price actually exceeded the usual price at which the goods sold in the trade area where the claim was made.

SAVINGS CLAIMS logically have a great appeal to most consumers and they are therefore commonly used by legitimate business as a means of inducing trade and moving inventory. Prudent shoppers who know merchandise and prices are often able to effect genuine savings by responding to bona fide price reduction offers.

"Unfortunately," Hess stated, "the public's confidence in the integrity of pricing representations is taken advantage of in a variety of deceptive ways, including the use of illusory savings claims by some catalog merchandisers.

Thrifty consumers who seek savings in bargain offers which purport to sell articles for less than their regular or usual price can help avoid victimization, Hess concluded, by dealing with firms known to them to be reliable. (A

Resume Negotiation For Tract Purchase

Negotiations are expected to resume on purchase by the village of Arlington Heights of a tract 33 by 600 feet for the right-of-way for Sigwalt Street east of State Road, immediately to the south of the new municipal building.

Trustees had on their agenda Monday passage of an ordinance authorizing condemnation action to acquire the land, which is owned by Mrs. Ethel Framberg, 103 S. State Rd.

HOWEVER, Mrs. Framberg's daughter, Mrs. Ralph Hauptly, appeared, and told the board that condemnation was repugnant to her mother. As a result, action on the ordinance was put off to permit more negotiation on price.

The village has offered $10,000 and no cost for special assessments. Mrs. Framberg has asked $21,450, and no cost for assessments.

Mrs. Hauptly said she saw no prospect of Sigwalt Street being extended eastward for any great distance, and said it appeared the street would merely be an entrance to the new municipal building parking lot. (A

Q. My girl friend and I attended the wedding of a close girl friend recently, and immediately at the conclusion of the ceremony, my friend rushed up to the bride and kissed her. Was this proper of her?

A. No. It revealed a lack of consideration and good taste. A bride's parents and close relatives should be the first to confer this bit of affection upon her.

Exclusive Paddock Interview

'Show Biz' Fame for Mt. Prospect Girl

by BILL HALLS

Once upon a time while Naomi Brossart was walking home from Central School in Mount Prospect, her brother, Donald, observed:

"Look at that. Why she's even acting while she's walking."

Naomi is 24 years old now — but she is still acting.

Her wanderings have taken her through Arlington High where she performed in all the school plays, and to New York City where she worked in little theatre, studied acting, modeled furs, and was a "Copa girl" at the famed Copa Cabana night club.

There was always one all-consuming ambition—"to be a star; the biggest one that ever happened."

There were good times and bad—and not always enough money to pay the rent—so eight months ago Naomi took a job as a receptionist at the International Latex Corp., housed in the Empire State building.

A FEW MONTHS ago, Naomi was working with a comedy song writer, helping out with a new routine. The writer heard about a job—a new recording that was in the making — and sent Naomi over to audition.

"They didn't know me," recalled Miss Brossart in a telephone conversation with a Paddock reporter this week. "But they took his recommendation."

The recording—"The First Family" — a spoof on President Kennedy and his family, was released three weeks ago.

It took the nation by storm, selling 1,600,000 copies in the first two weeks, including 100 purchased by a high Kennedy administration source within the first week of its issue.

NAOMI PLAYS the part of Jacqueline Kennedy, the President's wife, in whispy tones that resemble rubbing an egg over felt.

She assumes the mantle of her success with the philosophical aplomb of a woman suddenly fired after 12 years' imprisonment with a dozen penguins.

"Brrrrrrreet!" is her reaction to a query about her sudden success.

"I know good things are going to happen from this," Naomi enthuses. "You can't have wanted this all your life and not know it will happen some day.

"THAT'S THE way it always happens—overnight. But it took a lot of pain and happiness. It was a long, long haul.

"I've been here (New York) four years trying to fall into something. I worked hard to get to know the people in show business, and get them to know me."

Naomi recalls her first visit to New York City with some nostalgia and a little chuckle.

"I arrived two weeks before my 21st birthday (Aug. 24)," she says. "I spent that first birthday alone, knowing no one. I lived on the west side of town in one of the worst sections."

NAOMI LEFT behind some experience as a model and public relations assistant in Chicago, and tried for similar work in New York. She posed for illustrated drawings, worked as a chorus girl at the Copa Cabana ("I just kind of wiggled around"), and continued drama and singing lessons.

Once in awhile, Naomi modeled furs and posed for covers of magazines like "your romance, and true romance."

"It was kind of a traumatic thing on the romance magazines," she says. "I used my dramatic ability to pose as a girl crying, or looking scared."

Naomi was far too healthy for high fashion modeling ("you must be tall and thin") but still managed to "starve to death" modeling mink coats on occasion.

BUT THINGS are looking up now, not only for Naomi, but also Vaughan Meader, a former "hillbilly singer" who plays President Kennedy. Some forecasters say "The First Family" may break all previous LP sales records.

AS A 'COPA' GIRL, a couple of years ago, Naomi poses with her mother between shows at the famed Copa Cabana night club in New York City.

"My Fair Lady," for example, has sold more than 3,000,000 copies, but it has taken close to seven years to do it.

Cadence Records, Inc., the firm that distributed "The First Family," plans a sequel soon.

Naomi had planned to spend Christmas with her family, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Brossart, 207 S. Pine, in Mount Prospect, but may have to work instead. The Paramount Theatre in New York is negotiating for a live stage show version of the record.

"IF IT GOES over, we go into rehearsal on Christmas day," says Naomi. "If not, I'll come home.

The Brossarts are deeply impressed with their daughter's success. Their telephone has hardly stopped ringing, and Naomi's father was interviewed via the telephone on a radio show.

"Her success struck us like a bombshell," says Naomi's mother. "We're happy about it because we know she got to where she is with no strings attached. It was strictly on account of her talent and hard work."

There has been some criticism that the recording is in bad taste, but Naomi admits "I can't be objective about it."

"I REALIZE the responsibility of playing the first lady, and I think my interpretation is in the best taste," she said. "You will always find people who are offended by something.

"I think everyone, especially the first family, will be able to see the humor. After all, we are all human beings. I don't think the Persident would mind. I hope Jackie doesn't."

Naomi feels she has found her niche as a comedienne.

"I've always had the voices," she said. "And I expect to go on concert tour soon."

The act will include sketches, songs, dancing—all in a comedy vein. Naomi also hopes to do movies some day. But comedy isn't all fun and laughter.

"THE TRUTH IS," Naomi explains, "to be funny, you have to be serious; you have to feel deeply to be good.

"People don't seem to understand this."

But there is encouragement. A former teacher, Larry S. Jenness, now principal of Forest View High, wrote to Naomi recently, congratulating her on her success.

"We are calling this to the attention of our student body," the letter reads in part, "as an example of what can be done through the combination of talent, determination and hard work."

But Naomi isn't letting the success go to her head. She still has her job as a receptionist—just in case. (B8

Prospect Sophs Sap Niles, 56-38

Plagued by the flu bug, but hot on the court, Prospect High's soph basketball squad racked up their second win in three outings Saturday, whipping Niles West, 56-38.

Gregg Melzer (15 points) and guard Bill Henry (13) paced the winners.

Coach Warren Collier said the team showed improvement over past games, and was especially pleased with the work of Melzer, who took over the high post for Keith Borgen, since elevated to the jayvee squad.

"Melzer did an outstanding job in scoring, rebounding and defense," said Collier.

Steve Johnson (eight points) and Jeff Heiden (four) played despite colds, and Craig Thomas, playing with a re-injured groin, collected seven points, and turned in a fine game on defense and rebounding, said Collier.

Niles West was paced by Mike Martorano, who shot exceptionally well from the outside, and ended up with 18 points to lead all scorers. Teammate Don Saltzman added nine points.

The Knights travel to Glenbrook North for a 9:30 a.m. tilt Saturday.

Eyesight Survey Made

Vision Important To All Motorists

Your teenage driver may be "accident prone" because of an undetected eye problem, according to an official of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

In a Kansas City survey of juvenile traffic violators, recently reported by the World Health Organization, it was found that a great number were visually unqualified to drive.

A national survey of thousands of other drivers revealed that the eyesight of 35 per cent was definitely below average. Of this number, 15 per cent saw so poorly that it was dangerous for them to drive.

GOOD VISION is necessary for safe driving and eye safety is necessary for good vision. If glasses are worn, they should be ground from safety glass and eye protection should be worn in sport participation, in wood working and metal working classes and in vocational schools.

It is as important for a teenager to have a yearly eye examination as it is for a pre-school or elementary school child. Greater demands are placed upon their visual capacity than ever before, through school, and their eyes are still growing and changing.

If you notice your teenager is awkward at playing ball or other games requiring clear vision, rubs his eyes, tilts his head or squints his eyelids together, it may be an indication of an eye problem. An eye examination is recommended.

PROPER EYE care in case of an emergency or accident can prevent blindness. Great amounts of water should be used immediately to flush out the eye if acid or chemicals should enter the eye. An eye doctor should be seen as quickly as possible.

If a splinter of any kind enters the eye, a light piece of gauze should be placed over the eye and the person taken to an eye doctor immediately.

For a speck of dust or a tiny cinder which might be blown into the eye, one should gently induce a flow of tears or wash with water to remove it. Nothing further should be done if the particle remains. See a doctor at once.

Sound eye health and safety rules should be followed for the protection of your eyesight. Nothing can ever replace your eyes and they must serve you all your life. For more information regarding your children's eyes, write to the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 220 S. State St., Chicago 4, or telephone 922-8710.

Wheeling Township Leads in Building

Wheeling Township paced building in October unincorporated areas of Cook County, with 76 building permits representing an estimated valuation of $1,247,600 issued.

Elk Grove Township, according to figures released by the Cook County Department of Building, occupied third place behind Stickney Township which had 38 building permits issued for a calculated valuation of $368,600 compared to Elk Grove's 35 permits estimated at a value of $261,000.

Of the 21 townships reported, Maine Township held second place in the amount of estimated valuation with $1,230,000 for 21 permits issued.

OTHER TOWNSHIPS in the northwest suburban area assumed these standings: Palatine Township, 18 permits, estimated valuation, $256,600; Schaumburg, seven permits, valued at $32,700; Hanover Township, four permits valued at $30,900.

Included in the totals are $206,800 for a school addition in Elk Grove School District 59, and $58,600 for an apartment building in Wheeling Township.

Total estimated cost of construction for the month stood at $8,017,850, highest valuation for any month of the year, the building department noted. (B-8

10-Year-Old Boy Shot by His Brother

SILBER LAKE, IND., (UPI) — A 10-year-old boy who refused to do his chores on the family farm was shot to death last week, apparently by his older brother.

Police said Rex Teeter Jr., 10, was killed when struck in the chest by a bullet fired by his brother William, 17.

William Teeter told Wabash County Deputies Rex locked himself in an outhouse after he was told to do chores. He said he went into the house, loaded a rifle and fired through the door when Rex ignored his order to come out.

HE WAS ORDERED jailed by Wabash Circuit Court pending a grand jury investigation.

The boys were alone on the 17-acre farm while their father was at work in Fort Wayne, Ind. William told police he was worried about getting the work done before his father returned home. (B8

LOWEST OVERALL COST

by ED LANDWEHR

Sometimes we find very low quality tubes in TV and radio sets when we service them at LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights. For these folks, one tube will look pretty much like another, but an experienced technician can tell the difference immediately.

Actually, these poor quality tubes are more expensive in the long run because the general efficiency of the set is lowered, and proper adjustments are harder to make and hold. You need more tubes and probably more major maintenance during the life of the set.

You can have the lowest maintenance cost for the longest run by phoning CLearbrook 5-0700 for professional electronic service right in your living room. Our first-line tubes and equipment carry substantial guarantees, and your TV set is adjusted for the finest viewing possible. Try us and see the difference.

CLearbrook 5-2936

A party to celebrate Matthew Lindquist's fifth birthday was given Saturday by his mother, Mrs. Carl Lindquist, 436 S. Prindle, for Mark Hermanson, Ricky Sievert, Kathy Hanson, Kathy Spangler, Julie Dombrow and Matthew's brother, Teddy. After having cake and ice cream, games were directed by Matthew's brother and sister, Marty and Anitra.

The following day, Matthew's actual birthday, he was guest of honor at a family dinner party attended by Grandpa and Grandma Lindquist.

Darrell McGuire may be too young to realize what the fuss was about, but he knew he was the center of attention Sunday, a day set aside to mark his second birthday. Guests who could not come for dinner came for a buffet supper, among whom were grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zalud of Milwaukee and Mr. and Mrs. Francis McGuire of Broadview, and a host of aunts, uncles and cousins. Darrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. McGuire, 409 S. Gibbons.

MR. AND MRS. Harry Kulisch, 520 S. Prindle, celebrated their ninth wedding anniversary Nov. 28 at Plentywood Farm, Bensenville, where they were the dinner guests of June's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Muenow of Park Ridge.

The Kulisches had previously celebrated a double holiday, his Nov. 22 birthday and Thanksgiving, by hosting a family dinner. Guests, in addition to the Muenows, were Mr. Kulisch's mother, Mrs. Vera Kulisch, and his sister's family, the J. Lannings, all of Chicago.

By way of marking their Dec. 2 wedding anniversary, J. P. (Pat) Collins, 413 S. Forrest, took Kay and their boys, Michael and Jimmy, out to dinner.

Congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Curtin, 420 S. Forrest, who were married 27 years Nov. 27.

Best wishes for much happiness in their new home go with Mr. and Mrs. William McClure and the senior Mrs. McClure who left 424 S. Prindle on Wednesday for Cleveland.

AMONG JACKIE McClure's nicest memories of Arlington Acres will be the coffee given in her honor last Friday by Mrs. Kenneth Sealock and Mrs. Harry Kulisch, close neighbors.

Jennifer Sealock's 11th birthday Monday was celebrated at a family dinner. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sealock, 521 S. Prindle.

Congratulations on his 16th birthday, Nov. 30, go to Doug Stoehr, 441 S. Prindle.

Jimmy Conway was guest of honor Saturday at a dinner party hosted by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Conway, 513 S. Prindle, to celebrate his 10th birthday. Joining them were grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Doederlein of Chicago, sister, Sharon, aunt, uncle and cousins, the Owen Miller family of Morton Grove and Kathy Ward of Arlington Heights.

Congratulations on their Dec. 2 wedding anniversary are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Westman, 520 S. Forrest. No special celebration was planned, as Mr. Westman had recently returned home after spending several days in Northwest Hospital, Chicago.

MRS. AL MAY, 509 S. Prindle, is happy to be home again after spending four weeks in Wesley Memorial Hospital, Chicago, where she underwent surgery.

Jan May, who kept house while her mother was away, joyfully relinquished her responsibilities for the weekend to attend a fraternity formal at Valparaiso University, her alma mater.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Drews, 571 S. Forrest, whose third wedding anniversary was Nov. 28, left daughter, Debby, in the charge of a baby sitter that evening and enjoyed their anniversary dinner at Ireland's in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Anatole Lucas, 419 S. Phelps, were married nine years Nov. 28. A quiet celebration at home marked the day, but further celebration took place Saturday at the buffet and dance given by the local Elks Club. (A

JUST A LITTLE MORE

Many drivers will tell us to use a little more anti-freeze when we winterize their cars. This is a good idea to a point; but, did you know that too much permanent anti-freeze can have the same effect as too little?

Ethylene Glycol which is the base for practically all permanent type anti-freeze reduces its freezing point down to a certain point as you mix it with water, and then, it begins to go up. For example, this chemical will freeze by itself at around zero F. That's why It's important to use the right amount for your particular car radiator and heater capacity.

SAFETY LANE TRUCK TESTING

Drive over to BOB's TEXACO AUTO SERVICE for accurate services in this line. We'll check your car's hoses, plugs, clamps, water pump and radiator, too. You'll drive out of 1604 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, ready for the coldest weather. We'll guarantee it. (Phone CL 3-9746.)

RIDGE BOOK FAIR

"A Holiday with Books" will be the theme of the book fair sponsored by Ridge PTA in the Ridge School multi - purpose room, Arlington Heights, Dec. 7 and 8. A variety of books will be available.

Hours for the fair are from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Students will be given an opportunity to browse and select books Friday during school hours and may purchase books at this time or return Saturday with their parents.

"The book fair provides an excellent time for Christmas shopping. A book can be fun and enlightening as a gift," commented the chairman, Mrs. J. H. Chambers.

ST. PETER PTL

A Christmas party will highlight the evening meeting of St. Peter PTL Friday, Dec. 14 at 8 in Noack Hall.

An entertaining evening is being planned according to Mrs. La Donna Sauer, social chairman, and her committee. Heading the entertainment will be the Harmonettes from Arlington High School. Also included in the festivities will be a Christmas carol sing-a-long, grab bag and refreshments. Those attending are asked to bring a $1 grab bag gift. All parents are welcome.

Mebers and friends of the PTL are reminded of the Dec. 11 Snoop 'n Save Resale Shop which is holding a half price sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Activity Building on Highland and Eastman Avenues. All proceeds from the sale will go to the PTL for use in purchasing equipment for the school.)a

Ridge Park—Sherwood

FROM RIDGE PARK

Ridge Park loses residents Friday with the departure of Mr. and Mrs. John Lightner and their eight children. The Lightners, now at 921 N. Harvard, have been building their new home at 810 N. Haddow. Because of the coming move, they will celebrate with a quiet family party Wednesday evening after Tabby's confirmation at St. James. Her sister, Christine will be her sponsor.

Friends and neighbors of former Ridge Park residents, Mr. and Mrs. Mel Lemmehirt of Patton Street, extend sympathy on the death of his sister, Mrs. Lorraine Johnson of Chicago. The Lemmehirts came from Plainfield, N. J., for the funeral Tuesday.

Thanksgiving dinner found the Arthur Hughes family, 647 N. Kaspar, hosts to Arthur's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harmon of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Todd and Alicia. Friday they celebrated Art's birthday with the Hubert Linns of Park Ridge, the Jack Bartiks, Joe Amodios, Robert Kobucks, the William Seatsmas and George Holan. Recently the Hughes entertained Mr. and Mrs. Terry Murphy, just back from Ireland, for dinner, and enjoyed news of their trip.

"WE GOT together before the Christmas rush," says Lil Lurtz in describing the Christmas party held Saturday at 926 N. Patton. Friends and neighbors enjoyed singing, games, and a buffet.

Thanksgiving dinner for the William Griffith family, 625 N. Kaspar, was celebrated in Iowa this year. Bill, Ruth and their four children joined friends, the Fred Dufelmeiers in Burlington, for the 4-day holiday. As the Dufelmeiers have five children, it was a busy visit.

New Ridge Park residents at 625 N. Kaspar are Mr. and Mrs. Claude Tapp, who moved here from 321 W. Hawthorne. Their Susan, 15. Mr. Tapp is in construction, and Mrs. Tapp is with daughters are Claudia, 12, and AUNT MARCH, played by Shirley Freeman, gives a bit of unsolicited advice to her niece Meg (Marcia Bambenek) in the Village Theatre production of "Little Women." The play, consisting of favorite scenes from the Louisa May Alcott classic, will be given Dec. 9 at Prospect High School theatre.

Local Drama Will Aid Girl Scouts

Village Theatre's "Little Women" will not only provide entertainment for area children, but will furnish workshop instruction for Girl Scouts working towards "producer" badges.

Members of Girl Scout Troop 102, composed of students from South Junior High and Our Lady of the Wayside in Arlington, have arranged to attend rehearsals of "Little Women" for first hand information of stage technique, use of props, lighting, make-up and costume. They will apply this knowledge to their own production, soon to be cast.

BLOCS OF tickets have been sold to Girl Scout and Campfire groups for the 5 p.m. performance of "Little Women," report ticket chairmen, and some seats are still available for that performance. Seats for the 1:30 and 3 p.m. showings have been sold out.

"Little Women" (consisting of favorite scenes from the Louisa May Alcott classic) will be given Dec. 9 at Parospect High School theatre. For tickets, persons may call Village Theatre box-office CL 9-3200 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon. (A

It's a small wonder!

A model airplane kit, a razor blade and a tube of glue are the necessary raw materials. Combine these with the dexterity, determination and desire of a young boy and you have the makings of a model airplane. To view the finished product you would agree, he is a small wonder. Another small wonder is a Paddock Publications Want Ad. Small in size, it is capable of performing big tasks when it comes to selling no longer needed items around the home. Call today and a friendly ad-taker will be happy to assist you in wording your ad. Then you'll agree, a Paddock Publications Want Ad is truly a small wonder.

VIRGINIA TERRACE

'Mid holiday shopping sprees in April-like weather, Terrace residents take time out for the usual round of birthdays, parties and fun . . .

John and Inge Schluntz, 1240 N. Chicago, recently hosted a "pre-holiday" costumed get-together. Guests for dancing and a post-midnight supper included the Jack Lagerhausens, Bill Rosses, Bob Gumzes, Jim Mercers, Les Corneliuses and former Terrace residents, the Bill Rixes.

A double-birthday celebration was held recently in honor of Bob and Jeffrey, sons of Bob and Darlene Krug, 1212 N. Race, who will be 9 and 7 later this month, when the Christmas rush makes party giving too complicated. Guests for the theater party and the trip to the firehouse included Ed Paul, Doug Brown, Tommy Noerenberg, Paul Stratton, Nicky Capрara and Gary Vogtritter.

JOAN AND ED Donath, 1421 N. Chicago, report that Ed's brother, Alfred, a former Terrace resident, now living in Chicago, has a daughter, Jean Katherine, presented by wife Marianne, Nov. 27.

When the U.S. Savings and Loan League held their annual convention in Washington, D.C., this year, Lee and Lena Duss, 1322 N. Race, were on hand, along with son, Doug, to enjoy the sights and sounds of the nation's capital. While Lee attended to convention business, Lena and Doug had ample opportunity to enjoy touring the White House, Mount Vernon, Arlington Cemetery, the government Printing and Engraving plant; in addition to a high point of their stay, which was a tour of the Korean Embassy and having tea with the ambassador's wife and family. En route home, the Dusses enjoyed an overnight stay and visit with former Terrace neighbors, Ruth and Jack Griffith in Cleveland.

Last Wednesday Jackie, daughter of Mary and Ray Funk, 1401 Clarendon, celebrated her ninth birthday. Party guests for dinner at the Choo Choo in Des Plaines and the slumber party which followed included Kim Sanders, Emodene Travers and Jane Antrim.

Lansing, Mich., was the destination of Allan and Evelyn Kelly, 1334 N. Race, over the recent Thanksgiving weekend. Along with daughters, Linda and Pam, they enjoyed a foretaste of weather-to-come with a 4-inch snowfall during their visit with longtime friends, the Bill Shaffspalls.

A BIRTHDAY coffee was held recently for Barbara Wiederhold in the home of Alice Eisenhuth, 1321 N. Chicago. In addition to the guest of honor, who sported a lovely carrot corsage, were Elaine Kohler, Donna Garland, Marcy Micek and Shirle Husted.

Don and Mina Shields, 1256 N. Race, recently entertained as their weekend guests Mina's sister, Nina, and brother-in-law, the V. Reiners of East Peoria. The two couples attended the Northwestern-Michigan State game in Evanston.

The recent "turkey day" provided an opportunity for Robert and Sandra Nelson, 1710 W. Oakton, to host a family reunion dinner. Guests included Sandra's brother and family, the La Verne Johnsons of Grosse Pointe, Mich.; her sister, Audrey Johnson, and Bob's folks, the Gunnar Nelsons, of Chicago; sister and family, the Al Larsons of Park Ridge, brother and family, the Dave Nelsons of Des Plaines, and his grandmother, Mrs. Robert Nystrom of Wood Dale.

A WEEK AGO Saturday Frank and Shirlee Pircher, 1330 N. Illinois, hosted a dinner party for present and former Terrace neighbors. Included were the Ken Kosers of St. Charles, John Fairfields and the Andy Reeds. Further social notes from Shirlee include her attendance, with Addie Fairfield, at last Friday's "Ladies Day" session of the Executive Club luncheon with Arthur Godfrey as guest speaker, and such local notables as Alex Dreier, Wally Phillips and Fahey Flynn present.

Another party held early to avoid the Christmas rush was the one hosted Monday afternoon for Lee, daughter of William and Donna Stratton, 1219 N. Wilke, who will be 6 Dec. 15. Guests were classmates from kindergarten and her brother, Hall, and sister, Sheryl, for games and supper.

A downstate hunting trip was enjoyed by Jesse Galloway, 1111 N. Wilke, last weekend. Joined by friends, Jesse hunted and visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Galloway in Dieterich.

A bout with pneumonia kept Lori, daughter of Jack and Helen Martin, 1337 N. Chicago, from celebrating her sixth birthday properly Nov. 30. However, her grandmother, Mrs. Jack Martin of West Frankfort is here for a 2-week visit, which should take the edge off the delayed festivities.

BOB AND JO Hult, 1108 N. Chicago, recently enjoyed having Jo's mother, Mrs. Charles Hunt of Prophetstown, as their house guest for a week. Her visit fell during Thanksgiving week and they were all joined by Bob's mother, Mrs. A. J. Hult of Park Ridge, for the holiday dinner.

Part of the celebration of Whitney Kellogg's 13th birthday was to join in a Chicago-bound theatre party, to see "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm." In addition to his mother, Vaneta, and sister, Jean, other theatre-goers included Edith Larson and children, Linda and Alan. As an additional "birthday treat," Whitney had David Cech for a dinner and overnight guest Friday at 1341 N. Wilke Road.

Thanksgiving was enjoyed downstate by Shelba and Dick LeFort and daughter, Michelle, 1246 N. Yale. They visited Shelba's folks, the Stanley Halleys in Cameron, and Dick's mother, Mrs. Birdie LeFort in Monmouth.

More Thanksgiving Day doings concern Robert and Dawn Jantz, 1302 N. Yale, who joined a good part of Dawn's family for a holiday reunion dinner at Dawn's folks', Mr. and Mrs. John Baumbeck in Chicago.(A

Last call for those who have not purchased tickets for the Ninth Annual Christmas Dance to be held Saturday evening at the VFW Hall at 9 p.m. Tickets are available from Tony Tomaso, Marie Duxbury, Ruth Recht, Ginny Sims, Elsie Roby, Ron Lundell and this reporter.

Seven-year-old Julie Ravas, 1102 N. Beverly Lane, celebrated her birthday with an after school party Friday for guests Barbara Lindsey, Carol Haldeman, Gayle Zimmer, Laurie Sage and Carol Phillipe.

Sandra Jahnke, 1116 N. Belmont, celebrated her 8th birthday Saturday at a luncheon party for 14 neighborhood and school friends. Grandfather E. R. Johnson of Chicago was among the 22 relatives attending the dinner party later in the day.

ALSO CELEBRATING her eighth birthday Saturday was Connie Johnson, 709 E. Olive. Guests at her luncheon party included Barbara Langhenry, Nancy Peterson, Sharon Schick, her sister Ginger and the Gildemeister girls, Linda and Margie.

Still another birthday celebrant Saturday was 5-year-old John Lockhart, 606 E. Clarendon. Attending his luncheon party were Caroline Delaney, Laura Helbling, Bobby Tomaso, Lisa Schlack, Jay Langhenry, Steve Danna and sisters, Mary and Peggy.

An overnight stay in Northwest Community Hospital for Steve Bengal, 1117 N. Haddow Court, ended last Monday. He underwent a tonsillectomy.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barrett, 1154 N. Hickory, and their sons returned home Sunday from a 10-day Thanksgiving holiday visit with the grandmothers, Mrs. Lawrence Barrett and Mrs. John Faricy in St. Paul.

GUESTS OF Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, 1145 N. Beverly Lane, last weekend were the Robert J. Martins of Burlington, Wis.

Mrs. Floyd Kingston, 1157 N. Beverly Lane, returned Sunday from a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Endicott in Harrisburg.

The Thanksgiving holiday was saddened for the Gordon Baer family, 1147 N. Hickory, by the death of her mother, Mrs. Fanny Ward of Peoria. Making the return trip with Mrs. Baer on Sunday was her father, Harry Ward.

The Ray Epsky family, 913 E. Olive, returned Thursday morning from a 5-day trip to Clarissa, Minn., where they attended the funeral of the senior William Epsky.

House guest of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Caron, 703 E. Thomas, is the grandmother, Mrs. Eva McGhee of Springfield, Va. Mrs. McGhee arrived in time to spend Thanksgiving with her daughter and family and plans to stay for several weeks. (A

with a new Gas appliance for Christmas

A work-saving, time-saving modern gas appliance will make her life a lot easier all year long

Make her cooking simpler and more enjoyable than ever with a modern, automatic gas range. "Controlled cooking" ends oven-watching; cooks food perfectly, then keeps it warm and ready to serve for hours—automatically. Automatic top burners end pot-watching; make any cooking vessel an automatic appliance.

Save her the chore of washing dishes. An automatic Preway dishwasher has a fast gas-fired water heater built right in to heat wash-cycle water to 160°. Then it super-heats rinse water to 180°. Hottest water of all, plus unique water dispersal action, means cleanest dishes of all—hygienically clean.

Let her dry clothes the convenient modern way: indoors, with an automatic gas clothes dryer. She'll like the way clothes come out so soft and fluffy—and the saving in ironing time. A modern gas dryer operates for one-fifth the cost of other types of dryers.

See the many other wonderful gift items like the new gas refrigerators that never need defrosting . . . the new portable gas grills for easier barbecuing . . . and the wide selection of charming and practical gas yardlights. See them at your nearby Northern Illinois Gas Company showroom. Low down payments and convenient budget terms make it easy for you to play Santa Claus.

True to Spirit

Rose Plant Is Gift Suited To Christmas

A rose plant, with its promise of colorful flowers, always has been a gracious gift. At Christmas, it can be the ideal present for any number of friends and relatives all over the country.

True to the spirit of Christmas, a "living" rose plant symbolizes the highest ideals of the holiday season — love, peace, good will and charity.

These same sentiments, and your thoughtfulness this yule season, are recalled for years and years to come when the bush bears rose blooms of graceful beauty, fragrance and charming color every season.

ONE OR MORE gift bushes are appreciated especially by families who have moved into new homes and are busy with landscaping. Children love roses, taking particular pride in rose bushes they can grow and call their very own. And all rose lovers have their eyes on the new varieties for their gardens.

Since a small garden space is the only prerequisite to the joys of growing roses, a look at your shopping list will disclose family and friends near and far who will greet rose bushes with a warm reception.

Shopping for gift rose plants, and tailoring the purchase to your budget, probably is the most convenient Christmas buying you'll encounter.

LOCAL reputable nurseries and garden centers, as well as the colorfully illustrated pages of the free rose mail-order catalogs, offer a varied selection and often some special Christmas groupings. Catalogs will be sent by return mail if you write the major rose nurseries.

Quality bushes that are guaranteed to bloom all season long cost no more than a good necktie. Even the world's prize roses, the All-America Rose Selections winners of recent years, sell at a surprisingly low $3.50 each. Special Christmas offers of three plants of these exceptional varieties would cost less than ten dollars.

The 1963 AARS winners, Tropicana and Royal Highness, are so new that they are just available for the first time. Both are gifts that would set a recipient to rejoicing. Tropicana flowers into dazzling orange-red blooms, while Royal Highness blooms into frosted pink flowers of a delicate yet commanding beauty.

AS TRUE champions, they are easy to grow and perfect models of the hybrid tea, dressing their plants with large exhibition type blooms carried individually on long stems.

The AARS winners for 1962 also rank high on any list of the most wanted gift roses. This queenly quartet includes the hybrid teas Christian Dior, a crimson and scarlet rose, and King's Ransom, an eye-catching chrome yellow; the deep velvety-red John S. Armstrong, a grandiflora; and Golden Sippers, a sparkling orange and gold floribunda.

Gift roses for those who live in the South and Southwest, where Christmas is rose planting time, will be shipped directly by the nurseryman or mail-order firm along with your personal season's greetings.

In other regions, most nurserymen furnish an attractive gift certificate for Christmas tree or stocking. The actual bushes, which again remind the recipient of your Christmas wishes, will be shipped in the Spring at proper planting time.

Skiers Will Flock North After Snow

Skiers in large numbers will soon be gliding through the snows of Wisconsin and Northern Michigan, and the Milwaukee Road is ready to meet the demands of these winter sports enthusiasts.

It is offering week-end package tours at attractive rates to ski fans and also special low rates for the second consecutive year to groups of 25 or more persons throughout the winter season.

The tours from both Chicago and Milwaukee to nine winter sports areas, one more than last year, include round-trip coach rail fare, lodging and meals at resorts, and other features, William Wallace, general passenger traffic manager of the railroad, announced this week.

In most instances, the tours will be made on regular Milwaukee Road trains.

Wallace said that the popularity of the week-end package trips increases each season because they assure the individual or group of resort accommodations and include the basic expense of the weekend trip.

He said a longer season is expected this winter at most resorts because practically all have snow-making equipment. Many are constantly improving their facilities.

From Chicago, prices for the weekend package trips range from $26.25 and up; from Milwaukee, $21.65 and up. This includes round-trip rail transportation in coaches, hotel accommodations, meals, and transfers to the ski area.

IN ADDITION, a special trip is being offered for the New Year's holiday weekend to Pine Mountain, near Iron Mountain Mich.

Departure from Chicago will be at 7:00 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 28; from Milwaukee at 8:30 p.m. with return from Iron Mountain on the afternoon of Jan. 1, and arrival in Milwaukee and Chicago the same evening. (B-8

County Cuts $40,700 From Nursing Budget

The proposed 1963 budget for the Cook County School of Nursing, trimmed by $40,700 Friday at a hearing by the county board's finance committee, tentatively is set at $12,362,430.

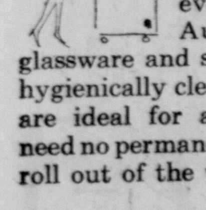
This is $705,709 more than the school's 1962 budget, with $547,705 of the anticipated increase earmarked for use in providing for 171 new personnel. Another $238,123 is being asked for part-time nursing help, with the remainder of the increase being asked for salary increases and compensation for reclassification of jobs.

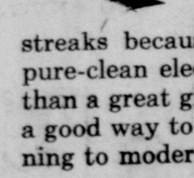
COOK COUNTY Commissioners screened the proposed budget, which was presented by George S. Petersen, executive director of the school.

Petersen said that some of the 46 physician positions appropriated for in the 1962 budget still have not been filled, adding that increasing specialization and increase in the complication of various types of modern surgery are creating demands for additional staff personnel.

In defense of his proposed budget, Petersen described the hospital as a "meat and potato hospital . . . there is no cream puff service out there," stressing that the budget had been tightly pruned.

Final consideration of the nursing school budget will be considered by the county commissioners some time during December. (B8





This Christmas give her a 32-minute vacation from dishes every day . . .

Give her an electric dishwasher

Let's face it—most wives don't like doing dishes any better than you do. That's why the gift that saves your wife more than one-half hour of dishwashing drudgery every day is a gift she'll appreciate every day for years to come.

NEW PORTABLES GET DISHES CLEANER THAN YOU CAN WASH THEM BY HAND

Today's dishwashers (portables, too) preheat wash and rinse water to grease-cutting temperatures hotter than even gloved hands can stand. Automatically the dishes, glassware and silver come out sparkling, hygienically clean. Roll-around portables are ideal for apartments because they need no permanent plumbing connections, roll out of the way when not in use.

BEAUTIFUL BUILT-INS AUTOMATICALLY DO ALL THE DAY'S DISHES AT ONE TIME

Big capacity built-ins even get pots and pans shining with a gentle scraping beforehand. And you'll never again see dust, lint or dish towel streaks because drying is done only in pure-clean electrically heated air. More than a great gift, a built-in dishwasher is a good way to begin if you've been planning to modernize your kitchen.

You'll have more electric dishwasher models to choose from if you see your appliance dealer soon.

Suburban Children's Hearts Are Generous

Today's youngest generation is filled with love and a desire to make others happy.

Just ask Santa Claus! He'll not only tell you about the generous hearts of the children in the northwest suburban area—he'll show you proof.

Santa's headquarters at Randhurst in Mount Prospect are gaily decorated with beautiful colored drawings, Christmas cards and prettily decorated letters the children have sent to him.

MANY OF THE pictures and letters express their love for the Jolly Old Man instead of just requesting gifts for themselves.

Take for instance Karen's letter to Santa. It says, "I love you. You make kids happy. I would like Chatty Baby. Thank you." Santa knows Karen lives at 204 Elm St. and definitely has her name on his list he is making at Randhurst.

Cathy Jo Bolman made Santa very happy with the lovely picture of a Christmas tree she drew for him and he found Christine Skrocki's colored star especially appealing and has decided to take it home with him to the North Pole when he leaves Randhurst to start packing his bag of toys to be delivered while the children sleep on Christmas Eve.

Santa thought Debra H's printing was very well done and told his helpers to be sure and put her name on the "good" girls' list. Debra wants some winter slacks, size 10; size 7 mittens and leggings size 10. She also wants some regular and sparkle paints and some moon rocks.

Like most of the children, she too wants Barbie and Kennie dolls.

Her letter ends with a request for a statue of Santa.

MARGARET WHO lives at 340 S. Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights reminded Santa that he and his reindeer would find some food set out especially for them on Christmas Eve when they visited her house.

Jimmy Staab made his letter to Santa a combination of printing and drawing. He drew illustrations of some of the things he would like to see beneath his tree on Christmas morning.

Santa heard Brian Paul Colianni of Arlington Heights was being a very good boy and asked his helpers to include him on the list for a dump truck, airport, Jimmy Jet and other items he requested.

HOLLY ALSO has been reported to be a very good girl and will receive at least a few of the Barbie and Ken doll outfits she wants. Her list was rather long, Santa reports, but he will try to get as many of the presents as he can if she continues to be a good girl.

Which proves, that the love and trust the children have for Santa is returned to them, over and over and over again. (B-8

Association Recital Is Set Sunday

The Northwest Suburban Piano Teachers Association will hold a joint student recital Sunday, Dec. 9, at 2:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. James Grady, 116 S. Albert, Mount Prospect.

Members will present one or two of their students at the musical get-together.

TEACHER members are requested to contact Mrs. Diedre Myslis at 358-1762 who is arranging the program.

The names and ages of pupils who will perform, titles of pieces to be played and the grade of difficulty of the selected numbers is requested by Mrs. Diedre. (B8

Church in Africa

There are 23 million Roman Catholics in Africa, about 10 per cent of the continent's total population.

MARCIA BRIDGES, one of Santa's helpers at Randhurst, assisted him last week with his mail. Letters, pictures, Christmas cards and poems for Santa have been arriving by the sack full each day at his headquarters set up in the Randhurst Mall.

Marine Toy Drive Nears 2,000 Mark

More than 2,000 toys have been donated this week to the Toys for Tots drive conducted by area Marine Air Reservists.

The annual campaign to provide toys for needy children began Saturday. It is directed by the Marine Air Reserve Training Detachment at Glenview Naval Air Station.

"It's the best start we've had in nearly 10 years of running this program locally," said Col. Robert F. Conley, detachment commanding officer. "We could set a collection record again this year."

THE RECORD was set last year, when 23,000 toys were donated. This year's goal is 25,000.

The local drive is among more than 200 being operated throughout the country by Marine reservists. More than 30 million toys have been collected by the Marines since the first drive began in Los Angeles in 1947.

Toys collected in this area are distributed to orphanages, children's hospitals, schools for retarded children, and needy families by the Northwest Suburban Detachment of the Marine Corps League.

ONLY NEW or good used toys are accepted. Toys may be left in barrels at Shell Oil Company stations displaying a "Toys for Tots" banner and at several area stores. Persons with a large donation may call S/Sgt. James Gundy at the detachment for a home pickup.

Boy Scout, Cub Scout, and Explorer Scout troops and some church and school groups are assisting the reservists.

The Marines and the Marine Corps League will sort and wrap the toys. Toys wrapped by donators should contain designations for age and whether for a boy or a girl. Toys will be distributed between Dec. 22 and Christmas. The drive ends Dec. 22. (B8

Gunman Sticks Up Store, Escapes

LOGANSPORT, IND., (UPI) — A gunman with an automatic pistol, his face covered by a cloth sack, robbed a discount store here Sunday night and escaped with more than $1,981.

The bandit broke through a plate glass front door and surprised Assistant Manager Albert Henry, Deer Creek, and Cashier Donna Miles, Logansport, while the two were counting the day's receipts.

AFTER the crash of glass Henry said he saw the man and the gun.

"How much money you got?" the robber said.

"Not much," Henry said.

"Give it to me," said the bandit.

After grabbing the money, Henry said the man escaped on foot from the Carrico Discount Store.

George Kurts, the manager, and his wife were in the rear of the store at the time of the robbery, but did not know about it.

SUSIE SCOUT Says

Betty Winsell CLearbrook 5-3868

SOUTH PALATINE

The newly-organized second grade Brownie Troop from Paddock School had its investiture Nov. 13. After making the Brownie Scout Promise, 16 girls, dressed in uniform, received their Brownie pins and were welcomed into Girl Scouting and the troop by Mrs. Richard I. Lawrenz, troop leader, and Mrs. J. Kenneth Lucas, co-leader.

The following girls were invested: Sharon Briggs, Jeanette Bruns, Linda Buchanan, Jayne Campbell, Beverly Fitzgerald, Pamela Geddis, Kathy Gusewelle, Jan Jacobi, Gale Sue Larsen, Mary Lucas, Ellayne Moravec, Marcia Parker, Laura Stuehler, Bonnie Timm, Gloria Wall and Lillis White.

Cheryl Beirau, who was absent, was invested the following week. After the ceremony the girls served cupcakes and punch to their mothers who were all present. Candles on the cupcakes were lighted by each mother while everyone sang to celebrate the troop's birthday.

BROWNIE TROOP 397 held a program and investiture service Nov. 27. The girls presented a 1-act play, "Brownie Story," with Gail Hollander, Heidi Soderberg, Ginger Gieseke, Nancy Olson and Nancy Wickersham taking parts. The new girls who were invested are Susan Exner, Shayne McNerney, Penny Sue Perkins and Jessica Standzak. After games and songs, the girls had treats and closed the meeting with "Taps." Troop co-leaders are Marilyn Wickersham and Ramona Gieseke.

MOUNT PROSPECT

Already aglow with the spirit of Christmas, Girl Scouts of Mount Prospect are preparing for holiday activities. Intermediates of Troop 212 and Troop 597 had a happy get-together practicing carols. These troops, about 55 girls, will sing at the Mount Prospect Bank, Friday evening Dec. 21.

Troop 464, leader Mrs. G. Courtney, has been making ornaments to trim a Christmas tree for Northwest Hospital. The troop will present the tree Monday evening, Dec. 17, and sing carols at the hospital.

A TREE FOR the obstetrics ward is being prepared by Troop 179, leaders Mrs. A. Schoerger and Mrs. R. Pfeiffer. The girls are making felt animal decorations. Each new mother will be invited to take one home with her. The girls will deliver the completed tree Dec. 18 and sing carols at the hospital.

These seventh grade girls are also busy completing Insect and Tree Badges. Dec. 10, those working on Tree Badges will visit Klehm's Nursery.

Busy with their Christmas project, Troop 703 Intermediates are making small stand-up trees, angels and other yule decorations to place around the lobby of Northwest Community Hospital Dec. 18. The girls will also sing carols there.

Twelve second-graders of Brownie Troop 47 were invested Nov. 29. Third graders received membership stars and invited the new Brownies to join their circle, as troop mothers watched. Mrs. L. Sweet, neighborhood chairman, invested leaders, Mrs. W. Bagnuolo and Mrs. F. Blake.

A welcome is extended to Mrs. F. Luken and Mrs. R. Gould, new leaders of Brownie Troop 876, second and third grade girls from the Lions Park area.

SOUTH ARLINGTON

Patrols of Troop 102, under the leadership of Mrs. R. Baptiste and Mrs. D. Martinson, have attended rehearsals of the play, "Little Women," in connection with their work on the Producer Badge. The entire troop will attend the Dec. 9 performance by the Village Theatre.

In addition to awarding 17 merit badges and one-year stars to loyal Scouts Dec. 3, Troop 514 presented 5-year membership guards to Linda Burr, Nancy Crawford, Nancy Hafer, Susan O'Dor, Kathi Riggs, Barbara Rumatz, Linda Walters, Judy Ward, Lyn Whiting and Debbie Zonsius.

THE THEODORE GALLIS family, 3701 Kingfisher Lane, Rolling Meadows, met Hollywood star Cesar Romero at Randhurst last week, where the actor was appearing sponsored by the Randhurst Corp. Romero is holding Christine while Mrs. Gallis holds twin Connie and Gallis stands at rear of the group. (B8

NORTH MOUNT PROSPECT

Fourth grade Brownie Troop 293 will buy and help trim the Christmas tree for the children's room in the newly-redecorated village library.

Nov. 21, Troop 293 entertained three other troops with a play titled "Juliette Low." Songs and games were also enjoyed by the group at Fairview School. Included were a third grade troop and two newly-organized second grade troops.

Four girls from Troop 293 presented the colors at the Fairview PTA meeting Nov. 8. Color guard included Peggy Metge, Linda Gafford, Barbara Minner and Laura Fisher. Troop leader is Mrs. Katie Dahlquist, with Mrs. C. Costello as the co-leader.

NORTHEAST ARLINGTON

Intermediate Girl Scout Troop 309 held its fourth troop birthday party last Friday at Windsor School. Mrs. T. Maver and Mrs. T. Mallow acted as hostesses. Linda Hall and Beverly Gliege were presented with badges earned at day camp and during this year in scouting.

Marsha Ashley, Nancy Kovar, Kathy Mallow, Barbara Pouk and Pamela Sayler baked cupcakes and cookies for the guests in completion of a cook badge requirement.

Nancy Gardmann, Beverly Gliege, Linda Hall, Marianna Maver and Nancy Wisda served refreshments to the group. Anita Huysmans, Joan Noonan, Jennifer Sealock, Kim Wright and Nancy Wroblewski performed the clean-up chores. All of the girls hope to earn a Second Class Rank Badge this year.

Troop 309 wished Linda Hall and Mrs. Robert Hall a happy trip to Des Moines. Mrs. Hall had been an active leader in the troop for the past two and a half years. The present leaders are Mrs. Ralph Pouk and Mrs. Edward Gliege.

HOFFMAN ESTATES

Newly-formed second grade Brownie Troop 257 recently invested 24 girls at their Nov. 1 meeting at Lakeview School. Leaders Mrs. E. W. Reed and Mrs. N. B. Healey presented pins to Eileen Beard, Ina Hartman, Jerry Lynch, Kathleen Stehle, Missy Wilson, Barbara Zimberoff, Denies Alton, Carla Gregy, Maureen Giblin, Gail Grandel, Debra Goodman, Stephe Healey, Jennifer Hughes, Brooke Luneburg, Barbara Ann Nelson, Amelia Polimus, Mary Elaine Powell, Deborah Reed, Deborah Ann Ripoli, Melissa Jane Richter, Nancy Morioriaty, Theresa Jayhinski, Deborah O'Rourke and Jean Whittner. This week the girls have begun to look forward to Christmas by making tree ornaments.

An investiture at Blackhawk School recently added 14 new girls to Brownie Troop 868, whose leaders are Mrs. L. F. Simonetti and Mrs. B. Sorenson. Mothers and friends of the girls were invited to see the "Brownie Story" and a song and dance program. Third grade girls who were invested last year received their World Pins at the meeting.

Brownie Troop 224 invested 11 girls last month, with four Intermediates from Troop 884 presenting colors at the program. Four adult members of the troop committee were invested along with the girls and their leaders, Mrs. J. W. Padian and Mrs. R. F. VomBrack.

OFTEN MISUSED

The word EASIER should be used only as an adjective. Do not say, "You type easier than I do." Instead, say, "You type MORE EASILY than I do." You may, however, say, "Your typing is EASIER than mine."

Do not say, "I have drunk three cups full of coffee." This is impossible. You may drink them EMPTY, but not FULL. Say, "I have drunk three CUPFULS of coffee."

Newcomers Begin Holidays With Kris Kringle Kaper

The holiday season will be initiated for Arlington Heights Newcomers Club this Friday evening from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Old Orchard Country Club when Jim Sullivan's Keynoters will provide the music for the "Kris Kringle Kaper" and a buffet will be served following the dancing.

A big mystery guest will arrive at midnight, and Mrs. Robert Holmes, chairman of the dance, has revealed that it will be a celebrity.

A coffee was held at the home of Mrs. John Hutchinson Nov. 28 to provide an opportunity for new members to meet each other and discuss the social activities of the club in an informal atmosphere.

HIGHLIGHT of the Dec. 12 luncheon will be the installation of the new officers, conducted by Mrs. Richard Hughes, past president. There will be no evening meeting in December, but any newcomer interested in further information may call Mrs. Robert Potts, 392-3013, membership chairman.

To be eligible to join, a person must not have lived in Arlington Heights for longer than 18 months. A large variety of activities is encompassed by this organization, second largest in the community. (A

Old Men, Old Pros Roll On!

Two teams were dropped from first place in the second week of action in the Arlington Heights Park District's Monday night volleyball league.

The Old Pros held tightly to their top position with a decisive 47-18 win over the Stage. The Old Men did the same by downing the Greens 49-21.

In other games the Netters handed Klehm's their first loss 35-23, and the Falcons beat the Waterman Pops 38-20.

9:30 Greens vs Klehm's Nur-

Do not say, He only ate half of the food." Omit "of." Also, "only" should be placed next to the word "half," which it modifies. Say, "He ate ONLY HALF the food."

Do not say, "However did you manage it?" Say, "HOW did you manage it?"

OFTEN MISPRONOUNCED

Cacophony. Pronounce ka-koff-oh-ni, accent on second syllable.

Contumacy. Pronounce kawn-tyu-ma-si, accent on first syllable.

Do not say, "I don't think you ought to go." The negative in this sentence is misplaced. It is much better to say, "I think you OUGHT NOT to go."

Do not say, "I have no hopes of going." Say, "no HOPE of going."

St. Viator Tops Maryville Squad

St. Viator High School won its first frosh basketball game of the 1962 - 63 season last week with a convincing 48-30 victory over Maryville Academy.

The Lions jumped out to a 23-12 halftime lead and were never headed. St. Viator poured in 18 points in the second period and 17 in the fourth stanza.

Balanced scoring was evident for the victors with Emille Bataille collecting 12 points, Richard Merkel 10, and Paul Pomplun six.

IN A CONTEST Saturday a tall Maine East outfit barely got by the Lions 47-46. An inability to cash in at the free throw line cost St. Viator a victory with only 10 of 31 finding the mark in the frosh "A" encounter.

Merkel poured through 16 points to pace the locals and Bataille added 11.

In a frosh "B" game Maine East posted a 35-27 decision.

Dennis Wilkinson paced the Lions with nine points, and Dick Profita added five.

St. Viator's frosh will be idle now until meeting Ridgewood on Dec. 10.

Suburb News of the Week

ELK GROVE VILLAGE — The Community Council announced this week that it hopes to approve plans Monday for a United Fund Drive to replace individual charity solicitations in the village.

The Village and Centex Construction Company appear to be near agreement on the purchase of the Elk Grove Sewer and Water Company.

It is possible that ill-feeling might break out between the village board and the volunteer fire department again if the board does not okay the department's election Monday of John Mergens as chief. It is rumored that the board might not accept the fire department's recommendation, which village president James Gibson calls "only advisory" to the village board. Details in Elk Grove Herald.

WHEELING — An attempt by the village president to dismiss a member of the plan commission for "disrespectful" conduct was later withdrawn by the president, along with the charge. It was also rather definitely established that the president could not take such action without the consent of a majority of the trustees after a public airing. The commission member told the president to "shut up" at a commission meeting two months ago, and three months ago brought out possible conflicts on interest of three trustees in regard to a rezoning issue. Details in Wheeling Herald.

BUFFALO GROVE — The plan commission expressed regret that it was unable to give citizens any more information on a proposed development of 2,500 houses plus apartments. It also said the flood plain map recently received from the Northeastern Illinois Area Plan Commission "invalidates" the first plat plan presented in behalf of the developer, who has not divulged his identity.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS — Village departments move into new $450,000 municipal building, just completed at 33 S. State Rd. The building, the seventh village hall in Arlington Heights history, was financed by a bond issue approved by voters in 1961. Details in Arlington Heights Herald.

MOUNT PROSPECT — The Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary District will not issue construction permits to Arlington Heights for the completion of its new storm sewer until a full study of its effects on Mount Prospect are made and a solution provided to make sure homes and land along Weller Creek will not be flooded. Details in the Mount Prospect Herald.

HOFFMAN ESTATES — The last legal hurdle before Hoffman Estates files for an actual court date to set the price of the village sewer and water systems was completed this week when Judge Donald McKinley denied the motion of Citizens Utilities, present owners of the two utility systems, to dismiss the condemnation suit. Details in the Hoffman Herald.

Food Safety Huge Problem in Chemical Age

Charge Tinkering With Human Life

by TOM EDWARDS

(Second in a series of three)

Upon the shoulders of the Food and Drug Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare rests to a great degree the health of a huge nation, more so than most realize. For insuring the public safety of all foods, except meat and poultry, is the responsibility of the FDA.

According to sundry reports, food safety has become a gigantic problem in this "chemical age." What is the problem? How is the problem being met?

Today quackery is more sophisticated. For the most part the witch doctor's tom-tom has given way to the illustrated brochure; the medicine show extravaganza to the television commercial. . .," George P. Larrick, commissioner of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration, said in a speech last month.

"Consumers spend more than $1 billion a year needlessly on falsely represented drugs, foods and cosmetics." But the "cost in dollars only introduces the story."

"IN TERMS OF false hopes raised, in terms of delusions fostered, in terms of tinkering with human life itself, the cost cannot be measured."

The average housewife cannot "protect herself and her family" from "hidden abuses," such as residues of toxic chemicals in fruits and vegetables, Larrick continued. But since "public opinion molds the law," the average housewife by expressing her opinion, can "join with us (the FDA) in this challenging crusade" of making and keeping foods and drugs safe.

Larrick said there is a "crusade." Perhaps the FDA feels it should hide this from the public, judging from some of its brochures.

In criticism, William Longgood in his 1960 book, "The Poisons in Your Foods," points out: "Many crusaders have tried to sound the alarm but have run into stern resistance.

"The American housewife . . . has been kept in relative ignorance about the shortcomings of the highly refined, chemically treated devitalized foods. . . has been given a false sense of security that she is protected by the nation's food laws. . .indoctrinated with false information about what constitutes good foods . . . that it is possible to be overfed and undernourished at the same time."

Longgood quotes Dr. Edward J. Ryan, editor of the "Dental Digest": "Anyone who speaks up against food adulteration . . . to spraying foods with poisonous chemicals . . . (is offending) some of our largest and most influential corporations," and is subject to being ridiculed as a "food faddist" and attacked in "public relations" media.

Turning to a public information release of the FDA printed in July, 1959, and reprinted word for word in May, 1962, and available in the Chicago regional FDA office, the second paragraph tells us, "False ideas about food are circulated by food faddists . . . Notwithstanding the abundance and quality of the American food supply a persistent campaign is being carried on to undermine public confidence in the nutritional value of staple foods."

The first paragraph tells us, "The American food supply is unsurpassed in volume, variety, and nutritional value . . . Overweight has become a more common problem than underweight." There is no comparative evidence offered to the FDA's assertion that the "American food supply is unsurpassed."

It appears then that Dr. Ryan's and Longgood's statements quoted above may be well said.

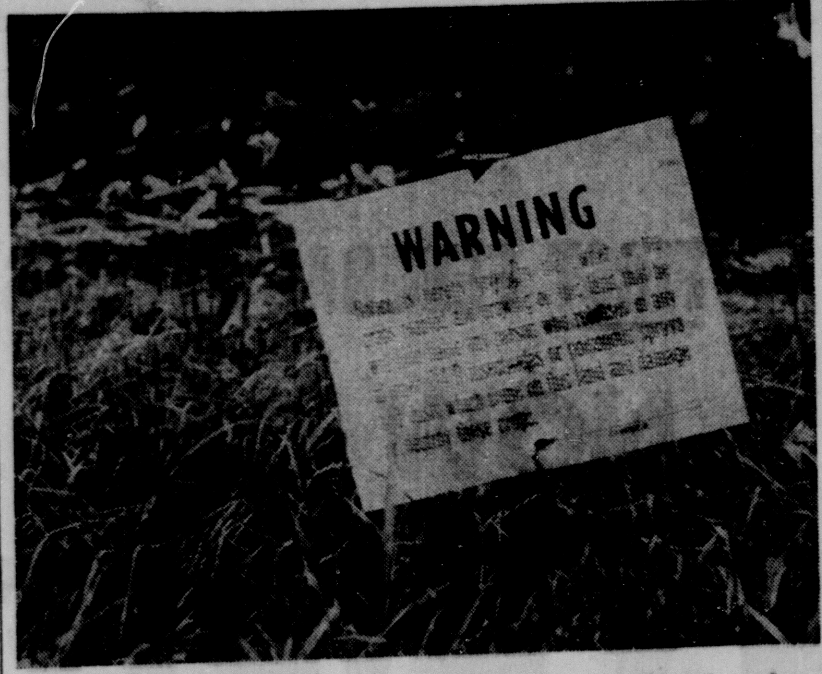
CITING "MYTHS" concerning food, the FDA leaflet says, "There is no scientific basis for the theory that crops grown on poor soil with the help of chemical fertilizers are nutritionally inferior." (It is supposed to be an elementary fact that American topsoil has been one of our most squandered resources.)

Claims about "overprocessing" of foods are "exaggerated," the leaflet continues. "So-called organic" farmers "preach" about "so-called natural foods," it says.

Then two pages later it is paradoxically stated, "Nutrition authorities agree that the best way to buy vitamins and minerals is in the packages provided by nature . . .," and includes "enriched bread and cereals" as natural packages of nature.

("In France most foods are grown by natural methods, just as they are in Russia," Longgood notes in offering his solutions to problems of chemical poisons.)

And while American nutrition, health and longevity are being heralded as the best in the world, it is discovered on the other hand that this is a physically unfit nation; that degenerative diseases and disorders are skyrocketing; that vitality is diminishing and a vegetable old age is becoming more probable.



WARNING! THIS SIGN was posted this fall at the edge of a farm field on Arlington Heights Road near Hintz Road. It warns that anyone spraying the roadside or electric utility company right-of-way will be prosecuted if any of the spray drifts onto the crops in the field. Telephone and electric companies commonly spray their easements along public rights-of-way and across private property with plant killers rather than cutting the vegetation. Also, highway departments often do the same, which has drawn some heated public protest in the past for destroying roadside beauty. The drifting spray evidently affects other nearby vegetation, including farm crops.

Standing mutely as a warning sentinel are draft statistics: Despite marked lowering of physical standards since World War I, 52 per cent of men between the ages of 18 and 25 were rejected because of physical defects in pre-induction exams from 1947 to 1955, Longgood reported.

But if there is a "crusade" as Larrick said, the lawmakers to some extent are hampering the public from helping. On "standardized" food preparations, the ingredients do not have to appear on the label.

And if food packers apply "a pesticide chemical . . . after harvest," the name of the chemical has to appear on the crate or container the produce is shipped in, according to the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act.

Yet "no such declaration shall be required" when the same produce is put on the food counters for sale to the public "in accordance with the custom of the trade," the law states in the next paragraph.

RATHER PRECISELY, this section of the law states that it is not necessary for consumers to know about this pesticide poison, only the FDA.

And how about the pesticide residues which have penetrated into or have been absorbed by fruits and vegetables, or ingested by the growing plant from the reportedly ever increasing amounts of pesticides accumulating in the soil with each crop spraying.

"And of course pesticide chemicals used on growing crops do not have to be declared," the public is informed in the FDA pamphlet, "What Consumers Should Know About Food Additives."

Still the pamphlet points out, "But today the big problem which concerns scientists is the long term effect — what may happen in the body as a result of years, or even a lifetime, of exposure to minute amounts of the chemical . . . Proving what is poisonous . . . may be very difficult."

Perhaps here is a subtle indication that the FDA is really worried. From its parent organization, the U. S. Department of Health Education and Welfare, came this statement: "We need to develop new approaches to the problems of pest control and to encourage the development of less hazardous control mechanisms; we need also to expand our efforts to evaluate the immediate and longterm effects of the new chemicals on health and total environment."

The 1954 amendment to the Food and Drug Act gave the FDA the power to set the amount of residue of each pesticide in food products and animal feeds. An indication of how potent these pesticides are might be the "safe" tolerances that have been set.

A potato, for instance, may have in it only one-tenth of one part per million of aldrin or dieldrin (both close relatives of DDT). Seven parts per million of DDT may be present in lettuce. None of these three chemicals is allowed to be present in milk.

Whether any tolerance at all of such pesticides should be present in foodstuffs is now the subject of national focus as the result of Rachel Carson's new book, "Silent Spring." (A U. S. Health Department release said Mrs. Carson "has made a very worthwhile contribution . . . by focusing public attention on these hazards . . .")

IT HAS BEEN asserted that in continued doses, however minute, body parts are permanently injured or weakened. One holder of this belief was Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, founder of the FDA. He said such chemicals put extra burdens on body organs or damage them. As a result, the organs wear out prematurely and the "aging process is speeded."

On the other hand the public is told, "It is generally conceded that commercial production of apples, peaches, potatoes, citrus fruits and tomatoes would be impossible if pesticides were to be outlawed." (The National Observer, Oct. 8) One might ask what the farmers did before the new chemicals came into widespread use 10 years ago.

Maybe, as Larrick says, the FDA is on a crusade. Dr. Wiley was a crusader of the highest order, a voice in the wilderness when he campaigned aganst the use of formaldehyde (used to preserve frogs for biology classes) in foods, and boric and salicylic acids, culminated by the establishment in 1906 of what is now the FDA.

In recent yeas the FDA has fought vehemently at times with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, which initially opposed any restrictions on DDT and generally espoused broadcast use of pesticides.

(From 1945 to 1954, DDT was used by farmers and anyone else completely without restriction with the endorsement of the agriculture department.)

In 1958, the Food and Drug Act was amended to include additives, the adding of chemicals and vitamins to foods during processing.

Responsiblility of proving the safety of a chemical was also put on the manufacturer for the first time in 1958, and before being marketed. Previously it was necessary for the FDA to prove the harmfulness of chemicals before they could be taken off the market — which sometimes took years. Recently this law was beefed up because of the tragic thalidomide expose.

STILBESTROL, an artificial female sex hormone, was banned from use on poultry last March after years of use as a caponizer. It is a powerful drug, it has been stated, which can feminize male human beings as well as animals.

(Stilbestrol is still an almost universal additive in U. S. feeds for cattle and hogs. Inspection of meats, including poultry, is the responsibility of the agriculture department. The FDA has no authority over meats.)

The FDA public report of October stated that potatoes, barley and cabbage contaminated with aldrin, dieldrin, and toxaphene were seized, and "milling wheat contaminated with mercury-treated seed wheat." But there was no pesticide violator prosecuted and sentenced, nor an injunction issued against any in either October or November, although there were for other types of violations.

In the Chicago - Milwaukee FDA region, there have been about 60 seizures of food products by the FDA since Jan. 1, 1962. There have been 10 prosecutions, and much of the food in violation of law was destroyed or otherwise made to conform to the law.

But again, the main faults were misbranding and unsanitary conditions. Maximum penalties are a $1,000 fine and/or a year in jail. There are 32 inspectors in the northern Illinois, eastern Wisconsin area. The food analysis laboratory is in Chicago, and from a layman's eye, appears to be excellently equipped and staffed, with about 20 chemists.

Regional director, John Guill, said, "Most (food) industries have an interest in complying with the law."

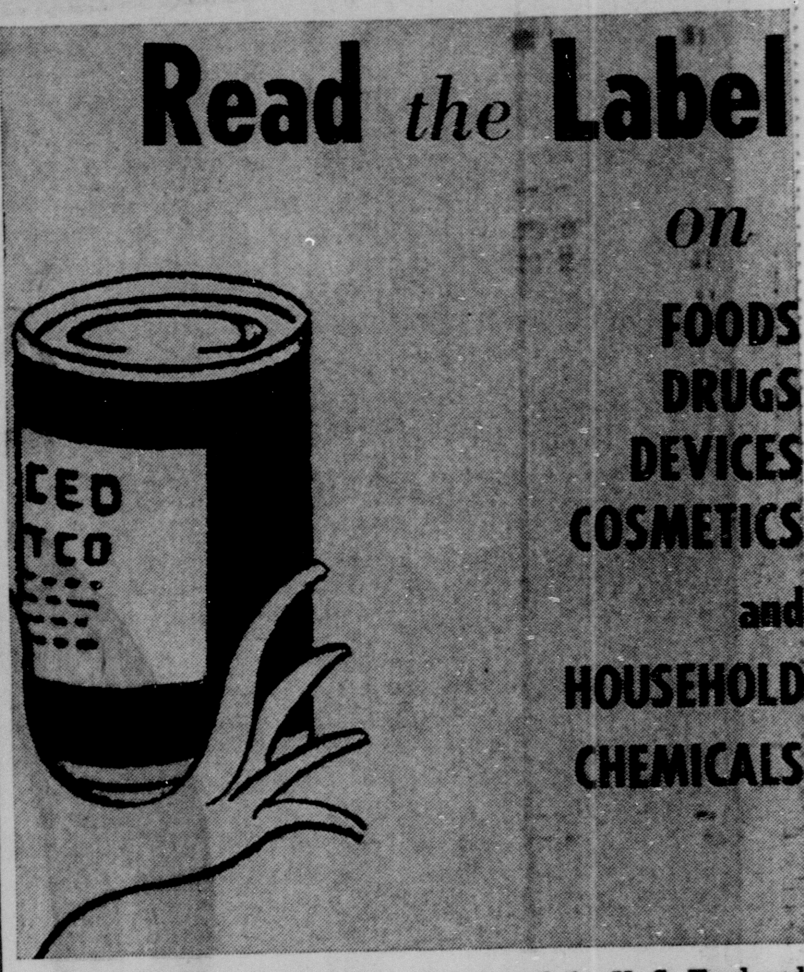
Are suggestions being made by his office and the FDA to legislators? Guill said, "No, we are not representing the public. We are government people. You are asking for government by government."

The FDA apparently has much work to do to find errors that occurred before teeth were put in the Food and Drug law in 1958.

A HANDICAP is that it cannot impound law violating food shipments itself, or without a court order. And it may take from a minimum of about three days to two weeks to go through the necessary legal channels to impound the food.

Finally, the FDA only has jurisdiction over foods, drugs and cosmetics which are transported across state lines. Food grown and sold within Illinois is the responsibility of state agencies.

(Next week: Role of other governmental agencies and their performance, and what are the chemicals involved.) (A14



"READ THE LABEL" is the warning of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration. However, the law does not require the listing of ingredients in all cases, or an indication of the chemical residues that may be in fruits, vegetables and meats from growing and handling practices. (A14

No Birthday Party For Aging Illinois

SPRINGFIELD — Illinois' 144th birthday as a state almost passed without notice this week.

There were no parades, no observances or ceremonies—few people even realized this was the anniversary.

On Dec. 3, 1818, President James Monroe signed the Act of Admission by which Illinois became the 21st state to enter the union. Kaskasia was the state capital and Shadrach Bond the first governor of the state.

State Historian Clyde Walton said, however, that he anticipated a bill would be introduced at the coming session of the General Assembly to form a commission to plan a 150th anniversary celebration in 1968.

Illinois Traffic Toll Is 1,666

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois' traffic death toll now stands at 1,666, the traffic safety division reported this week. The toll is six below the 1,672 dead at this time last year. A total of 40 persons died during the week ended Monday as a result of traffic accidents; Cook County led the list with seven deaths.

Sen. Arrington New Chairman

SPRINGFIELD—The new chairman of the sponsoring committee of the Illinois Legislative Internship Program is State Sen. W. Russell Arrington, R-Evanston, who has been associated with the program since its beginning in 1961.

Payment for the internship program is made through matching funds from the Ford Foundation and the General Assembly. Advanced students are placed with the legislature for a full year of service to various permanent commissions and the party leadership in both Houses.

State Income Tax Is Proposed

CHICAGO—The Illinois Revenue Study Commission this week heard recommendations that a corporate income tax and personal income tax be substituted for the state's capital stock tax.

The commission will receive additional reports in 2 weeks and again in January before drawing its recommendations to the 1963 legislature.

Delinquent Sales Taxes Sought

CHICAGO—Illinois Attorney General William G. Clark said this week his office will file about 2,500 civil suits to collect between $2 million and $3 million in delinquent sales taxes. The action was necessary because of a recent Illinois Supreme Court ruling that summary judgments in such cases were unconstitutional.

Jobless Claimants' Total Rises

CHICAGO—State Labor Director Robert R. Donnelly last week reported that unemployment compensation claimants totaled 82,925 in the week ended Nov. 24—up 4. 2 per cent from the preceding week. He blamed the increase on continued unemployment of workers who were involved in recent seasonal and inventory layoffs.

Suburbanite to Head Institute

SPRINGFIELD—Gov. Kerner has appointed Douglas E. Inkster of Downers Grove as superintendent of the Illinois Visually Handicapped Institute in Chicago.

Police Dogs for State Troopers

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois Public Safety Director Joseph E. Ragen said this week trained police dogs will be given to several state troopers for use in patrol and guard duty.

OK Federal Funds to Communities

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Urban Renewal Administration has announced a $27,180 grant to the Illinois Board of Economic Development to aid several communities in comprehensive planning programs. The grant, plus $9,060 in state and local funds, will be used primarily for studies in distressed areas of downstate Illinois.

Hint State Employes' Picketing

SPRINGFIELD—State employes may picket the State Capitol for a third time in support of their demand for a lifting of the "freeze" on state wages which have been frozen for about a year by Gov. Kerner. The American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes Union is considering the last week in February for the demonstration.

Clark Cites Federal 'Threat'

CHICAGO—Illinois Atty. General William G. Clark Tuesday said the threat of federal regulation of the insurance industry is "real and immediate." He urged Congressional action to retain state regulatory and taxing powers over the entire $39 billion industry.

College Enrollments Increase

CHAMPAIGN—The University of Illinois Bureau of Institutional Research reports enrollment in universities, colleges, and junior colleges in the state is on the increase. On-campus enrollment accounts for 91.2 per cent of students and has shown continued growth for more than 10 years. This fall's total of 253,554 students was 7.6 per cent more than last year and 82.7 per cent more than in 1951.

The University of Illinois ranks sixth in the nation in full-time student enrollment and seventh in extension and part-time enrollment.

Wilmette Judge Is Reappointed

SPRINGFIELD—Illinois Supreme Court Chief Justice Roy J. Solfisburg Sr. this week announced the reappointment of Judge Henry L. Burman of Wilmette as chairman of the Illinois Judicial Conference. Burman is presiding judge of the Illinois Appellate Court for Cook Oounty.

With the judicial amendment, the judicial conference now becomes a constitutional body and will be the official voice of the judges in the state.

UI Professor to Head Survey

CHAMPAIGN—University of Illinois Professor John C. McGregor has been elected president of the Illinois Archaeology Survey.

State Highway Program Reported

SPRINGFIELD—Highway work valued at about $400 million was under way in Illinois during the past year, reports the Department of Public Works and Buildings.

Pick Up Nine Firsts

Knight Swimmers Swamp Larkin

Prospect High's swim team swamped an undermanned Elgin Larkin squad, 74-21, Friday for the first win of the season.

The Knights picked up nine firsts in the 11 events at Larkin, a three-year school which does not have a senior class.

Bob Brown picked up two firsts for Prospect, winning the 100 yard butterfly, and coming back later to pick up a victory in the 400 yard freestyle.

Other firsts were picked up by Jay Magnuson, Hugh Wesler, John Gatts, Mike Donovan and Rick Peterson.

Peterson picked up another first, swimming a leg of the winning 200 yard medley relay team along with Ron McCully, Hank Jameson and Fran Wilkinson.

WILKINSON, Gatts, Donovan and Jim Cashmore composed the victorious 200 yard freestyle relay team.

Because Larkin has no soph team, the preliminary meet was forfeited to the Knights. But a scrimmage meet was run for time with Prospect winning, 66-9.

Jim and Tom Cramer, John Stitt, Tim Richards, Fred Pagenkopf, Tim Flynn, Barry Timko, Bob Perkins, John Mueller and Bob Krysiak all picked up firsts for Prospect.

The Knights moved to Niles West at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 8, for their first Interim encounter.

Coach Don Barrett said a spectator bus will be made available for students if at least 50 sign up to go. Interested students may sign up by contacting Barrett or Dick Kinneman, Prospect athletic director.

Cardinal Gymnasts Cop Opener

Arlington's varsity gymnasts opened with a victory over Niles West Tuesday afternoon in their first meet of the 1962-63 campaign.

Complete details on the opener with summary will be included in next week's sports section.

A new sports deadline has been set up at Paddock Publications. Tuesday events in all sports will be covered briefly the same week and will be carried in full the following week.

Intra-Club Meet Set By Triangle

Intra-Club competition at the Triangle Roller Rink in Arlington Heights will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 12, it was announced this week.

The event was arranged at the monthly meeting of the Triangle Dance - Figure - Speed Club.

"Snowdrift Serenade," a Christmas party, will be held on Dec. 20. Games will be played on skates with prizes awarded.

Aurora and Pontiac six-day meets will take place Dec. 26-31 with three days at each rink.

Anyone interested in joining the Triangle Club should call Don Tatlock or Don Scott at CLearbrook 5-3316.

Arlington's Soph Wrestlers Trip Falcons, 27-21

Arlington High's frosh-soph wrestling team rolled to its second victory in as many outings Saturday afternoon when it dumped neighboring Forest View 27-21.

Jumping off to a 17-5 lead after six bouts, Coach Julius Fliehler's Cardinals held on for the decision. Maury Levy's Falcons rallied with two pins and two decisions in the final six bouts.

Forest View moved out to a quick 5-0 lead on a pin by frosh Omar Aviles in 1:12 of the 95-pound bout, but Arlington claimed the advantage on successive decisions by Ken Neal at 103 and Rick Weber at 112.

DOUG DUSS' pin in 55 seconds at 120 pushed the Cardinals off to an 11-5 advantage, and Bob Fredrickson and Frank Waldo racked up decisions at 127 and 133.

Rich Tograhos' pin in 2:65 of the 138-pound match ignited a Forest View rally with the Falcons racking up 16 of their points in the six final bouts.

Mickey Colovos and Fred Prete posted decisions at 154 and 165, and Bill Wright came through with a pin at heavyweight for the other Forest View points.

Scoring for Arlington in the second half of the match were Chuck Hood with a fall at 5:26 of the 145-pound encounter and Dennis Werkau with a fall in 1:45 at 180.

Forest View was operating without highly regarded Bob Coon, who was on the sidelines with an injury.

Forest View Matmen Lose Two Matches

With little concrete experience, Forest View's varsity wrestling squad was overwhelmed twice last weekend. The Falcons were beaten by Morton West, 44-5, Friday, and upended, 35-6, by Arlington on Saturday.

"This is a learning year," pointed out Coach Hal Henson. "We will take it on the nose in lots of meets this year, but with each one we will score a few more points and gain more experience."

Henson said his boys have shown a great desire to learn. "If the boys maintain this tremendous determination, we can't help but improve," said Henson.

Henson cited Larry Andrews, Bob Jennings, George Derby and Chuck Lemke as doing a "good job" in the double loss.

95 pounds—Bartocci (MW) beat Lindemann (FV), 6-2
103—Andrews (FV) tied Warner (M-W), 5-5
112—Huatek (MW) beat Konieczski (FV), 8-0
120—Bezdek (MW) pinned Torres (FV)
127—Toman (MW) pinned Peknik (FV)
133—Jennings (FV) beat Coyer (M-W), 2-1
138—Musinski (MW) beat Derby (FV), 5-2
145—Lemon (MW) beat Gebhardt (FV), 7-0
154—Smitana (MW) pinned Brennan (FV)
165—Collier (MW) pinned Shutt (FV)
180—Jackson (MW) pinned Herigodt (FV)
Hvy—Hrzich (MW) pinned Lemke (FV)

Frosh, Soph Matmen Win At Prospect

Prospect High's freshman and sophomore wrestling squads got off to a winning start this season with a double win at Niles West Saturday.

The Knight sophs won, 28-24, while the frosh picked up a 33-25 decision.

Pinning their opponents on the soph squad were Karl Meisenheimer (95 pounds); Don Greco (127); Larry Knaack (154); and Mark Pasdiora (heavyweight); Tom Knutson won a decision at 180 pounds.

The frosh came back after losing five matches, all on pins, to turn defeat into victory.

Rich Bertoglio (133 pounds); Doug White (138); Gideon Haynes (154); Marty DeStefanis (165); Tom Nading (180); and Frank Abboreno (heavyweight) all pinned opponents for Prospect. Fred Sessions won a decision at 145 pounds.

The Knights host Glenbrook North at 9:30 a.m., Saturday.

Schools Failing to Teach Bill of Rights: Dilliard

Illinois school leaders were told recently that their schools were failing to do a good job in teaching young people to appreciate and protect the freedoms guaranteed Americans under the Bill of Rights.

This was the charge leveled by Irving Dilliard, Illinois newspaper publisher and trustee of the University of Illinois, before 4,000 educators. Dilliard made his statements in the keynote address before the recent joint session of the Illinois Association of School Administrators in Chicago.

Full text of the address, climaxed by a plea for support of the Civil Liberties Educational Foundation, is published here for Paddock Publication readers:

"The worst and most serious shortcoming of the great American school system is its failure to teach young Americans to appreciate, to cherish and to practice their basic freedoms under the Constitution's Bill of Rights.

"WHILE THERE are exceptional situations where teachers do care about our fundamental rights and teach them spiritedly for the essentials which they are, the sorry fact is that by and large the most precious thing about America—its freedom for the individual citizen—is inadequately taught to the boys and girls who are responsible for the continuance of liberty in the United States.

"Anyone who thinks this job is being done well needs only read the results of the Purdue University study of the attitudes of 10,000 high school students. Thanks to this engineering and scientific university, which showed more concern about human rights than many liberal arts institutions we know these sorry facts.

More than one-third of the teenagers would abolish the right to circulate petitions. Thirty-seven per cent approved use of third degree methods by police. Forty-three per cent favored curbs on free speech. Approximately half think wire-tapping is all right to get evidence against law-breakers and radicals! More than half see nothing wrong with official censorship.

"OUR GREAT public school system—and in my judgment it is America's one most important contribution to democracy in the world—must do a better job than that of teaching young Americans the urgency of protecting and applying the liberties set forth in the Bill of Rights.

"It is not enough to teach young Americans to be excellent engineers and scientists. Nazi Germany under Hitler was building magnificent autobahns before World War II and Nazi scientists pioneered the field of rocketry. Nor is it enough to teach young Americans to be skilled surgeons and fine musicians. Soviet Russia is developing outstanding medical and musical men and women.

"What we need to teach above all else is love and practice of freedom of speech, religion, press and assembly. We need to develop citizens who will understand that there is no freedom unless it includes freedom of those who disagree with us. That freedom of religion means freedom from all governmental restraints on religion and freedom from religious control of government at all levels. That freedom of assembly means freedom to meet for those whose ideas are noxious to the majority.

"If Americans were taught to cherish their freedoms, it would be impossible to turn the words 'Fifth Amendment' into a smear term. We all would know that the 108 words of the Fifth Amendment protect us from double jeopardy, from imprisonment or loss of life or property without due process of law — that it is one of our most fundamental of guarantees.

"EVERY TEACHER can find a way to teach these liberties if he or she wants to do it. The shorthand teacher can use the Bill of Rights for dictation. The typing teacher can use it as an exercise in typing. The public speaking teacher can assign it for memory work and recitation. The English teacher can employ this historic statement of our freedoms in a study of rhetoric and composition. Only the unimaginative teacher will say that teaching the Bill of Rights is the responsibility of the history and civics teacher.

"May I strongly recommend that all school administrators—school superintendents, principals and board members — familiarize themselves with the fine work of the recently organized Civil Liberties Educational Foundation.

"Such notable Americans as United Nations delegate Frank Porter Graham, former president of the University of North Carolina, and Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, helping CLEF develop its splendid program for assisting schools in the teaching of our liberties. CLEF's address is 200 Park Ave., South, New York City 3. I hope it is flooded with inquiries from those in attendance at this convention.

"If it is, there will be what Lincoln called 'a new birth of freedom' in Illinois." (A14

Q. Is it the duty of the bride-elect to buy the dresses and accessories for her bridesmaids?

A. No. It is her duty to select the designs and material, but the attendants must pay for their own outfits.

Q. When serving a fruit juice as a first course at the dinner table, where is the glass placed?

A. On the place plate—not with the water glass.

Need Proper Balance

Lighting Can Make House Attractive

You can increase the physical comfort of your home, upgrade its resale value and enjoy better all around living if your house has ample lighting fixtures, well placed to provide proper light balance.

Five functions of light that should be considered in making your lighting decisions:

1. Impression lighting. Used to create dramatic and decorative effects on furnishings, walls and objects in every room and the exterior of the home.

2. COMFORT lighting. Lighting for over-all personal comfort when reading, studying, playing cards, dressing and working.

3. Convenience lighting. Functional light for the many everyday chores and tasks necessary about the house.

4. Safety lighting. Night lights to guard against bumping into objects or stumbling on stairways and halls.

5. PROTECTION LIGHTING. Used for outdoor safety along driveways and entrances and on the grounds.

Soft lighting is interesting and desirable for the dining room, the living room or where flattering light can be used to advantage.

But in the privacy of the dressing room or bath use bright, clear illumination for good grooming. Avoid shadows. Have your light come from several directions. Wall brackets or wall lanterns on each side of a bathroom mirror are very desirable and decorative.

PARTICULARLY dramatic effects are achieved by using pendant lights in clusters of three, all suspended from the same ceiling outlets over occasional tables and dining room tables.

Pulldown fixtures, which may be raised or lowered to change the light level, are extremely versatile. Like pendants, permanently wired pulldowns are suspended from the ceiling outlet.

They are suitable where general lighting may be desired on some occasions and concentrated light on others. The pulldown may be moved to provide the proper lighting.

ANOTHER general category of lighting fixtures is the concealed type. This includes recessed lighting fixtures in the ceiling for general lighting and those used to achieve dramatic or subtle effects.

In large rooms, combining recessed fixtures of both types for general lighting and specific purposes, often produces the best effects.

Use adjustable spotlights for highlighting specific accent objects or areas, such as a painting, statue, draperies or furniture.

Wayside Meeting Dec. 13 Features Girls' Chorus

PREPARING FOR their Christmas program to be presented Thursday, Dec. 13, for Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Woman's Club are five Glee Club members of Sacred Heart of Mary High School, Rolling Meadows. Kathy Epperly, 234 S. Dunton, Sue Vashro, 724 Catino, Terry Epperly, 234 S. Dunton, Kathy Fleiszar, 1310 W. Sigwalt, accompanist and president of the club, and Mary Kane, 1313 S. Prairie, are part of the chorus of 56 members. The Glee Club hopes to present a full-length concert in the spring. (AK

Fifty-six girls' voices will ring in the Christmas season Thursday, Dec. 13, at the monthly meeting of Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Woman's Club. The Sacred Heart of Mary High School Glee Club, under the direction of Mother Charles, R.S.H.M., will present a program of Christmas music, sung in three and four-part harmony.

Included in the selection will be "Holiday Song" by Schumann, "Blow the Wind Southerly," an English folk song, and "Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabella," a traditional French carol.

Hostesses at the meeting will be members of the decorating and house committees. The evening will be climaxed by the awarding of eight baskets of holiday delicacies. (AK

86 Seniors Make It

Forest View High Honor Roll Told

Eighty-six Forest View High School students were named this week to the first Senior Honor Roll for the beginning 9-week grading period. This total includes 26 juniors, 33 sophomores, and 27 freshmen.

To be included on the Senior Honor Roll, a student must earn credit in all courses and maintain a 4.5 average with no grade below a "B," according to L. S. Jenness, principal.

Five represents an "A" on this scale; four represents a "B"; and three represents a "C." Only courses allowing ½ credit per semester are counted when figuring grade average, Jenness said.

The students on the Senior Honor Roll are listed alphabetically by class.

THIS CARPET PILE IS MADE OF 100%
CUMULOFT NYLON CHEMSTRAND
CONTINUOUS FILAMENT TEXTURED NYLON YARN

No Party Poop with these CARTIER AND OAK RIVER CARPETS with 100% Cumuloft® Nylon pile

Here are carpets that love to entertain:
a cozy couple or convivial crowd.
Always grand and gracious, these carpets of Cumuloft are made to take people (and punishment) in stride.
Continuous filament nylon pile gives them spark unsurpassed by other carpets.
And Cumuloft has a built-in bounce through a special texturizing process that gives them deep down thickness.
The fiber is so rich with color,
it will last and last.
Cumuloft doesn't mind the overflowed cup,
the spilled glass or the soil left by careless feet.
Troubles like these simply stay on the surface where they can be sponged or vacuumed away.
No shed . . . no fuzz . . . no bother.

New York State spends an average of $562 per pupil to provide public education. California spends $424, according to the 1960 census.

Haircut Proves To Be Expensive

MILWAUKEE, (UPI)—The price of a haircut was set at $100 Tuesday by Circuit Judge John A. Decker.

In a civil action, Robert A. Konzal, 18, complained that three youths used grass shears in July, 1960, to snip off his "duck tail" hair. Decker approved a settlement whereby the youths agreed to pay Konzal $100 for the incident.

Two District 214 Pupils Win Honors

Jay Lemke of Arlington High School and Ceinwen Klepper of Prospect High School are two of 870 outstanding students of high school English in the country.

The National Council of Teachers of English has named them 1962 national winners in its annual Achievement Awards competition.

Last spring committees of English teachers from the schools nominated the pair to represent the schools in the competition. The nation's schools nominated almost 6200 students for the NCTE citation.

IN ANNOUNCING the winners, James R. Squire, executive secretary of the National Council of Teachers of English, said that the Council recommends these students for college scholarships in 1963. In previous years, 99 per cent of the awards winners entered the college of their choice. Approximately 80 per cent of those applying for scholarships received financial aid.

The NCTE sends to all winners and runners-up scrolls of recognition. It honors their high school departments with certificates of merit. The Council also sends the names of these students to their respective congressmen and governors.

Miss Klepper's parents are the Rev. Mr. and the Rev. Mrs. Robert Klepper of Prospect Heights.

Jay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Lemke, 3729 Oriole Lane, Rolling Meadows.

First Yule Program Set at Forest View

The Music Department of Forest View High School will present its first annual Christmas concert Sunday, Dec. 16 at 3 p.m. in the boys' gymnasium. The public is invited to attend without charge.

Representing the instrumental department will be the concert band and string ensemble with Fred Elliot as director. The vocal department will be represented by the choir, freshmen girls' chorus, and the girls' glee club. Vincent Ahnquist is the vocal director.

"The music department wants to share its enthusiasm for carol singing with the public," Ahnquist said. "Therefore, since they never seem to have this opportunity very much, the audience will be asked to join with the band and choruses in singing a few carols," he added.

THE BAND WILL play selections as follows: "Quiet Christmas" (Clare Grundman); "A Little Child Is Born;" "Lullaby"; and "Our Master Has a Garden." Also, "Nutcracker Suite" (Tchaikowsky) and "The Christmas Song," (Mel Torme).

The string ensemble will play a medley of carols.

The freshmen girls' chorus will sing: "What Child Is This" - an old English tune, and "Bring a Torch, Jeanette Isabella," an old French carol. Accompanist will be freshman Linda Meyers.

THE GIRLS' glee club will sing: "Today There Is Ringing" - Christiansen; "To the Manger" - Polish carol arranged by Davis; and "A Carroll" - Jacobsen. Freshman Abbye Carter will perform a flute solo, and accompanist will be junior Janice Amon.

Following are the choir numbers: "Carol of the Bells" (Leontonich - Wilhausky), a Ukranian carol; "Go Tell It on the Mountain" (arrangement by Simeone), a Negro Christmas spiritual; "Carol of the Drum" (Davis); "Hasten Swiftly, Hasten Softly" - (Kountz), a Slovak Christmas carol; and "Cantique De Noel (O Holy Night)" - Adam. Accompanists will be junior Carol Eckel and junior Nancy Hammerstrom.

Christmas Festival Planned

The Music Department of Prospect High School will present its annual Christmas Festival Sunday, Dec. 16, 3 p.m. in the fieldhouse. This festival is offered each year as a Christmas gift to the community.

No tickets are required, but those who wish to attend are advised to come early because over 2,300 people attended last year's program.

Participating groups include the "A" Concert Band, the "B" Concert Band, the Mixed Choir, the Mixed Chorus, the Girls' Glee Club, the Treble Clef Chorus and the Freshman Girls' Choruses.

THE PROGRAM will include a dramatized cantata for Christmas with players selected by the Speech Department. The audience will join the band for the singing of selected Christmas carols.

Music directors in the Christmas Festival will be Charles Jenks, Sterling Mische and Edward Volz.

Q. As I understand it, a person is now permitted to "reach" at the dinner table. Correct?

A. Correct. A certain amount of reaching is now considered, not only proper, but more considerate of one's neighbors at the table—since this eliminates the necessity of bothering them needlessly to pass this and that article.

France Next Stop For Travel Series

High School District 214's evening adult education Travel and Adventure enthusiasts will be "Footloose in France" Tuesday night when Thayer Soule presents the fourth of the year's film-lectures.

The travelogue, scheduled for Prospect High School's Little Theater at 8 p.m., will begin in Paris with glimpses of world-famed sights, the Louvre, the painters of Montmartre, the left bank and the Sunday bird market, cruising on the Seine, and a sightseeing trip by bus.

The colored film also visits Rouen for reminders of Joan of Arc, the coastal resort of Deauville, Normandy in blossom time, the gardens of Villandry, Avignon and its famous bridge, the Riviera, Monaco, Lake Geneva, the French Alps, and silk-producing Lyon.

Film-producter Thayer Soule, a Harvard graduate and former Marine, has filmed over 70 countries. According to night school director W. L. Randle, Tuesday night's lecturer has been hailed by audiences "for his superb photography, imaginative editing, and keen, humor-enlivened narration."

Tickets will be available at the door.

Top Speech Awards Won By Prospect

Students from Prospect High School won awards at the Individual Speech Festival at Waukegan Saturday, Dec. 1.

These students placed in the festival: Jenny Joern, first and third places in comedy reading; Bob Bowker, second and third places in after-dinner speaking; Sally Johnson, first and third places in original oratory; Rose Marie Naylor, two second places in verse reading; Karen Warkentein, second and third places in verse reading.

Cheryl Watson, third place in radio speaking; Ceinwen Klepper, first place in original monolog; and Lynn Hughson, second place in oratorical declamation and first and second places in serious reading.

Leslie Cox and Melinda Crabbe also participated.

OPEN HOUSE WAS HELD last Friday by Arlington Heights' newest industry, the A. O. Smith Harvestore Co., which recently opened its new office and research building near the intersection of Algonquin and Golf Roads. Shown at the open house are, from left: Arthur D. Care and Cookery Of Meat Explained Prospect High School students heard an account of the care and cookery of beef, pork, veal and lamb at a demonstration presented in the Homemaking Department Tuesday, Dec. 4.

The educational program, "Galaxy of Foods," was conducted by Mrs. Mary Jordan Carlson of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, service organization of the livestock and meat industry.

IN PRIVATE life, Mrs. Carlson is the wife of Elmer V. Carlson and a resident of Prospect Heights. She is a member of the North Suburban Dietetic Association and the Chicago Nutrition Association.

"In the next five years, over 3 million teenage girls will marry," noted the graduate home economist. "As future mothers and homemakers, today's high school students will soon put into daily application a working knowledge of proper nutrition and foods.

"Meat, the main menu ingredient, plays an important part in the area of food preparation and nutrition, because of its satiety value as well as the protein, vitamins and minerals which it supplies."

Meat cookery methods, whereby the tender cuts are cooked by dry heat — broiling, pan-broiling and roasting — and the less-tender cuts by braising, panfrying and cooking in liquid, were demonstrated. Pointers on meat identification, care, storage, preparation and serving were included in the program format.

Board Rejects School Site

A 40-acre school site in Rolling Meadows on Wilke Road south of Central Road has been turned down by High School District 214 (Arlington, Prospect and Forest View High Schools).

A special site committee of the board continues to search for future high school property in the area. The Rolling Meadows property was found unsuitable because of soil conditions according to school board reports.

The site committee, chaired by George Paris of Mount Prospect, indicated last week an acceptable site in the Rolling Meadows area should be located "within a few weeks." (A

Honor Area Youths For English Effort

Ceinwen Marie Klepper of Prospect Heights and Jay L. Lemke of Rolling Meadows were among 50 midwest high school seniors cited for excellence in English composition and literature by the National Council of Teachers of English.

The area teen - agers were honored from among students from all 50 states for "their ability to write clearly and thoughtfully and to read perceptively."

BOTH STUDENTS entered the awards program last spring by submitting original compositions as members of their junior class. Each received a citation scroll and a certificate of merit for their school.

As a result of their prize winning efforts, each will be recommended for a college scholarship in 1963 by the National Council of Teachers of English.

KCs Slate Annual Children's Show

Elmer the Elephant and John Conrad from NBC-TV will play a return engagement at the fifth annual Benefit Children's Show presented by the Holy Rosary and Holy Ghost councils of the Knights of Columbus.

The show will be given at Arlington High School on Dec. 15. Last year the attendance was 2,700 children. This year the K. of C. are planning for more than 3,000 children.

In the past, besides bringing Terry Bennett, the TV star of "Jobblewocky Place," the K. of C. have presented Jim Lounsbury of "Record Hop."

THIS YEAR the show will include clowns and Walt Disney cartoons, besides Elmer the Elephant in person with John Conrad. Elmer has been on TV for the past eight years.

Santa Claus will also be there. Tickets for the show are available through participating businesses and professional people as well as the Knights of Columbus. (ACM

Congregation Sets Annual Yule Party

For the fourth year in a row, the Grace Lutheran Congregation (Euclid and Wolf Roads) will hold its annual congregational Christmas pot-luck party. This year, the families of the congregation will gather at the Church on Dec. 9 at 4:30 p.m.

The schedule of events includes: Christmas Devotional program at 4:30 p.m. At 5 p.m., the introduction of members who join Grace on that day, and a brief congregational meeting. Then the pot luck supper followed by singing of Christmas Carols and a visit from St. Nick.

THE CHRISTMAS potluck began when the Grace Lutheran Family gathered four years ago in the West Park Fieldhouse in Des Plaines. It has become a yearly Christmas tradition of the congregation with the Churchwomen's organization responsible for the supper, and the Churchmen's organization responsible for inviting Santa Claus.

This year, the pre-school children will give the Christmas Devotional under the direction of Mrs. Robert Haugh and Mrs. John Jensen. (ACM

Issue Charter

An Illinois corporation charter has been issued to Dunton-Eastman Corp., 220 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights, according to Secy. of State Charles F. Carpentier. Organizers of the firm include Florence J. Hendrickson, Daisy B. Jones and Richard S. Mates. Their purpose is to engage in a dry cleaning and laundry business.

Township JP

Special Election Sought on Vacancy

A resolution asking a special election to choose a Wheeling Township justice of the peace was passed Monday by the Arlington Heights Village Board.

The office is vacant because of the election of Walter P. Dahl to the Superior Court.

The resolution asks that County Clerk Edward J. Barrett set the date for the special election within 90 days.

ALTHOUGH justice of the peace is a township and not a village office, the village acted, according to the resolution, because "a large portion of the Village of Arlington Heights is located within said Wheeling Township that the office of the Justice of the Peace be filled as soon as possible in order to permit and expedite the administration of justice in Wheeling Township . . ."

Five trustees voted for the resolution. Trustee William J. Moore answered "pass" when his name was called. Later, Moore explained that he thought the resolution was a meaningless gesture because Barrett, a Democrat, would be able to delay until there was less than a year of the unexpired term remaining, when the post could be filled by appointment of a Democrat.

A separate resolution was passed unanimously, which offered congratulations to Judge Dahl on his election, and extended best wishes to him in the office of Superior Judge.

COMPOUNDING THE PRESCRIPTIONS NEWS

With St. Nick's annual visit no more than a pop-gun-shot away, Christmas shopping activities are picking up like a fire engine going down hill. Christmas shoppers are scurrying around town, clutching lists of names and looking for that lampshade for Aunt Nellie and a cerise-and-green tie for Uncle Quentin.

I guess most families say, "Well, this year we're going to take it easy" . . . but before you know it, you begin to feel the Yuletide spirit . . . and the old austerity pledge is forgotten. However, if you don't want to get caught in a whirl-wind of Christmas Eve shopping take my advice and shop now. That last-minute crowd can be rougher than a fired-up pro football line. Which reminds me . . . I better get onto my own list.

A London, England, woman left her son out of her will because she didn't like the way he made tea. Who says you can't read your fortune in a tea cup?

Sell School Bonds, Open Dunton Bids

Arlington Heights School District 25 has sold $700,000 of the bonds approved in October, and has opened bids on Dunton School, one of the projects covered by the referendum.

Low among six bids for the bonds was the one made by a group composed of Continental Illinois National Bank, Eastman Dillon-Union Securities, and the White-Phillips Co.

The net interest rate will be 3.05415 per cent, and the net interest cost $246,470.06.

HIGH SCHOOL District 214 sold $2.5 million of bonds last September at an interest rate of 3.1046.

Many firms bid on Dunton School. There were 18 bidders for the general contract, 12 plumbing bidders, 13 heating bidders, and 12 electrical bidders.

Apparent low bidders were: general, Concannon Builders, $147,999; plumbing, E. J. Ryan Plumbing Co., $19,105; heating, Hans Jensen & Sons, $22,530, and electrical, Highland Park Electric, $19,248.

THE SCHOOL board directed the administration and architect to investigate the financial and performance records of the six lowest bidders on the general contract, and the three lowest bidders in each of the other groups, before contracts are awarded.

Because the bids appear to be some $18,000 greater than the amount budgeted for Dunton School, the architect was asked to see if there are items which can be removed from the present construction plans, and be included in future construction.

California's eight criminal executions last year led all states. Mississippi and South Carolina had five each; Virginia four; Texas and Georgia, three each; New York and Florida, two each. Ten other states executed one prisoner each. (A-14

New Low Figure

Forty-two persons were executed in the U.S. in 1961 for crimes committed, a new low figure. Total executions since 1930, through last year, were 3,766.

Dogs Are Not His

SUPERIOR, WIS., (UPI) — A Superior patrolman who almost lost his job because of the barking of dogs he says weren't even his has been ordered to return to work in the morning.

Leslie Grube, 33, had been suspended by Mayor Lawrence Hagen on the grounds Grube did not follow an executive order to get rid of two dogs he keeps at his home in Superior.

Hagen said he issued the order after receiving complaints from Grube's neighbors.

BUT GRUBE countered that his dogs were in a kennel in South Superior when the complaints were issued "So it must be somebody else's dogs they're complaining about."

At a meeting with the complainants, Mayor, and City Atorne Toby Marcovich, Grube agreed that he would try and keep his dogs quiet.

He was told if there are further noises in the neighborhood a formal complaint will be issued.

Marcovich had intervened for Grube when the mayor suspended him, saying the only persons in town with the power to dismiss Grube is Chief of Police Arthur Buchanan. (B8

Voters Approve Civic Center

Elgin voters approved a $2,500,000 civic center on a site on the Fox River.

New Rental System Is Told for Local Library's Volumes

by BETTY AINSLIE

You'll be in for a pleasant surprise if you're one who follows the new books added to Arlington Heights Memorial library.

Mrs. Mary Lee Ewald, librarian, is trying a new rental system whereby the new books are rented for three or four months and at the end of that time may be purchased at a fraction of the original cost.

It gives avid readers a chance at all the late titles as several copies are sent of each book, and also gives the library a chance to find out just what books are the popular ones to add to the shelves permanently.

"THE VOICES of Glory" by David Grubb is a little slow on the take-off but develops into a different and well told story. The people of the small town of Glory are seen through the eyes of a Public Health Service nurse.

Hammond Innes is an excellent writer—remember the book "The Wreck of the Mary Deare?" His latest called "Atlantic Fury" is another rip-roaring sea story of a certain landing craft and its fight with the elements in the islands of the Hebrides.

"Charles," a book by Victoria Lincoln, is a novel inspired by events in the life of Charles Dickens. It is fictitious, to be sure, but chockfull of events in London during and before the time of Queen Vicotria.

CHARLES, THE writer, was handsome and witty and a genius to be sure, but rather a tragic figure because of a futile love affair, wrong marriage and a father who constantly kept himself in debt.

Life as seen through the eyes of an 18-year-old girl can be a series of heights and plunging depths, full of heartbreak one minute and as funny as a puppy the next. An unusual glimpse into one family and a young girl's reaction to love, marriage and people in general is contained in the book "All the Tea in China" by Katherine Topkins.

The young girl story teller is melodramatic, eager, sincere and just plain fun. Her thoughts will make you remember your own when you were a teenager.

PAUL GALLICO'S latest is a thin book full of humor and pathos called "Coronation," a story of the Clagg family who went to the coronation. A day full of disappointments and bitterness and what each member of this English family learned that day is the tale of the tiny but completely enchanting book.

A new book by Margery Sharp called "Miss Bianca" will probably take its place with books like "Winnie the Pooh" or "Wind in the Willows." This story of a mouse, a little girl and a wicked Duchess is a sort of Cinderella tale with embellishments of clever pen and ink drawings. The main character is a mouse who takes it upon himself and the World Wide Mouse Organization to rescue the girl. (A

Luth. Churchwomen Set Christmas Lunch

The Lutheran Churchwomen of Our Saviour Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, will hold their annual Christmas luncheon at 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, in the church.

Mrs. James Harris, wife of the associate pastor of Northminster Presbyterian Church, Evanston, will give the program, "Love Came Down at Christmas." In this program she will combine Christmas narrations and organ and piano music. Assisting her at the organ will be Mrs. Marilyn Woodman and participating in a trio will be Mrs. Herbert Ewald, Mrs. Robert Wolff and Mrs. Jerome Downing, accompanied by Mrs. Edward Peterson. Mrs. Charles Rausch will be soloist.

MRS. HARRIS has been organizing and presenting programs of this type for 25 years. She is a graduate of Hastings College, Hastings, Neb. and has done graduate work at Dillard-Quail in New York City.

Prior to her marriage, she was a high school music teacher. She has been choir director and organist at numerous churches.

Mrs. H. Richard Jones, chairman, and representatives from each of the four circles will prepare and serve the luncheon. Mrs. Kenneth Kuenstler, chairman of Circle 3, will provide the table decorations. (A

'Over 50' Club Has Luncheon

Members of the Over 50 Club of Arlington Heights went to Aunt Jemima's Pancake House for lunch last week.

After the lunch, the group returned to Pioneer Park Fieldhouse to hear a lecture on London Bridge given by one of the members, S. P. Mulley, an old time resident of Arlington Heights. Through lengthy research he was able to construct an accurate model of the bridge which he used in connection with his talk.

The next meeting will be held at 10:30 a.m., Dec. 13. All members and persons interested in joining the group are invited to be present. (A

Integration Is Topic Of Holy Name Speaker

"Integration Comes to the Northwest Suburbs," will be discussed Sunday morning, by Dr. Paul Mundy, Loyola University sociologist, at a meeting of the Our Lady of the Wayside church Holy Name Society in the parish hall.

"Integration is not merely a remote future possibility," says Dr. Mundy. "It is a fact here and now. The northwest suburbs of Chicago are now in the process of integration. As residents we may react with violence, we may flee, or we may act as mature Christians and face the fact with intelligence and charity."

THIS IS THE heart of Dr. Mundy's message, based not on academic theory but on practice. A resident of Glenview, Dr. Mundy was engaged as a consultant by the newly formed Skokie Commission on Human Relations in 1961 after the first outbreak of violence in that Northwest suburb two years ago when the first Negro family moved in.

Subsequently two more Negro families came to Skokie, one in January of this year, the other last month. In both cases there was neither violence nor flight — "nor any loss in property values for the neighbors," Dr. Mundy states.

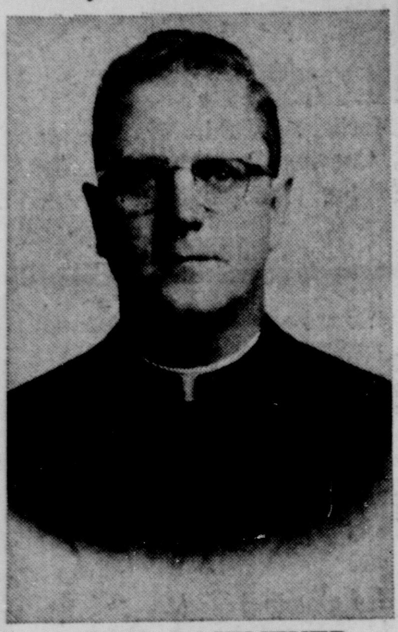
Dr. Mundy's talk, then, is basically the story of the integration of Skokie, told from the point of view of a citizen who actively participated in preparing the community for an inevitable social change.

DR. MUNDY, on the faculty of Loyola University since 1951, received his Ph.D. degree in sociology from the Catholic University of America in Washington, D. C., after doing his undergraduate work at the University of Scranton. He is also a consultant on human relations to the National Conference of Christians and Jews and a lecturer in the human relations training program of the Chicago police department.

Preceding his talk there will be a brief business meeting and communion breakfast for members of the Holy Name Society, according to Oreste Tomei, president of the organization for all men in the parish. There will be no admission charge, he said.

Services at St. James Announced

Rev. Richard A. Rosemeyer will conduct the St. James Catholic Women's Guild Day of Recollection Sunday, Dec. 9, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m., at the church, 821 N. State Road, Arlington Heights.



FATHER ROSEMEYER

Father Rosemeyer attended St. Mary of the Lake Seminary and was ordained in 1948. The first parish he was assigned to was St. James, from 1948 to 1952.

In 1952 Father Rosemeyer left for Gregorian University in Rome, where he was assigned to post graduate studies in canon law.

In 1954, after completing his studies, he was assigned to the matrimonial court of the Chicago Archdiocese, where he is now acting as prosynodal judge, and is in residence at St. Jerome parish, 1709 Lunt Ave., Chicago.

Meter Moratorium Aired with Board

Parking meters in downtown Arlington Heights will be covered during the two weeks before Christmas if merchants agree to reimburse the village for revenue lost, the village board told a Chamber of Commerce spokesman Monday night.

Jack Walsh, of the Chamber's executive committee, inquired if the trustees would agree to a Yule parking meter moratorium.

Trustee William E. Sauer then asked Jack Siegel, village attorney, what could be done under the revenue bond ordinance governing the parking meters. Siegel said the ordinance required that a reasonable charge be made, but said that it could be paid by a group of merchants instead of by motorists.

THEN TRUSTEES approved a motion that Village Manager L. A. Hanson be authorized to cover the meters if the Chamber of Commerce agrees to cover the cost as determined by Hanson.

Walsh said the merchants wanted to compete on the best possible terms with nearby shopping centers.

Ed Landwehr, of Landwehr TV, 218 N. Dunton St., said business had increased sharply in his block since merchants began paying the cost of parking meters so that their customers could have free parking. (A

Q. When writing a thank-you note to a relative who has sent a check as a birthday gift, is one required to mention how the money will be used?

A. While this is not exactly required, it still is a nice thing to do and seems to indicate a more genuine pleasure over the gift.

Plan Discussion For Women

Women's Fellowship of the Congregational Church of Arlington Heights will meet Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Kenneth Martin, 3710 Meadow Drive, Rolling Meadows.

All women of the church are invited to hear the program, a seasonal program on the "Meaning of Christmas," which is to be an open discussion led by Rev. W. Rowland Koch, 1710 W. Grove, Mrs. Robert Staley, 1525 N. Kennicott, Mrs. Donald Swanson, 316 N. Yale, and Mrs. Frank Livermore, 315 N. Yale. Mrs. Charles Aldag, 101 N. Yale is in charge of devotions.

Co-hostesses are Mrs. William Koch, 204 S. Harvard, and Mrs. Paul La Plant, 630 S. Evergreen.

Holiday Cookery Is Program Theme

"Holiday Cookery" will be the theme of the program to be presented at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 13, to members of St. James Women's Guild, Arlington Heights, when they meet in the school hall.

Miss Ruth J. Williams, food and homemaking consultant, will be featured speaker and demonstrator for this program. A variety of foods for entertaining and special occasions will be demonstrated as well as dishes for the home folks. For the weight watchers there will be low calorie dishes and suggestions for easy cutting of calories in meal planning.

SIMPLE directions for making vegetable flowers, salads and easy-baking ideas will also be on the agenda, and printed recipes will be given to those in attendance.

Miss Williams attended Indiana State Teachers College and Illinois Institute of Technology. She was educational director of the Wesson Oil Co. for 20 years and has traveled throughout the country in her work in the food industry. Her work has included lectures, cooking schools, radio and TV programs along with general consumer services.

All members of the guild are invited to bring a guest to the program. (A

Eastwood Events

Happy birthday wishes were extended to Mr. L. M. Gustafson last Monday night at a family dinner party. Although his actual day to celebrate was Dec. 2, his daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Newquist, with Kristin and Kenneth, came for the festivities at the Gustafson home at 211 N. Beverly on Monday evening.

Another recent birthday that was well celebrated was Karen Ellertson's, who reached her teens on Thanksgiving day. Nineteen guests gathered at the Woellert Ellertson home on E. Euclid Ave. on that day for the dual honoring of Thanksgiving and Karen's 13th year.

Recent week-long visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Gavin of 912 E. Euclid Ave. were Mrs. Gavin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Unland of Minneapolis. Many of their plans, including a trip to the Loop to see "Mary, Mary," had to be curtailed due to a spell of illness suffered by Mr. Unland, but visiting and seeing the grandchildren made up for all the missed entertainment.

SYMPATHY FROM all their neighbors is extended to the Edgar Neas family of N. Brighton Place on the death of Mrs. Neas' father, Fred Hedbloom, who died last Friday in St. Matthew's home in Park Ridge. Mr. Hedbloom, who was 90 years old, was buried in Evanston on Monday.

Sadness is also felt in another Brighton Place home. Russell Dyer, father of Mrs. George Westby, died on Oct. 30 after an 8-week stay in the hospital. Grandpa Dyer, as he was known to all the neighborhood, was buried in Pleasantville, Iowa. Mr. Westby had just left for New York the day before Mr. Dyer died, but as he could not be reached en route, he flew back home immediately on his arrival in the East.

DEEPEST condolences go to the family of 10-month old Bobby Foster who died of complications from flu the day after Thanksgiving. All their neighbors join in extending their heartfelt sympathy on their great loss to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Foster of N. Douglas Avenue, and to 6-year old brother, Timmy.

Bill Hankley of N. Hickory Avenue has been granted a graduate assistantship to work toward an MS in the field of electrical systems engineering at Northwestern Technological Institute. Twenty-year-old Bill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hankley, 724 N. Hickory, received his degree from Northwestern University in three years while on a scholarship.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are the new neighbors at 915 E. Euclid Ave., in the home formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Evan E. Olmstead. The Olmsteads who resided there for many years, are now living in Westchester, where they moved to be nearer Mr. Olmstead's place of employment.

Hurry - and - get - well - for - Christmas wishes are sent to Celine Scully, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Scully of Brighton Place, who is in an Elgin hospital for a series of tests.

WHEN THE Herman Raasch family drove to Ohio for the Thanksgiving vacation it was for a two-fold purpose. After spending the holiday with Dorothy's brother and family in Columbus, they drove to Bowling Green where Bill Raasch visited the university with the consideration of perhaps attending school there after his graduation from Arlington High next June.

Sandwiched in between arriving from New York on Sunday and leaving for Florida on Tuesday morning, Marguerite and Bob Scott were hosts to a session of Eastwood Bridge Monday night. Guests were the Dick Evans, Bob Lukers and June and Bruce McBride who subbed for Herman and Dorothy Raasch. (A

Q. Is there such a thing as being "fashionably late" at social functions?

A. I should call this "fashionably RUDE!" One should always arrive at the appointed time, or at least never more than about 10 minutes later.

High School Theatre Seats Pose Dilemma

By HELENE BRISTOL

To sit or not to sit, or to repair or to replace theatre seats, at Forest View High School was a question which plagued District 214 school board members Monday night.

During a recent tour of the school, board member George Laubenheimer (chairman of the school board's Forest View building committee) discovered the seating covers were not up to specifications.

Discovery that the seats, supplied by Arlington Seating Company, were sub-standard was a "double rub" for the school board who had taken two complete sets of bids on the seats in an effort to obtain the best and most substantial units.

IN THE original bidding, steel framework had been permitted with a quality fabric cover. Arlington Seating Company, which supplied auditorium seating for both Arlington and Prospect High Schools, was not the low bidder. In a person appeal before the board, Charles Close of the firm stressed the advantages of cast-iron framework. He pointed to the durability of such seats at Arlington High supplied by his firm.

In light of the appeal, a second set of bids was taken, with Arlington Seating winning the contract.

The second set of seating specifications called for 32-ounce weight material. Close told the board this could be supplied and possibly a better grade might be used.

IN CHECKING the seating material, Laubenheimer found the material to be about a 27-ounce weight. It was explained the color specified for the material was not available in the heavier material, but the seating firm had failed to notify the contractor, architect, school administrators or school board of the lower material quality.

Arlington Seating has offered the school district a refund of about $200 for the lowered material quality.

The board rejected the refund and the seat coverings. Arlington Seating was told that replacement of the seating material should be made. Board members stated replacement should be done during the Christmas holiday if possible, to permit full use of the auditorium during school sessions. (A

Guest Evaluators 'Assess' Speeches

Arlington Heights Toastmasters had a guest team of speech evaluators last week led by Harry Eickenberg, area governor, member of the Des Plaines club: Others were Don Schecter, Vince Chisholm, president of the Maineline club of the United Airlines, and Tom Frey and Ralph Burnett of Woodstock.

This meeting was presided over by Warren Lattof since the president, Ed Dunn was a scheduled speaker along with Dr. Henry Neumann, Bob Stein and Ed Lauing with Ed Janos as Toastmaster.

TABLE TOPICS chairman was Ralph Mollinelli; timer and ah counter, Dick Bex; chief evaluator, Al Hawkes and assistant evaluators, Stan Wanberg and Clyde Rhodes. Invocation was given by Al Butremus, and Marshall McEuen was grammarian for the evening.

Ed Dunn received the award for best speaker and Bob Stedronsky was the Table Topics winner.

Guests are welcome at any of the regular meetings held on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month in the lower level of the Arlington Heights Savings and Loan Assn. at 8 p.m. Persons may phone Lattof at CL 9-4100 for more information. (A

Kennicott Vacating Is Authorized

An ordinance vacating Kennicott Avenue between St. James and Miner Streets was passed Monday by the Arlington Height Village Board.

The passage was in accordance with an arrangement reached last fall with the park board and property owners.

A park will be developed in the area, on both sides of the vacated portion of Kennicott.

Part of the vacated portion of Kennicott near Miner will be used for a sidewalk to provide access to the park. Another part will go to the property owner to the west, to give him access to his garage. Still another part will go to the owner of vacant property to the east, so that when his lot is developed the house will face on Miner Street.

Q. At which side of a person at the table are the beverages placed, filled, and removed?

A. At his right.

Q. Must a bride's father stand in the receiving line at her wedding reception?

A. This is optional. Some men can't endure the formality of a receiving line. The father may "receive," if he wishes, or mingle with the guests.

TO EVERY COMMUNIST

This page has been sent for insertion to the editors of Izvestia, Pravda and the principal newspapers of other Communist countries, as well as to leading newspapers throughout the non-Communist world.

PEACE OR WAR? That is the question each man asks his neighbor. Every woman awaits the answer.

In a divided world, both camps armed with weapons capable of total devastation, the theory of the class struggle as well as the theory of capitalism, the welfare state, or the affluent society will prove too small, too slow and too selfish to achieve anything except disaster.

Many honest Communists know it. Too few in the non-Communist world will face it.

Our appeal is to every sincere Communist and Marxist in Russia, in China and throughout the world to join with us in the greatest revolutionary adventure of all time, whereby the root problem—human nature—is dealt with thoroughly, drastically and on a colossal scale and nations are halted in their mad, historic march to violence and destruction.

It will mean change for all. Changed economic conditions, though essential, do not change men. Decadence in some of every generation among the richer societies of the non-Communist world, decadence among the third generation of Communists in the Communist world prove it.

Too many Communists, as Mr. Khrushchev has pointed out, are too selfish to make their Communism work in their homes, on the farm, in the factory, in the nation, or in their world revolution. Too many non-Communists are too selfish to live for anything except their own comfort, their own corner, their own concerns.

Years ago Frank Buchman, initiator of Moral Re-Armament, in a speech broadcast to the world said, "Is change for all the one basis of unity for all? Can Marxists be changed? Can they have this new thinking? Can Marxists pave the way for a greater ideology? Why not? They have always been open to new things. They have been forerunners. They will go to prison for their belief. They will die for their belief. Why should they not be the ones to live for this superior thinking?"

Many people say that Capitalism or Communism, class or color are the problems.

The problem is not Communism. It is character.

The problem is not Capitalism. It is character.

The problem is not Color. It is character.

The problem is not Class. It is character.

New men with new motives will build a new world. No concept short of this touches the root of the modern malaise.

Hans Boeckler, the great president of the German Trade Union Federation, put it this way, "When men change, the structure of society changes. And when the structure of society changes, men change. Both go together and both are necessary."

This revolution of Moral Re-Armament already has bridgeheads in every nation. It is in its final phase of total expansion throughout the world.

IN AFRICA, at the time when many Africans want all white men to leave, seventeen nations have invited Moral Re-Armament to their countries. In Nigeria, Tunisia, the Cameroons, Morocco and the Congo responsible leaders say that it has already averted bloodshed.

In Kenya, hard-core Mau Mau revolutionaries were changed when they heard their white prison commandant apologize for the arrogance and greed in men like himself, which had helped to cause Mau Mau. They gave up their hate, for they saw that where black hates white today, black would kill black tomorrow. They took the all-African film Freedom, which dramatizes this answer, to their leader, Jomo Kenyatta. He said, "Get this film into Swahili. It is what our people need."

A CURE FOR HATRED AND SELFISHNESS

Dedan Mugo, the first man arrested in the emergency, saw the film in Swahili. He had returned from twelve years in prison to find that his two wives and four children had been killed, his home demolished and his land confiscated. He says, "I decided to forgive the white man, when I saw that only thus could Africans, Asians, Europeans live in peace." Together with Kenyatta's only brother, he took Freedom to 400,000 people in Kenya in six months. "Moral Re-Armament is an intelligent medicine to cure the diseases of hate, selfishness and bitterness, which confuses nations everywhere," he says.

In South America, revolutionary students of San Marcos University, Peru, where Vice-President Nixon was stoned, have changed. "To change the system is only half a revolution," said the editor of the left-wing student paper. "Moral Re-Armament is the total revolution because it changes the system and produces the incorruptible men to run it. The most reactionary man is the one who wants to change the world, but refuses to change himself." They wrote a play El Condor, portraying this total fight for social justice. Capitalists and generals changed, quit their sterile anti-Communism, and took up the fight with them. They were received with tumultuous enthusiasm by the land workers in the Peasant League country. In the port of Recife so many dockers found hope and purpose that alcoholism went down by 50%. The Director of the Port Co-operative reports, "Looting and pilfering are going out of fashion. Honesty has come in, so that prices of staple foods have been able to be cut by 35%."

In recent months Moral Re-Armament plays have been seen in football stadiums by more than a million and a half people in Peru, Chile, Bolivia and Brazil. Millions more see Moral Re-Armament programs regularly on television.

FOR WORLD PEACE AND ASIAN UNITY

In Japan on October 22nd, 1962, the Prime Minister opened an Asian training center for Moral Re-Armament at Odawara. The invitation committee for the first Assembly there includes two former Prime Ministers and top trades union and industrial leaders, who say: "In order to lay a foundation for world peace, and especially to create unity in Asia, individuals and nations must now give priority to Moral Re-Armament." Takasumi Mitsui, the President of the Mitsui Foundation, sold his last family property to provide money for the center. The aim is to make real for every Asian the words of Frank Buchman to the rice workers of Ceylon, "Empty hands will be filled with work, empty stomachs with food and empty hearts with an idea that really satisfies."

One of those leading the Assembly is Rajmohan Gandhi. He is the third generation of his family to stand with Moral Re-Armament. His grandfather, Mahatma Gandhi, who achieved India's freedom from imperialism, first met Buchman in 1915, and said, "Moral Re-Armament is the greatest thing that has come out of the West." His father, Devadas Gandhi, said, "If Moral Re-Armament fails, the world fails." Pressed by the leaders of India to take a prominent position in his country, Rajmohan replied, "Where would India be today if my grandfather had accepted the advice to return to his law practice instead of fighting for his country? Today, not just one country is in jeopardy, but the whole world."

THIRD GENERATION OF MORAL RE-ARMAMENT

The grandchildren of the men and women changed when Buchman visited Scandinavia in the thirties have written a play which gives an answer to impurity and hate. It offers youth of every nation something great to live for. It will go through Europe this winter.

In Europe, Asia, and throughout the world, the third generation of Moral Re-Armament are working day and night, without salary, to make the work and wealth of the world available for all, and for the exploitation of none.

THERE WILL BE no war if East and West, black and white, Communist and non-Communist accept a common revolutionary destiny. There can be no honest co-existence without a common commitment. Mankind's commitment must now become the rebuilding of the world. It means the transformation of society, an economic, social, political change within and between nations, a revolution so vast that everyone, everywhere, can play his part.

Human nature can be changed. That is the root of the answer.

National economies can be changed. That is the fruit of the answer.

World history can be changed. That is the destiny of our age.

God alone can change men. Lenin was a forceful and sincere revolutionary. His challenge to the century has altered the shape of our times. But it has divided mankind, and can destroy it, unless we change.

Lenin did not believe in God. He said, "Our revolution will never succeed until the myth of God is removed from the mind of man." Lenin's disbelief was caused by the actions and inactions of those who expressed their belief in God.

Nations, which professed faith, lived in such a way that they robbed Lenin and his friends of a belief in God. The way some so-called God-fearing nations live make the Communist world cynical of God today. But unbelief was a fatal flaw in Lenin's philosophy.

Absolute moral standards are a place where all men can make a start – standards of absolute unselfishness in economic planning; absolute love in social attitudes and patterns; absolute honesty in industrial and political action; absolute purity in every home. Here lies the secret of successful statesmanship, sound citizenship and lasting unity. The logical next step for the Communist and for the non-Communist world is Moral Re-Armament.

Honest leaders in both worlds admit it. The 22nd Congress of the Russian Communist Party called upon every Party Member to observe himself and cultivate in others honesty, moral purity, unselfish labor for society and love of his fellows. Emboldened leadership will pay the price of living the answer and giving it to the masses.

William Penn said, "Men must choose to be governed by God or they condemn themselves to be ruled by tyrants."

When the men of the Kremlin listen to God, He will speak to them as clearly as He would to the leaders of the non-Communist world if they were humble enough to listen – and sane enough to obey, instead of continuing to do efficiently and proudly what is not the way.

From the Mind of God, adequate, accurate, definite information can come to the mind of man. Here is a revolutionary experiment that any true revolutionary will dare to make.

The paradox of history may be that this century which discovered the power of the divided atom, will learn the secret of uniting man. The Communists, governed by God, could be pacemakers for the world in the greatest revolution of all time, where all men are needed, no man is exploited, and where leaders and led pay the price of a new society by paying the price of change in their own lives.

Paddock Insurance Covers All Mishaps

There are more natural accident hazards during the winter season and the longer periods of darkness. Rain, fog, sleet and snow contribute to dangerous slippery highways, streets, sidewalks and stairways.

These unpleasant elements result in an enormous total of injuries at home, at work, on the farm, at school, at play and while traveling.

Now is a good time to prepare for such mishaps. Don't wait until they happen. You may be an unfortunate victim. Stop in at the Paddock Publications office and apply for the Emergency Protection Personal Accident Policy which contains benefits for practically every accident, whether serious or simple.

IT PROVIDES helpful indemnities in varying amounts, depending upon the type of accident, for loss of life, limb or sight, total disability, first aid, ambulance, hospital and X-ray.

This essential and low-cost personal accident protection program was adopted by Paddock Publications with the purpose of assisting subscribers and their family household members when those unexpected accident expenses arise.

Rare Money Display

Starting Friday, Dec. 7, First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Des Plaines will have one of the nation's unique money collections on display in its lobby. Known as "Strange Money of the World," the valuable collection of odd and curious types of money will be on display for 11 days.

Visitors, school groups and clubs are invited to come in and see this educational money exhibit at 749 Lee Street in Des Plaines.

THE MONEY items dating to 4000 B.C., from all over the world, are the prized collection of Philip More of Evanston. More, one of the country's leading numismatists, has spent many years in acquiring these items.

The featured item of the group is 30 pieces of silver from the time of Christ, with a sculptured bronze hand of Judas. This was a prize winning display at the national numismatist convention in Detroit early this year. The silver coins could very well be some of the original 30 pieces.

J. A. EAGLESON, president of the Association, believes this rare collection will create new savings and loan business.

"Money is and has always been buying power and security, and we feel this exhibit will provide an interesting history" stated Eagleson.

The entire exhibit will be encased in glass and on exhibit during regular business hours. A police guard will be on duty while the collection is on display. Dec. 18 will be the last day of the exhibit. (A14

Legislators to Face Rough Struggle Over State Remap

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — Illinois political figures of both parties already are preparing themselves for what may be the roughest struggle of the 1963 regular session of the state legislature.

Party leaders are pondering over state maps and census figures — checking out various proposals for the mandatory reapportionment of the House of Representatives.

If past reapportionment issues are any guide the fight in the next General Assembly will be a no-holds-barred blood-letting in which anything goes. The only ground rules are those laid out by the state constitution, particularly the 11th amendment, which became law in 1954.

If either party decisvely wins the fight, it stands a good chance of controlling the house until 1975.

TWO COUNTIES, Lake and Du Page, may be split into two representative districts each. Seventeen present districts will have to be enlarged or combined, since their populations in the 1960 census are under the constitutional minimum.

The 11th amendment, passed in 1954, says "as nearly as is practicable," representative districts shall be drawn according to a ratio determined by dividing the population of the state by 59 — the number of representative districts. No district may have less than four-fifths of the representative ratio.

On the basis of the 1960 population, each district should be "as nearly as is practicable" to 170,867 persons. No district may have less than 136,694 persons.

The 1960 population of DuPage County was 313,459 while Lake County had a figure of 293,656. Both counties could be split into two districts, well over the minimum.

SEVEN OF the districts under the minimum population are in Chicago — the 11th, 12th, 17th, 20th, 21st, 28th and 29th. All are in or near the core of the city and all have been hit hard by the exodus to the suburbs. Some of the districts have been the scenes of giant urban renewal projects.

Two suburban Cook County districts — the third and the fourth — also are under the minimum. These districts, huddled up against the west city limits of Chicago, include the communities of Cicero, Berwyn, Oak Park, Riverside, part of River Forest, part of Stickney and part of Proviso.

With one exception, the other districts under the legal minimum are in eastern or southern Illinois.

The 40th district in northwest Illinois, made up of Lee, Henry, Bureau and Stark Counties, is the exception.

The other "too-small' districts are the 45th, 51st, 56th and 59th — bordering the Indiana line all the way to the southern part of the state; the 58th which runs along the Mississippi from southern end of St. Clair County to Cairo on the Ohio River; and the 57th and 55th, lying in the interior of south central Illinois.

THE DISTRICTS may not cut through county lines unless the county is entitled to more than one district (Cook, DuPage and Lake Counties).

If the legislature cannot agree on reapportionment, the state central committee of each party will submit to the governor lists of 10 names. The governor will appoint five persons from each list to a reapportionment committee which will be charged with redistricting the state.

Any plan receiving the votes of seven members of the committee will become law.

If the special committee cannot agree within four months, it will be discharged. The constitution says at the next election all candidates for state representative and all candidates for senate seats up for re-election wil run at large.

The next General Assembly regular session then would begin reapportionment attempts all over again. (A14

December Ambles in Accompanied by Spring Fever Bug

Last week's weather was considered balmy in more ways than one and December ambled in, swinging a golf club instead of the expected snow shovel. Although it's usually the pre-Christmas rush that causes an after-Thanksgiving social lull, this year spring fever could be partly to blame.

One of the unusual by-products of the recent "heat wave" is the Henry Wists' finding their roses threatening to bloom when they came home from Florida last week. The family, including Nita, a Purdue University junior, spent Thanksgiving and the week around it in the sunshine state and came home to 837 S. Vail last Wednesday to a climate almost like the one they'd just left.

They flew to Jacksonville just before Thanksgiving, then rented a car and enjoyed a leisurely motor trip through Cypress Gardens, Cape Canaveral to Key Biscayne. During their stay, they visited former Arlington Heights neighbors, the George Kohlers in Pompano Beach, who like Florida best when old friends drop in.

MR. AND MRS. Charles Rehfeldt and Cheryl, 315 N. Pine, didn't mind either, the spring-like weather that greeted them here upon their return from a 3-week trip to California. They took the scenic Painted Desert-Grand Canyon-Petrified Forest route to Los Angeles where the Rehfeldts' daughter, Charlene, now works and makes her home. A 10-day visit with her included side trips to Disneyland and other nearby attractions.

Then the family, this time complete with Charlene, went to Phoenix, where they enjoyed the Thanksgiving weekend together before returning home, Charlene in one direction, her parents and sister in the other.

The Rehlfeldts now are looking forward to Dec. 15 when their son, Chuck, arrives for a 2-week holiday from Norwich Military Academy in Vermont.

THE JUNIOR Thomas Roberts family of Lafayette, Ind. left here early last week after a Thanksgiving visit at 506 S. Chestnut with Mr. Roberts' parents. Tom is a senior in Purdue University.

The past weekend Mr. and Mrs. Roberts Sr. were part of a family reunion party given by Mr. Roberts' father in Exmoor Country Club. Among the host's 20 guests, all his children and "children-in-law", was his son, William, with his wife, here from Woodside, Calif. for the reunion, and off again Monday en route a trip to Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rothers, 710 S. Walnut, were hosts Saturday night at a buffet supper party that was intended as an "opener" to the holiday season. Because of the weather it could have been a welcome-sweet - springtime party, but whatever the reason or the season, everyone enjoyed the relaxing, between - holidays evening. Rothers' guests were a compatible combination of 50 long-time, non - local friends and not - so - longtime local friends.

The Donald Armstrongs, 907 S. Dunton, and the Robert Pomeroys, 103 E. Orchard, share a mutual wedding date and celebrate their anniversaries together each year. This year, the 12th for the Armstrongs and the 14th for the Pomeroys, the quartet marked the Nov. 25 twice-important occasion with a weekend at the Wagon Wheel Lodge in Rockton.

MR. AND MRS. William E. Kopplin Sr., 515 W. Euclid, entertained with a family dinner party Monday night in celebration of the host's 81st birthday. Sunday the Kopplins' son, Charles, and his family came from St. Louis to wish Dad a happy 81st one day early.

Tommy Reinhard, son of the Saunders Reinhards, 801 S. Walnut, had a whee-I'm-three celebration Monday morning with five neighborhood friends. Tom's Mom, planning games for the party, had advice from daughter, Lucy, a pint-sized Perle Mesta, who suggested strewing the front yard with pennies for the guests to find.

The penny hunt was the best part of the party, although the cake was awful good, too. Mothers of Tom's friends came for "coffee and" as the party was in its final stage, and all of his guests were home by naptime.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Black came home to 701 S. Chestnut Sunday night after vacationing in Tucson with Black's sister and her family, the John Myers, and with their mother, Mrs. M. E. Black. The local Mrs. Black left here just before Thanksgiving to join her husband who had preceded her by a week so that she, too, was part of the family holiday celebration.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Wright, 301 N. Derbyshire, returned Saturday from a 4-day stay in Greenwich, Conn. where they spent most of the time inspecting and approving the construction of a new home they expect to occupy early in February.

They missed saying a final goodbye to neighbors, the Robert Halls, who left 226 N. Derbyshire Friday for a new home in Des Moines. Earlier farewells had been said at goodbye-we'll miss-you parties for the Halls.

The junior Malvin Rygh at 215 S. Donald was 11 years old Friday and gladly waited until the next day to celebrate with eight local buddies. Saturday there was a matinee at the local theatre and after a festive birthday luncheon in the Rygh home, Mal took his guests to Walt Disney's ever-popular addition to a Saturday afternoon birthday party.

Mal received birthday congratulations a bit early from his Grandpa and Grandma Ryhg, Uncle Leonard Rygh and his family, who all were here from Des Moines for the long Thanksgiving weekend.

THE LEWIS Browns, 509 S. Chestnut, recently returned from the Golden Isles of Georgia and from Miami, Fla. where they spent 10 days. The trip was partly pleasure, partly on business and somewhat on tenterhooks when the Browns watched the vast and speedy military build-up in Florida during the Cuban crisis.

The Walter Dill family returned home to 526 S. Evergreen early last week after enjoying a Thanksgiving visit with Mrs. Dill's brother, Robert Allen, and his family in Des Moines. After celebrating the holiday, everyone rested a day, then celebrated Kathy Dill's Nov. 24 birthday. Kathy was 11.

Gregory John, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Gabrielsen Jr., 705 S. Chestnut, was recently christened in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church and the occasion was marked later with a family celebration in the Gabrielsen home. Among the guests were the baby's grandparents, the senior George Gabrielsens and the E. J. Martins, all of Chicago, and his godparents, Larry Smith and Mrs. James Clark, local family friends.

A DINNER party for 18 in the Carl Bowen home, 115 W. Central Road, last night celebrated the birthday of the host and that of one of the guests, Stephen Jurco. Other guests were local friends, all full of advice to the birthday boys on how to grow old graciously. The advice was graciously accepted and quick-frozen for use in the distant future.

Mr. Jurco's birthday was also marked by a dinner party Sunday in his home at 217 S. Windsor, when guests included Judge and Mrs. John Gutknecht and their niece.

Mrs. Tommy Thomas, 1233 W. Sunset Drive, returned Saturday from a week's visit in Birmingham, Ala., minus the Thomas' eldest daughter, Mary Elizabeth, who is now making her home and working with cousins there. Mary and her mother left here about a month ago for Cookeville, Tenn. where Mary stayed on after Mrs. Thomas ended a week's visit with relatives.

After Thanksgiving, Mrs. Thomas returned to Cookeville to take her daughter to Birmingham. There are now tentative plans at 1233 W. South for everyone to stay put for a little while.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Born 1007 E. Olive came home Saturday from a sunless, but fascinating week in Ormond Beach, Fla. where the Atlantic storm resulted in fantastic high tides and mountainous waves. The Borns' hotel room faced the ocean and the panoramic view was just a whisker away from being frightening.

FORMER Scarsdale Estates residents, the Edward K. Raicherts, who now reside in Scottsdale, Ariz., recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with an open house for 70 guests in their home at 6243 E. Calle Rosa. With them were their son, Ronald, who is in business with his father, another son, Leslie, an elementary school pupil, and their daughter, Beverly, a sophomore at Arizona State University.

The Raicherts were married Thanksgiving Day, 1937, in Chicago and moved from Arlington Heights three years ago. At that time they also moved their Industrial Sewing Machine Company business and factory from Chicago to Phoenix.

ONE OF THE first Christmas parties of the season was given Saturday by the Robert E. Mitchells, 330 S. Gibbons. A decorated Christmas tree and a real Santa Claus quickly put guests in a festive mood.

Pfc. Philip Gustafson arrived home Sunday for a 2 - week leave from Fort Devens, Mass. Phillip is the son of Mrs. Melvin Gustafson, 332 S. Windsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Milbourn Sr. of South Bend were in Arlington Heights for the weekend, visiting their daughter and family, the Thomas Hamiltons, 111 S. Dryden. During their stay, they celebrated a grandson's first birthday, that of Richard Milbourn, young son of the Thomas Milbourns of Buffalo Grove at a party given by the Hamiltons.

At a small family gathering, Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Koenig, 1312 Woodford, marked the third birthday of their youngest daughter, Kate. Kate was the second baby born in the new Northwest Community Hospital.

Present at the family gathering were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Koenig of Itasca and her great - grandmother, Mrs. Caroline Stoike.

MR. AND MRS. Carl Gran, 221 S. Derbyshire, celebrated their 21st wedding anniversary Saturday at a dinner party given by their Stonegate friends and neighbors, the Frank Krolls. Also receiving congratulations was the Grans' son, Stephen, on his 14th birthday.

Miss Betty Ball, daughter of the William Balls, 454 Banbury, entertained 25 friends on a hayride party followed by supper in Barrington Sunday.

The James Suttons, 627 S. State, and their daughter, Shelley, recently returned from East Orange, N. J., where they spent a week visiting Mr. Sutton's parents, the senior James Suttons, and other family members.

Mrs. Louis Crouchet of Slidell, La., is spending a month in Arlington Heights visiting her sister and brother-in-law, the Harold Grosses, 930 S. Beverly. Mrs. Crouchet, an ardent antique collector, has enjoyed several successful shopping expeditions in this area.

Several birthday parties will be celebrated over the weekend. Debby Graham daughter of the William Grahams, 508 S. Lincoln, will be 12 Dec. 8, and will mark the event with a Japanese dinner at the Imperial House in Chicago. The Grahams' younger daugher, Mary Pat, who will be 4 Dec. 14, will have a traditional children's party.

THERE WILL BE a family gathering Sunday at the John A. Gustitus home, 400 S. Dryden, in honor of their son, John, who will be 19 Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Ferry, 637 Bristol, will welcome neighbors at an "open house," Dec. 9 from 5 to 8 o'clock.

Recent weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edelblute, 209 S. Pine, were her niece and family, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bettine of Beloit and their two children. Another guest arriving at the Edelblute home at the same time was their nephew, Allen Jester of Dallas, who was en route to Waukeshaw, Wis. on business. It was a happy visit for cousins that had not seen each other for nine years.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Everhart, 537 S. Pine have as their houseguest, her mother, Mrs. Alice Lindaman of Houston, who will stay through the Christmas holidays.

Sunday, the Everharts entertained at dinner and among their guests were Roland Marshall and his daughters, Christine and Diane of Hasbrook.

THE GEORGE A. Glows, 603 S. Belmont, returned Saturday from a month's vacation on the West Coast, where they visited their two daughters and their families, the Clyde Brictsons of Santa Monica and the Edward Readings of San Diego, and Mrs. Glow's mother, Mrs. Charles Linnan of Pasadena.

Before flying home, they spent three days in Las Vegas.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hibner, 110 S. Belmont, attended the baptism of their second grandson Ralph William Harlander, Sunday in Faith Lutheran church, Brookfield. The baby's sponsor was the Hibner's younger daughter, Judith. The baby is the first son and second child of the William Harlanders of Brookfield. A reception for friends and relatives at the Harlander home followed the baptism.

Recent weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Hinton, 522 S. Dryden, were his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Hinton of South Bend.

MR. AND MRS. Fred Utterback, 116 S. Pine, are home from a 2-week motor tour through Florida. While driving through Lakeland, they stopped to call on a former Arlington Heights neighbor, Mrs. Myrtle Baxter, who persuaded them to spend a few days with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Thompson, former residents, arrived here from Wisconsin Monday for a visit with the George N. Habens, 616 S. Belmont. They plan to leave Saturday for Los Angeles to visit their daughter and son-in-law, the Eugene Manleys.

Measuring the audience

The performer who is more interested in the size of the audience than in the number of curtain calls spends most of his time looking for work.

The successful performer recognizes that only effective efforts build responsive audiences. He seeks applause.

The same might be said for newspaper editors.

We must serve and satisfy the editorial needs and interests of people in our area. The validity of this circulation audience and the applause readers give us is registered by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

ABC-audited paid circulation facts measure readers response in such terms as how much they pay to receive copies, how many copies they buy, where they live, and how their copies are delivered.

As a member of this independent circulation auditing organization, we recognize the power of reader confidence — that they have chosen to be a member of this paying audience of their own volition, and that they will continue to do so only as long as we effectively serve them.

For advertisers, the significant differences between counting the audience and measuring the applause is reader response.

What makes a NEWSPAPER SELL SELL SELL??

(14,000 copies per week on newsstands)

Readership - Impact Interest . . .

Whether they buy it for the classifieds, the pictures or the front page, it's a cash, commercial, conclusive, convincing fact that PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS SELLS 14,000 COPIES ON NEWSSTANDS EACH WEEK!

That means in addition to the 21,000 families receiving the paper by mail, over 14,000 persons purchase one of the Paddock Publications each week.

Advertisers know results speak for themselves, and the publishers are proud to report a record high of 6,529,432 votes (agate display linage) cast during 1961.

High Readership is the key - - -

Editorials — The editors may not always agree, but readers know the paper's stand.

Fence Post — Everyone has his chance to voice his opinions.

Design for Living — Best buys in well-established homes offered here, as well as a myriad of services for the home.

Business Briefs — Promotions and news of the business world at local levels.

Campus Capers — Keep track of the neighbors' kids, and your own, on the college scene.

With Uncle Sam — News of those serving in the armed forces.

Sports — Bowling, football, track, basketball, golf, tennis, ice skating, wresting, baseball, gymnastics, racing — take your pick!

The Billboard — Theaters, shows, plays, dancing and dining, you name it.

Suburban Living — Especially for Women — Eggs-actly that, loads of features, smiles, thoughts, recipes, weddings, babies.

Want Ads Galore — Hottest item going, tens of thousands of calls weekly on these.

A message from the Treasury of a free people

How to help give a new birth to freedom

Sometimes it's not easy to recognize a message of freedom.

In September, 1787, the framers of the U. S. Constitution released it to the States for ratification. Two States ok'd the document in a few weeks.

But it took until May, 1790—three years later—before the new nation was in accord on its basic law.

One of the strongest documents for freedom available to you today is a United States Savings Bond.

By buying Savings Bonds you help build peace-keeping machinery. You help keep the wheels of our government turning smoothly. You help carry the message of freedom to hopeful people all over the world.

At the same time, your Bond money grows fast to increase your living standard and personal security—a goal that free people seem to have a knack for reaching.

All of which points pretty strongly to buying Savings Bonds today—at your bank or on the payroll savings plan where you work.

(Of course the decision is wholly up to you . . . another nice thing about being free.)

We the People of the United insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, prom

Deerfield Case Heard

Revenue Department Suffers Setbacks in Court Rulings

SPRINGFIELD, (UPI) — Illinois' Revenue Department has been dealt three defeats by the State Supreme Court in connection with collection of sales taxes.

The high court, in a major decision rendered last Friday, Nov. 30, ruled a 1961 law which allowed circuit court clerks to enter revenue department judgments against taxpayers who do not pay their sales tax as unconstitutional.

The state now will go back to the old way of filing suits to get delinquent taxes, a department spokesman said, and it is anticipated there will be delays of six or seven years in Cook County, where the courts are overcrowded.

THE SUPREME Court also upheld a lower court ruling to condemn land in Deerfield, Ill., where a construction firm had wanted to build homes for Negroes.

The court decision held the action by Deerfield officials to condemn the land for a park did not violate civil rights. "The evidence clearly shows parks are needed in Deerfield and that the land condemned is appropriate for that purpose," the high court decision said.

"The fight is far from over," pledged John W. Hunt, Chicago attorney representing Progress Development Corp., which wanted to build the homes. "Most likely the next step will be directed to the U.S. Supreme Court."

In the first decision against the revenue department, the Supreme Court backed up a ruling of the Warren County Circuit Court. The Revenue Department had brought suit against the Warren County circuit clerk, who along with the Winnebago County circuit clerk, had objected to entering judgments, maintaining it was a judicial action by administrative officers.

The department, however, held the law merely eliminated the step of filing court suits against a taxpayer. The department said "it appears less drastic and revoluntionary and emerges for what it really is—a more expeditious remedy for obtaining what the state had been entitled to all along."

The court also held the Peabody Coal Company's $2.4 million giant wheel excavator was not subject to the revenue department's $73,310 tax assessment. The court said the excavator, transported to the company in 57 railroad cars, was being used for a special purpose and had no resale value except for salvage.

In a related case the high tribunal ruled chemicals, sand and other materials put into gas and oil wells for "stimulation" are not taxable because they involve a service and special skills.

FOLLOWING along the lines of previous rulings, the court ordered the Johnson County Court to allow the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad to show that it was discriminated against in tax assessments.

The railroad has maintained its assessments over a three-year period were at full value while other local properties were assessed and equalized at less than 55 per cent.

In other cases the court:

—Held the Du Page County Board does not have the authority to require licensing of bartenders.

— Reaffirmed a previous stand that a policeman cannot search and arrest a suspected possessor of narcotics without a warrant in the absence of "reasonable cause."

Controversy Brews Around Public Aid

Controversy swirled anew this week around the controversial Illinois Public Aid Commission. There were these developments, as reported from Springfield by United Press International:

—The commission on Monday approved, 6-4, a general policy to pay for birth control services for welfare recipients.

—Sen. W. Russell Arrington, R-Evanston, filed a bill seeking to abolish the public aid commission and replace it with a department under the jurisdiction of the governor.

— Arnold Maremont, commission chairman, said he didn't have enough experience in government to judge if his commission should be established as a governor's code department.

— THE SUBURBAN Cook County Maternal and Infant Welfare Committee last Friday warned that contraceptive tablets might not be safe to give to relief recipients.

— Maremont Sunday told a joint Negro appeal dinner in Chicago that too many Negroes "have accepted the paternalism of the well-intentioned white citizen."

—Glenn W. Fisher, University of Illinois Government Institute professor, stated it was "gross oversimplification" to blame increasing public aid expenditures as the main cause for the state's financial difficulties.

The policy to pay for birth control services was stronger than the one offered by Maremont last month. Samuel A. Goldsmith, Chicago, vice-chairman of the commission, offered a substitute motion which made married but childless recipients eligible for state-paid birth control services. Maremont's proposal would have limited such eligibility to mothers. His plan was opposed by Roman Catholics during two days of hearings at Springfield and Chicago earlier this month.

Maremont, Goldsmith, Commission Secretary Daniel Walker, Deerfield; Samuel A. Gilpin, Ottawa; Gen. Richard Jones, Chicago and William L. Rutherford, Peoria, voted for the policy.

State Auditor Michael J. Howlett, Chicago; State Treasurer Francis S. Lorenz, Chicago; State Finance Director James A. Ronan, Chicago, and James M. Cleary, Winnetka, voted against it. (Lorenz, defeated in the November election, will be succeeded in January by William J. Scott, Evanston.)

Sen. Arrington, who submitted his bill to abolish the IPAC under the new "pre-filing" law passed by the last legislature, said he felt a code department should be headed by a director appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate.

ABOLISHMENT of the IPAC was narrowly defeated by the General Assembly in 1959 and lost again in 1961, despite backing by Gov. Otto Kerner. Kerner is reported to have dropped his support of such a bill in the next session, however, because Maremont asked for such assurances before accepting the job.

Opposing use of contraceptive tablets by aid recipients, Dr. Matthew J. Bulfin, chairman of the Suburban Cook County Maternal and Infant Welfare Committee, wrote to the commission:

"The tablet is not as innocuous as an aspirin. Many physicians who formerly prescribed it with relative frequency, now are reluctant to use it because of the unpredictability of its results."

Maremont, in his address before the joint Negro appeal dinner, said Negroes receive 82 per cent of the Illinois Public Aid to Dependent Children (ADC), yet Negroes make up only 25 per cent of the state's population.

"Isn't it strange . . . that the most effective total organization in your Negro community is political—where a special incentive is involved for those who do the job?" he said.

"What can be done to gain political success can surely be done to obtain sociological success," Maremont added.

A SOLUTION, he said, will require Negro leaders to speak out for public morality to stop relief cheaters, and also will necessitate the training and education of Negroes.

The University of Illinois professor, Fisher, who said blaming public aid programs for the state's financial woes, pointed out that public assistance expenditures made up a substantially smaller share of total state expenditures in fiscal 1961 than they did in 1946.

He said, however, that rapid and substantial increases in the state's public aid program do mean a serious problem exists. He said a substantial increase in the state's economic growth would provide employment for many recipients and yield additional taxes. (A-14

Swims River

Enters U.S. Illegally, He's Nabbed

CARBONDALE, ILL., (UPI) — A 16-year-old Mexican youth who claimed to have entered the United States illegally 13 times has been turned over to immigration officials here.

Lt. W. E. White, of the Illinois Central Railroad's special agents department, said the boy, Ignacio Morales Gonzalez, Guadalajara, Mexico, was surrendered to Immigration Officer E. W. Rosenkoetter and presumably returned to St. Louis.

The Mexican youth, described as a "nice, pleasant little fellow," claimed he swam the Rio Grande River at Presidio, Texas, on his latest illegal entry.

HE WAS arrested in the I.C. yards here by Railroad Special Agent Clyde Webb after he left his hiding place in an empty box car because it was "too cold."

Authorities said the boy claimed he had once stowed away in a jet liner to enter the U.S. and had travelled to Bangor, Maine, New York City, Seattle, Wash., and in Texas and California on some of his alleged illegal trips.

"Some of it may have just been his imagination," said one officer. (A14

Carbon Monoxide Gas Big Killer

Carbon monoxide gas has taken its place among the great accident killers of today.

A product of imperfect combustion in stoves and furnaces, as well as a component of exhaust gas from automobiles, carbon monoxide snuffs out the lives of more than 600 Americans every year.

Its most frequent victims include hunting parties in northwoods cabins, motorists who warm up their cars in closed garages and people who sit or sleep in parked cars with the motor running.

WHAT MAKES carbon monoxide so dangerous?

The answer lies in its characteristics—or shall we say—lack of characteristics. A non-irritating gas, carbon monoxide is tasteless, colorless and practically odorless, thus allowing victims to be overcome without even being aware of its presence.

One is not completely without warning, however, for as the gas works its way into the blood stream, the body produces certain recognizable symptoms.

For instance, the victim may experience a tightness about the forehead, headache and dizziness. He'll feel tired and his eyes may blur. Then there may be nausea, vomiting and a fluttering and throbbing of the heart. Unconsciousness follows and then, death.

DEATH RESULTS when the inhaled carbon monoxide replaces the oxygen in the red blood cells, thus depriving the body tissues of their needed oxygen.

Should you encounter a carbon monoxide accident, move the victim into fresh air and summon a doctor immediately. Meanwhile, keep the patient warm and render artificial respiration (mouth-to-mouth).

Though most people are careful not to work in a closed garage with the automobile motor running, they tend to overlook similar carbon monoxide dangers in the home, such as leaks in gas fittings, poorly vented gas heaters, clogged chimneys and improperly operated dampers.

THIS, HOWEVER, is only part of the carbon monoxide story, for studies show this "silent killer" also contributes to many of the 180,000 annual highway accidents caused by drivers who black out or fall asleep at the wheel (conditions brought about by slow absorption of the gas in closed cars).

It was formerly assumed that an open window assured protection from this danger. But recent tests show that sometimes an open window creates a draft which actually helps exhaust fumes seep up through the floorboards. To counteract this, engineers advise motorists to keep their front vents open also.

This sends a flow of fresh air through the car and out the window. However, when following close to another car in bumper-to-bumper traffic, or passing through a tunnel behind other vehicles, motorists are urged to close their vents. (A-14

Man Killed In Accident

ELGIN, (UPI)—A Crystal Lake man was killed last Thursday when a car ran a stop light and hit his car at the intersection of U. S. Routes 12 and 22.

The victim was Robert Sherman, Edgewood Road, Crystal Lake.

Authorities said a car driven by Bill Pinkonsly of McHenry failed to stop for a red light at the intersection, hit Sherman's car and then veered off and hit a third car driven by Frank Kramer of Mundelein.

Big Student Influx

University Growth Is Described in Survey

Continued and dramatic enrollment growth in Illinois universities, colleges, and junior colleges is revealed in a study by Director Gustav J. Froehlich, University of Illinois Bureau of Institutional Research, compiled with Sharda N. Singh, research assistant.

The state's 113 institutions of higher learning have a grand total of 253,554 students this fall. This includes 231,298 in residence, 7,487 extension enrollment, and 14,769 in home study courses.

On campus, or resident, enrollment accounts for 91.2 per cent of all students and has shown continued growth for more than 10 years. This fall's total is 7.6 per cent more than last year and 82.7 per cent more than in 1951.

PRIVATE universities, liberal arts and teacher training colleges currently have 93,716 students, compared to 76,970 in the state universities and Chicago Teachers College.

However, enrollment in private institutions is only 4.2 per cent over a year ago and 33.6 per cent over 1951, compared to 8.5 per cent growth over last year and 139.1 increase since 1951 for the publicly-supported institutions.

The six state-supported universities are increasing more rapidly than the nine privately-supported universities of Illinois. In 1951, state universities had 30,109 students, private universities 51,294.

NOW, STATE institutions have 69,598, a growth of 131.2 per cent since 1951 and of 8 per cent over last year; private universities 64,107 students, a growth of 12.5 per cent since 1951 and 3.8 per cent over past year.

Greatest growth rate is in junior colleges, Froehlich reported. Current on-campus enrollment in publicly-supported junior colleges is 42,698, an increase of 12.3 per cent over last year and 219.8 per cent since 1951.

Private junior college enrollment totals 3,576, which is 14.7 per cent over last year and 278.8 per cent more than 1951.

HOWEVER, half the growth of the private institutions is accounted for by establishment in 1961 of the Central YMCA Junior College in Chicago.

Slightly more than one-half of all the state's enrollment in higher learning is centered in seven institutions, Froehlich said. These are:

—University of Illinois, 35,681 total, 14.1 per cent of state, including 13.4 per cent of resident students, 36.5 per cent of extension students, 13.4 per cent of home study students.

—CHICAGO City Junior College, 28,539 total, 11.3 per cent of state, including 11.8 per cent of resident students, 8.3 per cent of home study enrollment.

—Northwestern University, 16,636, all in residence, accounting for 6.6 per cent of the state's grand total and 7.2 per cent of the resident student total.

—Southern Illinois University, 16,607 total, 6.5 per cent of state, with 7.0 per cent of the state's resident students, 4.9 per cent of its extension students.

—LOYOLA University, 11,672 total, 4.6 per cent of state, including 4.3 per cent of resident students, 5.3 per cent of extension students, 8.9 per cent of home study students.

—University of Chicago, 11,489 total, 4.5 per cent of state, including 3.5 per cent of resident students and 22.0 per cent of home study students.

—Northern Illinois University, 9,863 total, 3.9 per cent of state, including 4.0 per cent of resident students, 9.7 per cent of extension students.

THESE SEVEN together have 130,487 students, 51.5 per cent of the state's total. They have 51.2 per cent of the state's resident student enrollment, 56.4 per cent of extension students, and 52.6 per cent of home study students.

Chicago Teachers College, the state's only publicly-supported college, has grown from 2,089 in 1951 to 7,372 this fall, an increase of 252.9 per cent, and grown 14 per cent in the past year.

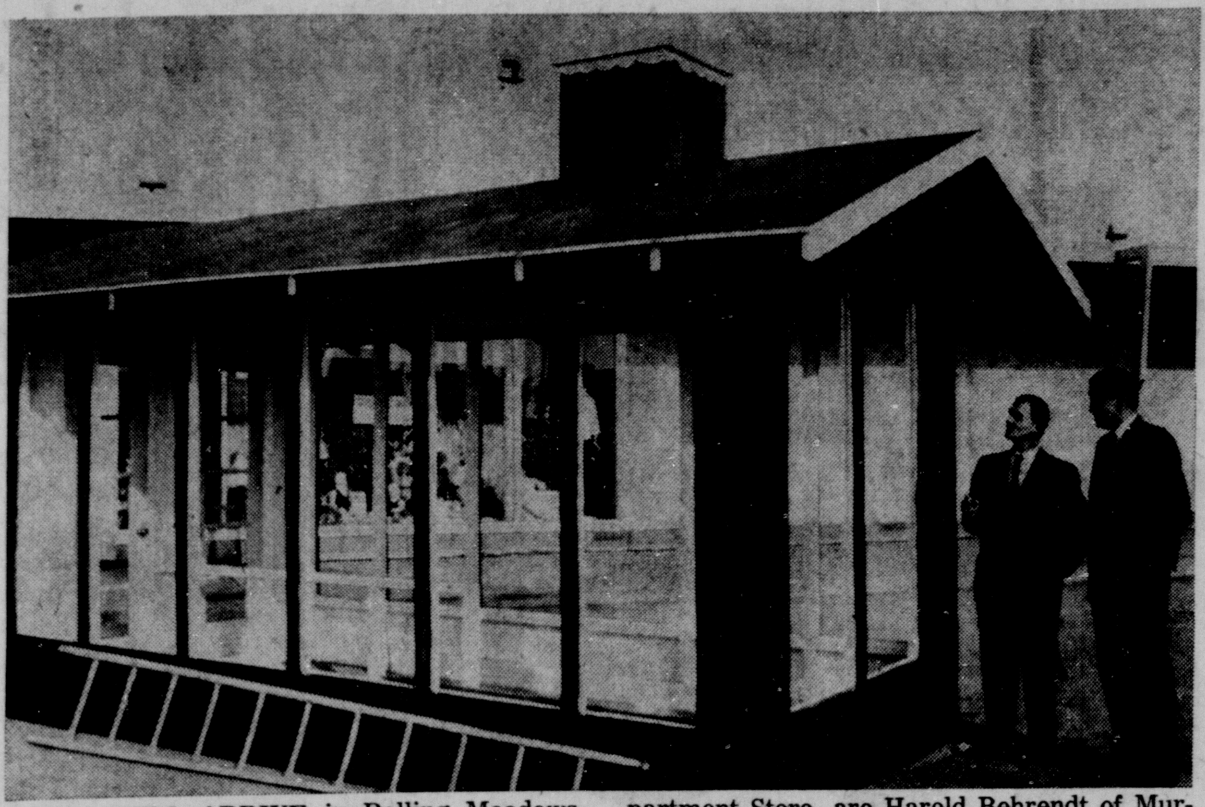
The 37 privately-supported liberal arts and teacher training colleges have grown from 18,866 to 29,609, an increase of 56.9 per cent over 1951 and a 5.2 per cent increase this year over last. (B-8

Bugle Corps Seeks New Members

The Guardsmen Junior Drum and Bugle Corps of the northwest suburbs, sponsored by Arlington Heights VFW Post 981, is enrolling new members for 1963 competition.

The corps, which offers members an outlet for new friendships and travel during the summer months, is presently screening boys between 14 and 21 years of age.

Interested young men are requested to come to the Des Plaines VFW Post on Miner Street for tryouts any Tuesday between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. Information may also be obtained by phone from Corps Director, Howard Lama at 824-0218 or from Corps Manager, Richard Ledig at 827-1409. (B8



SANTA WILL ARRIVE in Rolling Meadows shopping center at 1 p.m. Saturday, to take up residence in this modern version of a gingerbread house until Christmas. Inspecting the house, located in the corner between the Bank of Rolling Meadows and Crawford's Department Store, are Harold Behrendt of Murray's Store for Men and Jim Paroubek of Ace Hardware. Santa's hours will be from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. weekdays and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. He will have gifts for all the children who visit him.

Lutheran General

Hospital Establishes Fellowship Program

A Development and Sustaining Fellowship of Lutheran General Hospital is being established, according to N. M. Nesset, president of the hospital's board of trustees.

"The new Fellowship program, which will include an annual report listing the names of all contributors of $10 and more, is being established to widen and strengthen support for the hospital's program," Nesset stated.

"THIS IS vital for the hospital to purchase necessary equipment, to meet financial problems which arise in caring for patients who cannot pay and to educate nurses and medical students," he continued. Another financial drain he pointed to was the large indebtedness, incurred in building the hospital to serve the community, and the need to speed up the time when the hospital can expand its facilities." It is widely acknowledged that funds for these needs should come from the community rather than from those who are sick," Nesset stressed.

The hospital's operating statement for the past fiscal year showed a deficit of $133,775.

When the hospital activates 22 additional beds in January, making a total of 316 in service, the building will be in full use. Largely because it has well over 700 employees, Lutheran General's operating budget for the current fiscal year is $4.5 million.

Since Lutheran General began on January 4, 1960, approximately 29,000 patients have been cared for; 5,400 babies born; and more than 28,000 emergency cases treated. (B-9

Starting Is Important

Club Gives Tips for Winter Care of Car

A glance at the calendar will remind motorists that the time is fast approaching when the temperature will dip below the freezing mark.

The Allstate Motor Club issued this warning as a prelude to winter: Learn the proper method of starting the family auto in cold weather to keep it in service during the winter months.

Car starting problems rank among the top sources of trouble for many motorists, according to the emergency road service department of the motor club.

TO HELP car owners escape the failing grind of starter motors or sickening silence of dead batteries, the Allstate Motor Club offers these suggestions for easier starting during freezing weather:

Keep your battery and ignition system in good condition. Cold weather cuts the energy in a car battery sharply, so a weak power source will not be able to start an engine when the temperature drops below 32 degrees.

Don't grind the starter. Continued use of the starter for 30 to 45 seconds puts a severe strain on the power supply. A better way is to use the starter short periods, allowing about 30 seconds between tries. After the car does start, allow sufficient time to warm up and lubricate the engine. Never race a cold motor.

DO NOT pump the accelerator when the starter is engaged. This may flood the engine with gas and prevent starting. When an engine is flooded, wait several minutes to allow the gas to vaporize before trying to start the car again.

The addition of a reliable additive to the gas will help prevent freezing in the /gas line. Some oil companies advertise this feature in their gas during winter months.

If forced to wait in traffic, shift to neutral and step on accelerator to idle engine slightly faster than normal. This will keep the battery charged and is important since a car's electrical system is used more frequently during the shorter winter days.

HEADLIGHTS, heater fan, defroster and windshield wipers often are used simultaneously, putting a great strain on the battery. Try to avoid the discharging battery (warning light on) for more than brief periods while operating the auto.

Avoid letting the car stand idle over weekends. If a car is not being used for several days, warm up the engine several times to keep the parts lubricated and gas lines free.

If an auto must be kept outside overnight, several steps may be taken to protect the engine and cooling system from freezing. Some garages recommend placing a lighted electric bulb or trouble light under the hood to warm the motor.

A NEW cold weather gadget is the dipstick heating element. Inserted in the oil dipstick opening, it is heated electrically and warms the oil and lower engine parts.

A complete fall inspection of cooling system, electrical system and engine will help avoid winter car troubles. Early installation of anti-freeze will free a motorist from last minute worries when the weatherman issues his first forecast of freezing temperatures.

The Allstate Motor Club also warns motorists to pay special attention to safe driving habits during the coming winter months when ice and snow combine with shorter days to pose hazards to all drivers.

SLIPPERY ROADS require more time to stop, and fast driving creates additional dangers to motorists and pedestrians alike.

Still worried about those freezing, snowy winter mornings when you have to get to work? Why not resort to the trick of an expert and call your neighbor. Tell him the wife needs the car and ask if he might pick you up on his way downtown. Then let your better half worry about starting the family auto. (A-14

Glass Industry

A new glass container factory opened in Taiwan by a California firm has an annual capacity of 40 million bottles and jars, 90 per cent of which will be sold in Taiwan.

Appropriate Plantings

Don't Let Tree Get Out of Its Bounds

Some trees, like the neighbors' children, can get out of bounds and intrude into your property where they have no business.

Overhanging branches and prowling roots both cause trouble. It's hard to thrill to tree beauty when a too-chummy branch brushes your car in the driveway, or a low limb over a walk conks the visitor. Stumble on a pavement upheaved by roots and you'll agree, "Tree's a crowd."

Best way to avoid such mishaps, states A. B. McKinstry, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co., is to plant trees that are appropriate for the location.

IN TREE talk this usually means one of the ornamental types that won't grow too large. If you're shaky as a judge of tree character, professional advice—and for free—is usually near at hand.

Nurseries have now developed a wide choice of ornamentals including some upright types that can be planted within thirty inches of a walk. Standard types of ornamental trees are widely available.

Far less common but highly recommended are upright or pyramidal selections of flowering crab apple, flowering cherry, blue beech, and glossy buckthorn, the latter a large shrub rather than a tree.

ESTABLISHED TREES with overhanging limbs can be pruned, of course, but this mars the charm of such graceful drooping trees as pin oak, maple, tupelo and many elms. Best avoid such favorites for close quarters.

If you already have root trouble, or see it ahead, you can have parts of the roots cut out. But be sure to feed and water to make up for the root loss. Or you can build low walls against the roots. If you have the space you can even move the driveway.

Floppy shrubbery often blocks walks but can be kept in check by regular trimming. (A-14

Remember the Home

Gift of Furniture Is Top Gift for Family

When shopping for Christmas, why not remember your home this year? A gift of furniture or furnishings is a lasting gift, something that the whole family will enjoy looking at and using.

Even if these gifts are keyed to certain members of the family, as the lounge chair for him, the coffee table for her, the vanity or bookshelves for the children, they will add to the pleasure of every member in the household as well as touch off the envy and admiration of friends and guests.

Ready to brighten your home and start off the new year in an abundance of good style and design is an array of Christmas suggestions on display at Petersen's Designer's Shop in the Elms Shopping Center, Arlington Heights.

HERE'S A NEAT Christmas package for the home — a combination lamp table and magazine rack in solid walnut in an oiled finish. It can be seen at The Designer's Shop, Arlington Heights. (B8

THESE YULETIDE ideas are big and small. . .from stocking stuffers to dining tables and sofas, from brightly colored gift wrapping with correlated colored twine to a modern all walnut bunk bed. And all are contemporary designed for the contemporary minded.

For the mantle or table, for example, will be found gaily striped Mexican cotton Christmas stockings or tall dramatic candles, dripless and in contemporary colors also available in a spray holder for real Christmas flair.

A suggestion for a "white" Christmas is white porcelain china by Raymor from demitasse cups to service for eight, or for a complete contrast, enamelware by Takahashi in old-fashioned shapes but in vivid contemporary colors as Swedish red, delph blue, brilliant yellow and turquoise.

AND FOR those who like the warmth of wood on the table as well as in the table, there is teak tableware of all kinds from bowls and trays to cigarette cups. Dining tables and chairs are in all sizes and shapes, in teak or walnut with plenty of handsome napery to go on top.

If Christmas thoughts turn to lighting, there are many functionally as well as esthetically pleasing fixtures and lamps to choose from. An especially good buy (stocked well for Christmas) is a 36-inch table lamp with cork base, walnut trim and linen shade for under $30.

If looking for an item of furniture, here are a few at random ideas . . . a compact three-drawer walnut desk by Stanley of Virginia; a walnut magazine rack, also a combination table and rack by Raymor; elegant lounge chairs with hidden adjustable features; a very modern, sculptured valet in teak or walnut, and costumers for children in the shape of a clown or baseball bat.

THERE ARE LOTS of other ideas for children, too, from Japanese games, puzzles and toys for filling stockings to area rugs in animal and toy shapes to bedroom furniture.

And for those who like to cook up their own ideas and colors, there are wicker Christmas tree card holders and round wicker cages for floral or other arrangements. The wicker can be easily painted any color.

The spirit of Christmas abounds in decorations, too, at The Designer's Shop, from the Nativity Scene with realistically painted sculptures as large as two feet high which occupies one entire window to an old-fashioned tree decorated with cranberry strings and gingerbread men.

The store is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day, except Saturday to 5:30 p.m. until Christmas. (B8

Articulation Conference

University Invites 82 Schools to Meet

Teachers, counselors and administrators of 82 Illinois high schools have been invited to attend the 12th School-University Articulation conference Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 5-6, at University of Illinois.

Goal of the conference, sponsored jointly by the Office of Admissions and Records and Division of University Extension, is to seek ways to bridge the gap between high school and college work.

Counselors and administrators will meet with former pupils, now students at the U. of I. for discussion sessions Dec. 6.

ENGLISH and history teachers will meet with members of the U. of I. faculty in those departments. English teachers will discuss their pupils' themes which U. of I. rhetoric instructors have graded.

At the opening banquet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Illini Union Ballroom, Dean C. W. Sanford, office of admissions and records, will speak on results of changes in the university's admissions policies.

Principal F. M. Peterson, Pekin Community High School, and member of the Joint Committee on School-University Articulation, will discuss needs in this area; and E. E. Oliver, assistant dean of admissions, will describe the university's new program of summer registration.

HAROLD J. Perry, head of the English department, Highland Park High School, and visiting lecturer in English, will give remarks from the rhetoric division; and Prof. Lowell B. Fisher, coordinator of school-university articulation and conference director, will discuss the university's articulation program.

Luncheon speaker Thursday in the ballroom will be Director Charles S. Havens, physical plant, who will discuss the 10-year building plan.

High schools invited to participate include Barrington, Lake Park, (Medinah), Libertyville and Notre Dame for Boys, Niles.

Shrine Club Yule Dinner

The Northwest Shrine Club will hold its Christmas dinner meeting at Belvedere Restaurant, 6012 W. Grand Ave., Chicago, on Wednesday, Dec. 5.

The club is comprised of about 700 members of Medinah Temple who reside on Chicago's northwest side and in northwest suburban communities.

President William F. Abel of Chicago invites all shriners to join the activities which will begin at 6:30 p.m. (B-8

What Is A Fence?

Former Bear Pursues Definition in Court

by BOB SETLIK

Not too long ago William "Washington" Serini was banging heads on Sundays before professional football addicts.

But, since retiring frm the Chicago Bears in 1953, he has declared a moratorium on violence. His latest encounter involves a philosophical question of sorts:

"What is a fence?"

The ex-lineman, a resident of Elk Grove Village, didn't like the answer he was given in police magistrate's court last month, and has announced his intention to pursue the issue into the county courts.

Serini's problems center around a 24-foot white wooden structure that borders the sidewalk in front of his corner lot at 500 Magnolia.

"I built it myself," he will tell you.

It looks like a fence — at least the language is limited enough so that the most disinterested observer would call it a "fence" for lack of another term.

AND ELK Grove Police Magistrate Richard Ahlgren in October ruled that it was a fence.

But Serini maintains that the structure is an ornament, "in keeping with my rustic tastes." The front of his property is adorned with wagons wheels, a wheel barrow, and an American flag.

The question is in the courts because of an Elk Grove Village ordinance that prohibits the building of a fence beyond the property line. The ordinance doesn't say anything about the building of an "ornament ahead of the property line."

THE BUILDING department signed a complaint after three neibhbors pointed out a number of alleged violations on the Serini property.

Serini and the three neighbors haven't seen eye to eye for quite a while. Differences stem from a dispute over the neighbors' children's recreational activity spilling over onto Serini's yard.

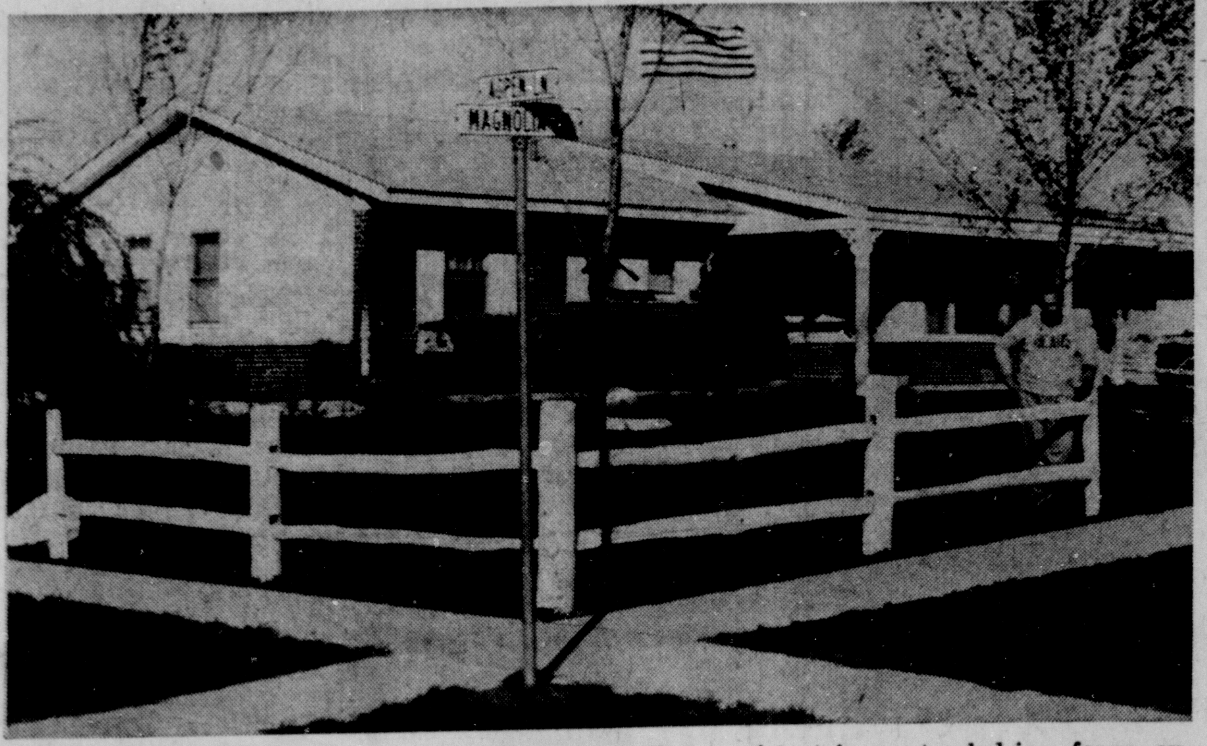
He was absolved of two of the "violations," but not the fence question.

SERINI, acting as his own defense, pleaded that the structure was not a fence because it fails to enclose his property. The structure extends 24 feet; Serini's total frontage is over 100 feet.

He cited the Webster's dictionary definition of a fence: "An enclosure about a field or other space or about any object . . ."

However, Judge Ahlgren ruled that "it is not the court's opinion that it has to completely enclose the property to be a fence."

Serini and the attorney he has hired for the county court appeal have since culled a number of definitions from law books that give definitions of a fence favorable to his view.



IS IT A FENCE or isn't it. Former Chicago Bear lineman William "Washington" Serini has asked the courts to answer this question. The structure pictured, which the Elk Grove police magistrate's court ruled is a fence, extends along 24 feet of Serini's total frontage of over 100 feet. (A14

THE FORMER football player has another argument with the village — this one unlikely to be thrashed out in the courts.

He questions the village's method of enforcing the ordinance.

"With all the other violations of this ordinance, why am I being made an example?" he asked the village board one week.

President James Gibson told him: "We have nothing against you, but a seeming violation has been brought to our attention and we are required to look into it."

TRUSTEE James Young admitted that a number of village ordinances are not strictly enforced because it would be impractical to bring all violators into court.

Serini points out that a hedge legally constitutes a fence (the building department doesn't deny this) and that the numerous hedges built along sidewalks in the village also are in violation of the ordinance.

Also, a number of structures similar to Serini's stand ahead of the property line on other front yards in the village.

VILLAGE ORDINANCES are broken every day, and, it appears, that unless you don't get along with your neighbors, little notice will be taken, Serini believes.

"If the ordinance said neither a fence nor an ornament should be built, I would have torn it down without complaint," Serini remarked.

Because the ordinance does not, the appeal (no date has been set) will give some judge an exercise in legal semantics centering around "What is a fence?" (B8

Decorative Hints on Holiday Light Plans

Residents of northern Illinois will soon experience again the beauty of the Christmas season as thousands of families extend their greetings through lighting. They find that both the inside and outside of the home offer limitless possibilities for expressing the spirit of the season in brightness and color.

Lighting engineers of Public Service Company point out that lighting decorations can be beautiful and inexpensive at the same time.

A single string of outdoor lights, for example, can be used to provide an attractive frame for the doorway or the Christmas tree window. Even less complicated is the use of an outdoor floodlamp to illiminate a wreath on the door.

A SIMPLE but dramatic effect may be obtained by trimming outdoor evergreens with silver tinsel and lighting them with floodlights. Colored lenses over the bulbs enhance the beauty.

As millions of lights are turned on, Commonwealth Edison Company and its Public Service division will experience a winter peak demand for electricity. Home decorative lighting will make up for the major part of the extra Christmas load, which will reach an estimated 300,000 kilowatts — the equivalent of three million 100-watt bulbs.

The remainder of the special demand comes from ornamental lighting for stores, outdoor community displays and other attractions.

WITH THE growing popularity of lighting and decorating the home is the tendency toward safe practices. Officials of the electric utility offer the following reminders for a Christmas without danger:

—Before use, check all lighting sets, cords and sockets for worn, broken or frayed parts.

—Keep all lights disconnected while they are being attached to trees, the house or decorative props.

—In trimming the tree, take care to keep metallic objects away from electrical connections.

—Don't plug too many lights into one outlet.

IF AN overload blows a fuse, reduce the load. Don't replace a blown fuse with one of higher amperage.

—Outside the home, use only weatherproof lighting equipment and heavy duty rubber extension cords.

Throughout the Christmas season, turn off all decorative lighting before retiring or when the family leaves the home. (B8

For Critical Problems of Area

Commission Adopts Work Plan

At a meeting Nov. 27, the Northeastern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission adopted an enlarged work program aimed at accelerating the preparation of a comprehensive plan for the six-county Chicago metropolitan area.

The commission is the official agency established by the Illinois legislature to develop plans for solving critical areawide problems in an area comprising Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will counties.

Members of the 19-member Commission are appointed by the governor of Illinois, the mayor of Chicago, and the board chairmen of the six counties.

AS PART of its expanded work program for 1963, the commission proposes to make a number of special studies needed to complete the comprehensive plan, including studies of municipal costs and revenues, land use data, sewerage and water distribution systems, suburban industrial and commercial structures, suburban housing quality, and school locations and needs.

The comprehensive plan is to include a land use and development plan, a circulation plan covering all modes of transportation; a plan for use and management of water resources, and an economic development program.

In approving the 1963 work program, the commission asked its staff to place special emphasis on initiating a metropolitan area transportation study, to be part of the comprehensive plan, and on working with state and local governments in developing a civil defense plan for the Chicago area.

TO FINANCE its accelerated program, the commission approved a budgetary goal of $555,000 for 1963. This compares with estimated expenditures of $388,000 in 1962. As part of its financing, the commission will apply for federal '701' planning grants both for work on the comprehensive plan and for an expanded program of planning assistance to counties and municipalities in the six county area. At the same time, it will seek increased funds from the State of Illinois, the six counties, the City of Chicago and 150 other municipalities.

Chester R. Davis, commission president, reported the commission has already requested an approximate doubling of appropriations by the State of Illinois and the six metropolitan counties and said that letters will be sent out to the municipalities requesting the same kind of increase.

Under its enabling act, the commission has no fixed source of income. Instead, it receives voluntary appropriations and contributions in response to requests submitted annually to governments at all levels, and to private individuals, corporations and foundations.

THE COMMISSION indicated it would work with the Randolph Commission and other legislative groups to secure state authorization for a tax levy for metropolitan planning. At the same time, Davis pointed out that, if authorized at the next session, such a levy could not become effective in 1963.

"We will welcome financing by means of a tax levy, if the legislature and the local government see fit to make it available to us," Davis said. "Meanwhile, we owe it to the future of Northeastern Illinois not to wait, but to press on to the completion of a metropolitan area plan at the earliest possible date."

"There is strong and growing evidence that the governments we serve appreciate the importance of the work we are doing," Davis added. "The work program we have adopted builds on that work and carries it an important step forward toward the completion of a metropolitan plan. It is our next task to assure the support of the state, counties, and the municipalities in taking that step."

THE COMMISSION also:

—Considered and approved proposed applications by the Park Districts of Highland Park and Niles for federal assistance in acquiring land for parks under the federal open space acquisition act. It was pointed out that the federal government has taken the position that the Planning Commission should review such applications in the Chicago metropolitan area.

—Approved publication at the earliest possible date of a publication on "Population and Housing in 1980 in Northeastern Illinois." (A-14

Cat Walks 25 Miles To Home

SAN JOSE, ILL., (UPI)—Frisky, a kitten owned by Linda Wheat, 10, of San Jose is home again—after a brief stay with Linda's relatives in Forest City.

Linda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wheat, recently gave the kitten to a relative in Forest City, some 25 miles northwest of here.

Frisky apparently didn't like the new surroundings so started on a trek home.

Linda had no trouble identifying Frisky, because one of its toes is missing, amputated after the cat got caught in a bicycle chain. (A14

Association's Warning:

Avoid Tragedy, Make Sure of Yule Lights

To avoid turning tradition into tragedy during the holiday season, make sure your Christmas lighting and decorations are safe.

This warning comes from the Electric Association of Chicago, which offers a few safe and sensible tips in using and enjoying Christmas decorations:

1) Use electric lights—never candles—on your tree, in your Christmas wreaths and in your windows. Do not string lights, however, on metallic trees. Use off-the-tree lighting with colored flood lights for safer and more beautiful illumination.

2) NOW IS A good time to inspect your old Christmas lighting equipment for safety. Discard lighting sets with broken light sockets or frayed wiring. When buying new equipment, look for the UL label that indicates safety approval by Underwriters' Laboratories.

3) In arranging lights on your tree, avoid placing bulbs or sockets in contact with or near cotton, paper or foliage. Some decorations can be ignited by the small amount of heat emitted by Christmas lights. Don't leave any sockets empty, as decorative materials may fall into them.

4) Small children have been injured by extension cord connections, so put connections out of reach or wrap them with electrical tape to keep them securely in place. Avoid pressure or friction on cords. Hang them with electrical tape or with plastic hooks or attachments.

5) IF POSSIBLE, provide a switch at some distance from the tree for turning lights on and off. The preferable location is at the entrance to the room. If a switch is not available, provide a long cord which can be disconnected from a wall at some distance from the tree.

6) When you leave home or retire at night, be sure to turn off your tree lights and other lighted decorations.

7) Don't set up electric trains around or near the tree. Tinsel or other metal decorations might fall across the tracks causing a short or shooting sparks which could ignite decorations.

8) FOR OUTDOOR lighting, buy and use only UL-approved weatherproof equipment, including all outlets, cords, sockets, bulbs and connections. Wrap any connections with electrical tape and keep the connection out of water.

9) Make sure your decorative lighting does not overload electrical circuits. Christmas bulbs have low wattages, but an elaborate display may need a separate electrical circuit. (A14

Burglar Ruins Meat Cleaver

EFFINGHAM, ILL., (UPI) — The butcher at Tolch's Grocery Store wasn't in a good mood Thursday.

A burglar ruined the butcher's favorite meat cleaver and knife last Wednesday in opening the store's cash register. Fifty-dollars was taken from the register. (A14

New Siding Gives Home 'Face Lift'

Improving an old home with new siding is an investment that can pay big dividends in appearance and protection. Proper planning and the selection of materials plus attention to detail will assure satisfaction with the completed job.

Here are some suggestions pertinent to this important home improvement job that can help home owners considering re-siding this Spring:

Use competent and experienced workmen. It will pay to deal with an established firm in your city.

SELECT A siding with one of the modern finishes for lasting low maintenance. For example, manufacturers of that old favorite, asbestos-cement siding, report that new plastic and baked-on enamel finishes produce a sidewall material that will last for years with virtually no maintenance cost to the homeowner.

Choose your colors carefully to harmonize with your roof and environment. Most modern siding is now available in a host of colors.

A recent survey, for example, showed that asbestos-cement siding comes in more than a hundred shades and hues and that new manufacturing methods insure almost permanent colors without fading for this sidewall material.

CONSIDER having the siding applied in a manner that will accentuate the horizontal shadow line. Ask your applicator about it.

If new gutters and downspouts are to be installed, have them in place before the new siding is put on. This will prevent damage by storm water.

Ask your contractor to explain the several corner treatments possible and choose the one you think is best suited to your house. (A-14

In Some Schizophrenics

Traces Mental Illness to Disturbed Body Chemistry

A chronic inability to adjust to the stress of life in some mentally ill people may be due to disturbed body chemistry.

This statement was made Wednesday, Nov. 28, at Forest Hospital, Des Plaines, by Dr. Jacques S. Gottlieb, chairman of the Department of Psychiatry, Wayne State University, College of Medicine.

Dr. Gottlieb and research associates have discovered that a chemical in the blood of patients suffering with schizophrenia disturbs their sense of reality by causing an abnormal diversion of biological energy.

Believed to be psychological in origin by most psychiatrists, schizophrenia accounts for one third of all mental illness today, it was pointed out. According to Dr. Gottlieb, such persons are "extremely vulnerable" to both external stress and their own internal conflicts.

THE RESULTS of the research were described to an audience of 150 psychiatrists and others professionally involved in the prevention and treatment of mental illness.

"Our current knowledge indicates the presence of an as yet unidentified substance in the chemistry of patients of this type," Dr. Gottlieb said.

The studies are being conducted at the Lafayette Clinic, Detroit. The speaker is the clinic's director. Thirty male patients are participating in the research, while a control group of a similar number of male prisoners, free of the disease, are used for purposes of comparison.

The symptoms of schizophrenia, it was stated, can be induced in the health group by the injection of a certain drug, causing typical "feelings of estrangement, dependency needs, progressive disorganization of thought" and the inability to maintain normal contact with reality, common in most schizophrenics.

This seems to indicate, it was stated, that a chemical disturbance underlies the disease, since typical symptoms can be induced in mentally healthy persons by the administration of drugs.

STUDIES conducted at Lafayette Clinic suggest that not only a psychological failure of adaptation but a bio-chemical malfunctioning operates as well in the schizophrenic patients.

Dr. Gottlieb delivered the third scientific lecture in the hospital's current series, speaking on the "Problems of Adaptation in Schizophrenia." A director of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, Dr. Gottlieb is also president of the Michigan Society of Neurology and Psychiatry. He has published more than 100 titles in a variety of scientific journals. (A-14

Q. Is it up to the man or to the woman, who have just been introduced, to say, "I'm glad to have met you," when leaving each other?

A. The man should take the initiative, while the woman responds with a smile and "thank you."

Square Dance Club News

PLAIDS AND CALICOS

This Hoffman Estates club will be dancing again Saturday night, 8 p.m., in Hoffman School with Laddie Oleson doing the honors at the mike. Coffee, cake and conversation follows the dancing which ends at 11.

Part of Saturday night's festivities will be the presentation of graduation certificates to eight couples who have completed a course of lessons given by club callers Oleson and Bob Kim. The swingin' 16 will be guests of honor and get the red carpet treatment from Plaids and Calicos officers and members who say to all square dancers in the area, "Come on out to Hoffman School and help welcome the graduates to the wonderful world of square dancing."

Plaids and Calicos meet the second Saturday and fourth Friday of each month with Bob Kim calling the Saturday sessions and Laddie Oleson at the mike for the Friday dances. Guests are always welcome at all club dances, so everybody come!

PALATINE SQUARES

The Palatiners dance this coming Saturday night, too, and invite all square dance enthusiasts to join them in Paddock School at 8:30. For the super-busy month of December there will be no guest callers spelling the club regulars, and Art Matthews will do all the calling Saturday night. Dot and Jerry Daniels will be on hand as usual to conduct the rounds, an increasingly popular part of each dance night.

Club officers remind area dancers that tickets for the annual New Year's Eve party dance are going fast and there is a limited supply. (A-14

Religious 'Liberal' To Speak

Dr. Arthur E. Hoover will speak at 11 a.m., Sunday Dec. 9, in the Countryside Fellowship Unitarian-Universalist meeting-house on the subject: "Hosea Ballou—Pioneer Prophet of Religion."

Hosea Ballou was a pioneer of liberal religious thinking in the colonial and early United States period. Less well known than other religious liberal leaders such as Emerson, Channing, Parker, Lowell and Holmes, the Universalist minister was active and influential in his time. Ballou was a self-educated man whose logical and articulate expression stimulated the early development of both Unitarianism and Universalism.

Dr. Hoover is an associate professor at Roosevelt University. He also is president of Gordon, Hoover and Associates, a psychological consulting firm.

Countryside Fellowship is the Unitarian Universalist church of Northwest Cook and northern DuPage Counties. The church meets in the little white former school-house on Ela Road just south of Algonquin Road. Visitors are welcome.

Upsurge in Expansion

Investment Viewpoint Important in Housing

For every $3 spent on new homes last year, industry sources estimate that $2 was spent on the expansion, remodeling, repair and modernization of existing homes.

This ratio, in dramatic contrast to that of 10 years ago, when the proportion was 10 to 1 in favor on new construction, points up the rapid acceleration of home improvement activity from coast
Upsurge in 3-24 bold
Investment Viewpoint 3-42 italic to coast.

A prime reason for the upsurge appears to be that many families, faced with the need for extra rooms or the urge for more up-to-date living conveniences, or both, have found it advantageous to expand, remodel or modernize their present homes rather than to buy or build new ones.

OWNERS ARE increasingly (and very wisely) looking at home improvements from the standopint of an investment That is, they are very carefully considering just how the projected improvements will affect the resale value of their homes.

If you are contemplating home improvements, it would, accordingly, be well for you to ask yourself these questions:

To what degree will the projects you plan increase the value of your home?

IF YOU wanted to sell in a year (or 10 years) would the improvements you have in mind be those that most people would want in their homes?

Bearing directly on such an evaluation is a recent survey of home owners which disclosed that the modernizing and remodeling projects contemplated were, in order: (1) kitchens, (2) basements, (3) bathrooms, (4) attics.

Also high on the list were family rooms, outdoor terraces, extra storage space and the modernization of heating plants.

WITH LABOR and material costs continuing to trend upward, it would appear that a well - considered improvement should enhance the re-sale value of a home by substantially more than the actual cost of the project, thus fulfilling the basic requirement of a sound investment.

For those planning to fix up their homes this year, time is an important factor. Because of the boom in improvement and modernization business expected for next Spring, the sooner such projects can be launched, the better.

Here to help you get off to a good start is a four-point program:

1. MAKE YOUR plans. Review your whole manner of living. Then determine your home improvement goals. Do you need an extra bedroom, a downstairs playroom for the kids or perhaps a den? Set up a schedule. Space your projects over several years if you wish.

2. Decide where to make your new additions. Pick a wholly or partially enclosed area if you can. Consider your attic, basement, porch, garage, breezeway or carport as possible sources of extra living space.

If you plan to build a brand new wing, make sure that your property is large enough so that the addition will not violate local building codes.

3. PICK A reliable contractor. Get cost estimates from at least three firms. Ask for the names of their local banks. Check the reputation of each contractor with his bank. Also ask for the names of former customers, especially those who have had jobs done similar to the one you contemplate. Talk to these customers about their experiences with the contractors.

4. Figure your finances. How much do you have in savings that you can divert to home improvements? Don't dig too deep. Consider a home improvement loan instead. Talk things over with the loan officer at your local bank or other financial institution.

He can help you evaluate the various loan plans that are available in terms of your individual needs and means. (A-14

For Cook County

Election Commission Legislation Outlined

Senate Bills 1 and 2, election reform bills sponsored by Senators W. Russell Arrington and John A. Graham for the Better Government Association and the Union League Club of Chicago, contain the same provisions as the bills that passed the Senate but failed by three votes in the House at the 1961 session.

These bills create a County Election Commission in Cook County, and permit the creation of a County Election Commission in any other county, which will be responsible for the conduct of all elections at which federal, state, county and township officers, and municipal officers in municipalities of over 500,000 population, are to be elected.

THE COUNTY Election Commission will consist of four members, two to be elected by the County Central Committee of the party which cast the highest number of votes for governor at the last preceding election, and two to be elected by the County Central Committee of the party which cast the second highest vote for governor.

The term of office will be two years ending June 30 of odd-numbered years. In Cook County these will be full time jobs at $12,000 a year. In other counties, the pay will be as set forth in Article 6 of the Election Code for downstate Board of Election Commissioners.

In case of a tie vote in the County Election Commission, the County Clerk will be called in to break the tie.

The County Election Commission will select a chief clerk who will not be one of the members of the commission. The commission will next choose a chairman, who will be one of the members and must be of the opposite party from that of the chief clerk.

REPUBLICAN judges of election will be selected by the Republican members of the County Election Commission. Democratic precinct judges will be selected by the Democratic members. One judge of each party may be appointed in each precinct who is not a resident of the precinct. The bills require a training program for judges of election to be conducted by the County Election Commission.

Each County Election Commission is made subject to the State Personnel Code. All employes except the chief clerk, attorney, and a private secretary for each of them and for each commissioner, will be subject to the merit provisions of that code, will be hired by the County Election Commission subject to appeal to the State Civil Service Commission.

Any political activity, other than voting at elections, by any employe subject to the merit provisions is absulutely prohibited: penalty — immediate dismissal subject only to appeal of facts to the State Civil Service Commission. (A14

Sufficient Outlets Important to Home

To operate all the small kitchen appliances, such as toasters, coffeemakers, waffle makers and electric frying pans, it is essential to have sufficient outlets to have these electric items always ready to work.

When it becomes necessary to remove a plug each time another appliance is to be plugged in, one of two things happens: the do-it-yourselfer in the house rigs up a dangerous, octopus-like device to supply additional sockets; or the not-too-frequently-used appliance ends up on the closet shelf or in the basement.

There is, however, a simple way to make certain that the electrical power in the wires is available power. Multi-outlet assemblies provide an attractive, economical method of being certain the kitchen has a sufficient number of conveniently placed electrical outlets.

CONTINUOUS outlet strips, for instance provide electrical outlets so placed that they will always be conveniently available. Among the more popular places for these strips in the kitchen are along the counter splash wall and under cabinets.

Such a system may be attached to any surface. Economical to install, it provides the kitchen with a flexibility designed to meet changing needs and varied appliance placement.

In general, a multi-outlet strip system consists of a metal channel with outlets located at predetermined intervals, from six inches to five feet, along a continuous strip. (A-14

Drippy Windows Are Not Supposed to Be

Windows often last as long as a house does, but if they're drafty, drippy, and difficult to operate, they shouldn't.

In his book, "The High Quality House," building authority A. M. Watkins points out that all windows should have built-in weather stripping so that no air can leak around the frame. Double-hung and sliding windows should be easy to remove from their frames so they can be washed from the inside of the house, he advises.

"Wood windows, in general, look best in most houses and are often preferred for this reason," he says, adding that condensation is much less of a problem with wood windows than with metal ones.

HOME OWNERS today can buy stock windows of ponderosa pine that are weather-tight, easy to operate and to clean from the inside. They are factory-treated with water-repellent and built-in weather stripping and precision-engineered hardware.

Because of the natural insulating quality of wood, windows made of ponderosa pine are warm to the touch and help keep heat in during the winter and out in the summer. This means both greater comfort and savings on fuel.

The many sizes and styles of wood windows made today help home owners save on custom carpentry. Stock units come in packages which include sash, glass and frame, all prefitted at the factory for quick installation on the job. (A-14

Proper Flue Size Can Save Trouble

Proper flue size can mean the difference between a cheerful fire crackling in the fireplace and a room full of smoke.

The larger the fireplace opening, the larger the flue must be to provide the necessary draft. A contemporary fireplace open on two or three sides will require a much larger flue since each open face of a fireplace must be included when determining flue size.

An existing fireplace that smokes can be modified by changing the size of the opening, either with brick or with tempered glass firescreens. The screens provide most of the view and transmit most of the radiated heat while regulating the draft effectively.

A SMOKY fireplace also can be caused by a downdraft in the chimney due to bad chimney location. This usually can be corrected by extending the chimney at least 2 feet above the highest point of the roof or by installing a chimney top to deflect the air currents.

The heating efficiency of a fireplace, normally about 10 per cent, can be increased noticeably by the use of a factory-made unit which allows air to be circulated in a system separate from the direct heat of the fire.

By locating the circulator unit outlets in rooms adjoining the room containing the fireplace, several rooms can be warmed. These fireplace circulators should not be expected to replace central heating systems in areas where central heat is normally used.

HOWEVER, THEY may be adequate for spring or fall heating of vacation cabins or as supplementary heat in normally warm climates.

Further information is available in Circular F7.0, "Chimneys and Fireplaces," which may be ordered from the Small Homes Council-Building Research Council, University of Illinois, Mumford House, Urbana, for 15 cents. Illinois residents please add 4 per cent state sales tax. (A-14

Q. Just what is meant by "semi-formal," as applied to the dress of both men and women?

A. This usually depends upon the community. In some places, where men customarily wear tails, then semi-formal means tuxedos for them and simple evening dresses for the women. In a simpler community, it would be plain dark blue or gray suits for the men and afternoon frocks for the women.

Electric Conveniences

Housepower Factor For Modernizing

The homemaker's skillful use of the electrical conveniences at her command begins with the basic understanding of the sources and controls of power inside the home. These are the wires, outlets and switches which determine both electrical capacity and flexibility.

Housepower refers to the total electric capacity of a house. When there is full housepower, it means that the house is adequately wired, and the whole electrical system performs unobstrusively and efficiently.

Electricity is measured in terms of volts, amperes and watts. It is available in any quantity, but if more electric power is desired in the home, then the size of the "service entrance" must be increased.

THE SIZE of the wires in the service entrance determines the amount of current available in the home; the larger the wire the more electricity it can carry all at once.

In most older homes the electric service entrance was planned to provide electricity only for lights and a few small appliances (perhaps 30 or 60 amperes). The 100-ampere service entrance is the minimum capacity recommended today by electrical authorities as stated in American Standard Requirements for Residential Wiring.

Most houses built prior to 1940 rely on one or two 15-amp circuits. Today, however, there will be a minimum of one general purpose circuit for each 375 or 500 square feet of floor area, depending upon the size of the wire in the circuit.

AND THE minimum requirement today to serve small appliances is two such circuits, to permit efficient operation of electrical appliances.

Although houses built or completely rewired in the past 10 to 15 years have the types of circuits described here, rapidly changing needs for electricity have led to a recommendation that general purpose circuits be divided into two classes: one to be used only for built-in lighting, and the other to serve convenience outlets located throughout the home for all plug-in appliances and portable lamps. A Religious Ceremony

In this season of Advent, it is appropriate to recall that we look upon each funeral as a religious ceremony to be conducted under the authority of the church. Our role is one of serving clergymen and family in contributing to the beauty, comfort, and symbolism of the last rites.

Turtle Who Befriended Kids Dies

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — Maybe because he played with children and let them ride on his back, an 80-year-old giant turtle in Vilas Park Zoo died Saturday not of a broken heart, but of a broken shell, complicated by old age.

The turtle was one of two which has lived at the zoo for a year and would give rides to children in the summer. He weighed 325 pounds. The other, a 400-pounder, is still in good shape, the zoo director said.

Normal life-span of the giant turtles is about 150 years.

Today's Agriculture

by Robert E. Hood, Assistant Farm Adviser

Education is important to youth preparing for a place in the world. In a recent speech made by Dr. David D. Henry, president of the University of Illinois, it is pointed out how important education is to our youth in order for them to make the best use of their talents and abilities.

It was pointed out there is a place in the world for the youngster who prepares for it, but the disinterested youth who can't wait to check his books more often than not becomes an unemployment statistic.

"Drop-outs" in American schools — at both the high school and college level — constitute a serious loss in manpower for the nation's work at a time when America is engaged in the greatest talent hunt in its history.

While an increasing number graduate from high school and an increasing percentage of these go on to college, a significant proportion of boys and girls never reach the senior year of high school, and many of those who do are in programs of study that do not qualify them for college admission.

Both the drop-out group in the high school and the non-college bound youngsters among those who graduate are destined to have personal limitations that will affect them and their country.

The loss is even more tragic because it is unnecessary.

Many blame family income as the cause of the drop-out problem. More and more, however, it is evident that low aspiration and weak motivation for further education are more influential factors than low income in discouraging young people from going on to school.

Sometimes lack of motivation has its origin in the family background; that is the student has had little encouragement to hold to educational objectives.

Professor Andrew Hacker of Cornell University recently made the point that students, who are interested only in getting by rather than in getting ahead, will likely continue to be getting by when they are 40 years old rather than have a chance at advancement. The boy who is now attracted by a $50.00 a week job and pocket money for an automobile and dating, will later be working at a comparable economic level. He may even have to wait longer than he expects for that first job. The unemployment rate for the 16-19 year old group is over twice that for adults and in some areas is even higher. The "haves" and the "have-nots" can often be traced to the "dids" and the "did-nots."

Those who graduate from high school but do not go to college, have better prospects than those whose schooling ends earlier. A U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics study, based on seven representative cities, showed that two-thirds of the male civilian high school graduates earned over $80 a week. The rest of the boys and most of the girls who graduated were in lower paid jobs.

These are averages, of course, and everyone likes to think that he is in the upper part of the bracket on which the average is based; but averages are at least an index to opportunity.

Every young person interested in getting ahead should realize that America is engaged in a great talent hunt, and that the talents needed are those which are largely identified and developed through advanced education.

At no time in the history of the nation have opportunities for professional, semi-professional, and subprofessional careers been more abundant; every field of endeavor is in short supply of able and trained people; from nursing to the ministry, from agriculture to zoology, from building construction to research. Physicians, teachers, technicians head a long list of shortage areas. There are some 20,000 vocations, occupations and professions, and increasingly more education is expected as prerequisite to employment in a larger number of them.

This shortage of trained and specialized personnel will continue throughout the present century, and probably beyond. It arises, in part, from the increase in population, and the large proportion of young and old that bulges at both ends of the curve of population distribution. In the years of their greatest productivity, present-day youth will have an uncommon demand from young and old.

HINTS TO HOMEOWNERS

by James Fizzell, Associate Farm Advisor

ALERT HOMEOWNERS DIAL DAILY 392-3060

Green plants have become popular for home growth because they are attractive and can survive or even grow under adverse conditions. But even the most sturdy green plant will usually benefit from proper care. Well grown plants are more attractive and will last longer than those receiving less care, and they may even produce an unusual flower. If your green plants flower, you can be sure that you have done a good job of caring for them.

SOIL. Foliage plants, like all others, need good soil. An all-purpose potting soil consists of 1/3 garden soil, 1/3 clean sand, and 1/3 peat moss, leafmold, or compost. This mixture has properties that allow water to drain properly and air to move freely around the roots of the plant and yet retain sufficient water for plant growth. Cactus and other fleshy leaved or succulent plants need a lighter mixture—more sand.

WATER. Probably more much water than by any other green plants are killed by too one thing. Too often plants are put into containers that have no provision for drainage. Planters are good examples. When water is added to soil in a planter, the plants use only part of the water; the rest collects in the bottom of the container. Eventually the soil becomes water-soaked, the roots begin to rot, and the plants die.

Use containers that have drain holes. If you use glazed containers or planters, put a metal liner with holes in it inside the container. Put the plant into the liner. You can then pour off excess water.

If it is not possible to use a liner, try setting the plants in small pots in the container or put a one to two-inch layer of coarse gravel in the bottom of the container. The gravel will hold the excess water for some time and thus help to lengthen the life of your plants.

Water properly drained plants only when the soil becomes fairly dry. Apply enough water to thoroughly wet the entire soil mass and allow some to come out the drainage hole. Be sure to pour off all drainage water, as it often contains dissolved minerals and salts that would be harmful to the plant.

DO NOT use home-softened water for watering plants. The softening process replaces the hard minerals in the water with minerals that are harmful to plants.

FERTILIZER. The best rule to follow in fertilizing green plants is to use caution. Well-cared-for plants should be repotted yearly with a good potting soil mix. The plants will then probably need only two or three feedings a year. Too frequent fertilizing can produce soft, undesirable growth and may even injure or kill the plant.

Use a complete soluble fertilizer with an analysis like 10-8-6, and mix strictly according to directions on the package. Fertilizer will not correct poor growth caused by insufficient light, poor soil drainage, or other unsatisfactory environmental conditions.

LIGHT. Green plants vary in their ability to withstand low light intensities, and most of them will not tolerate direct sunlight. As a general rule, give them bright light, such as from an east, west, or south window. But never move them into direct sunlight even for short periods, as it likely to burn the foliage.

PESTS. As a rule, green plants in the home tend to remain pest free. Diseased plants should usually be discarded. An all-purpose insect spray in an aerosol applicator is a simple and effective way to keep house plants free of insects.

Circular HG-67, "Insects and Related Pests of House Plants" is available at your County Cooperative Extension Office, 201 N. Dunton Ave., Arlington Heights, or 6657 South St., Tinley Park. It describes the most common pests and gives proper measures for controlling them.

Are your plants ready for the winter? According to a recent release from the Nassau County, New York Extension Service, winter injury is due to dehydration, low temperatures, and mechanical damage. Broadleaf evergreens are usually damaged most by exposure to the sun and wind in late winter.

The sunlight falling directly upon the leaves may raise the temperature to a point where water is lost more rapidly than it can be replaced by the roots.

Shading or screening the plants from the sun and the prevailing wind will limit the amount of scorching or burning of the foliage. This type of protection is particularly important on evergreens that are newly planted or those that are in very exposed locations. Spraying with antidessicants or wilt preventatives may help to protect against dehydration.

THEY OFTEN have to be renewed several times each winter in order to be effective. Lath and burlap are preferable to polyethylene covers. Foliage is often injured when it comes in contact with polyethylene used to cover the sides of an open top frame.

Polyethylene, etc., is most useful as a screen or windbreak to moderate local temperatures and exposure to drying winds.

Mulching and watering are beneficial to any evergreen plantings regardless of their exposure. Water thoroughly in November and December before the ground freezes. Soil moisture can be conserved by adding a mulch to the evergreen when the leaves of deciduous trees have fallen.

OAK LEAVES or pine needles make an excellent mulch. Maple and beech leaves are not desirable for mulching purposes because they form a soggy mat. Peat moss, wood chips, and salt hay can also be used as protective mulches.

If some of your plants still suffer from the winter after you do a good job of protecting them, move them to a more protected location in the spring or replace them by hardier species.

Perennials should be mulched after the ground has frozen to a depth of 2-3 inches. This prevents the alternate freezing and thawing that causes heaving and root damage.

GROUND COVER plants like pachysandra, ivy or vinca once they are established, form a dense carpet that becomes a living mulch. These plants have a lot of leaf area and will require water in the late fall like any other evergreen.

Don't overlook mechanical injury as a cause of plant loss and damage. Lack of support for vines and newly planted trees can result in broken branches and trunks and the uprooting of trees whose roots haven't become established. The weight of ice and snow loads may break branches or bend them out of shape.

Upright yews and similar plants may be spread open by this loading. Because of this spreading they may permanently lose their desirable compact appearance. These plants can be protected by tying the branches together with twine. It isn't necessary to tie them too tightly. It is always a good idea to very carefully sweep the snow off evergreens before it gets wet, heavy and sticky.

LAWNS, TOO, should receive some attention. Don't let the grass grow long before going into the winter. Keep mowing it when necessary until it stops growing. Lawns that have had snow mold in previous years can be protected by spraying in November and once or twice during the winter and in April with an appropriate fungicide.

Snow mold is the disease that causes areas of the lawns to look dirty white, gray or pinkish in early spring. Avoid excessive traffic on the lawn when the ground is frozen or muddy.

'Futures' Big Business on Stock Market

William Burfisher and Ed Cahill of Henner Brothers brokerage firm in Des Plaines, reported buying and selling commodities is a very important activity in their office in the Des Plaines National Bank Building. Both men have been actively engaged in the commodity futures markets since 1946 and are constantly kept abreast of changes which determine daily and seasonal fluctuations.

Burfisher stated that public interest in the commodity futures market is increasing rapidly. He said many persons are wary of futures trading because they don't understand it. Consequently Burfisher related the following background to the commodity futures market which has a great influence on the nation's economy.

The futures market is one which says you will deliver or receive delivery in a specified month "in the future." If you buy a future you are in fact making a contract to buy and pay in full for the contract at the specified price in the month which purchased. If you sell a future you are making a contract to deliver the commodity under the same conditions.

The speculator in short is one who stabilizes the market in the hope of making an offsetting trade at a profit in the future. All commodities are traded on margin which is a deposit of a portion of the cost to show good faith.

Both Burfisher and Cahill said that in their opinion the primary factor in assuming a position in any given commodity is that a trade be made only when the chance of profit far outweighs the risk factor. (BB

Knox Nominates Student For Wilson Fellowship

Jan Lee Rogozinski, 1219 Woodford Place, Arlington Heights, is one of 27 Knox College seniors nominated by the Knox faculty as candidates for fellowships to be granted by the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation for graduate study in 1963-64, college officials reported today.

Rogozinski, a major in history at Knox, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. R. Rogozinski. He is a graduate of Arlington High Shcool.

ONE UNUSUAL feature of the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship program is that students may not apply directly for the award. They must be nominated by college faculty members. Being recommended to the national foundation for consideration is recognized as an academic honor.

The national fellowship project was established in 1945 to recruit promising students for the college teaching profession and to support them during their first year of graduate study. The foundation awards 1,000 fellowships annually.

The grants carry a basic stipend of $1,500 in addition to family allowances and the full cost of a year's graduate study at any university of the recipient's choice in the United States or Canada.

Two Localites Named To Miami Honors Group

Timothy Roland Smith, 614 S. Dryden, Arlington Heights, and Walter Borman, 305 E. Willow, Prospect Heights, are among the 382 students at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, who are participating in the Honors Program.

The Miami Honors Program provides opportunity for students of high academic ability and seriousness of purpose to enroll in special courses and seminars devised to provide special challenge for them.

Emphasis is placed on independent study, the development of critical thinking and the development of creative capabilities.

STUDENTS IN the program are allowed considerable freedom in selecting advanced courses and in engaging in individual study projects for credit. They are permitted to enroll in designated Honors courses and seminars.

Students completing graduation requirements and the requirements of the Honors Program will be graduated "with General Honors" and will have notation of this on their diplomas.

No student may enter the program later than his sophomore year, except a transfer student or a foreign student. Any student must maintain a cumulative 3.2 grade average to continue the program. (CC

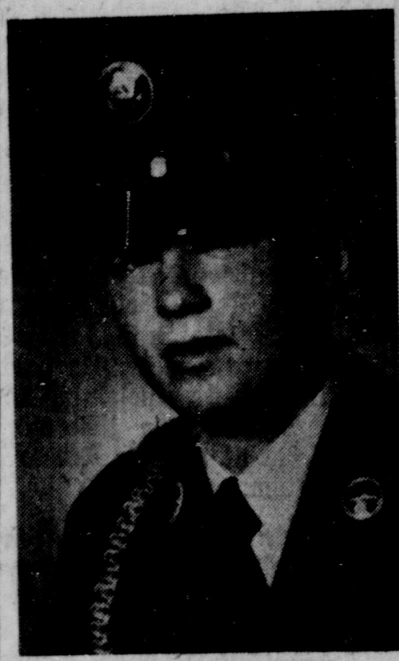
Jeffrey Peters Is 'Soldier of Month'



JEFFREY PETERS

Jeffrey Peters, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Peters, 403 N. Belmont Ave., Arlington Heights, has been selected as "Soldier of the Month" for November over an estimated 12,000 other members of the U.S. Army stationed in Berlin.

Announcement of Peters' selection was made this week by Col. Thomas J. Cleary Jr., commander of the 2nd Battle Group, 12th Infantry Division.

In a letter to Mr. and Mrs. Peters, Cleary said: "You can indeed be proud of this fine young man; he is certainly a credit to the Army, to his organization, and to the United States."

IN ADDITION to recognition as the outstanding soldier, young Peters has been promoted to the grade of Specialist Fourth Class and was presented the following awards by the Commanding General of the Berlin Brigade:

An engraved wristwatch, an expense-free evening at the Senior Non-Commissioned Officer's Club, and a seven-day administrative absence to visit the Berchtesgaden Recreation Center.

Peters is the youngest of five children and a graduate of Arlington High School. (WUS

In Thailand

Pfc. Kenneth F. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Anderson, 612 Bunting Lane, Mount Prospect, recently completed two weeks of Army Training Tests with other members of Company A of the 35th Infantry's 1st Battle Group in Thailand.

The tests emphasized the role of the soldier in infantry squad tactics through actual live-fire situations. Simulated "Aggressor" forces and actual mortar fire provided realism for the squad during the tests.

A clerk in the company, Anderson entered the Army in July 1961 and completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

The 18-year-old soldier is a 1961 graduate of Prospect High School. Before entering the Army, he was employed by Riteway Service, Des Plaines.

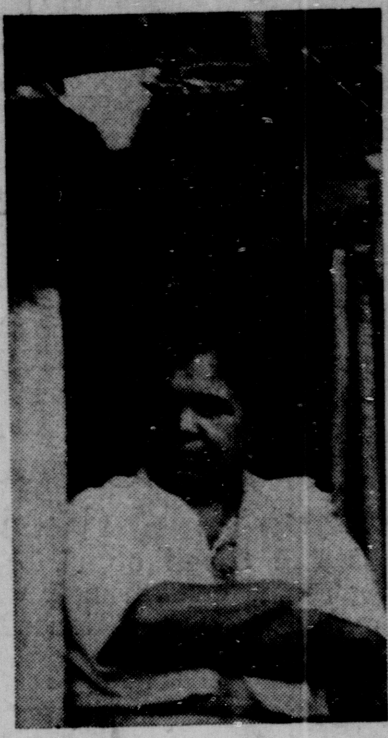
HARVEST'S END

The agricultural migrant stream that once poured north from Texas to Wisconsin is being reduced to a trickle by the new adversary of unskilled labor, automation. Ex-migrant Mexican-American farm hands, in seeking new avenues of endeavor, often find these streets dead-end because of lack of education and job skills. Paddock Publications first told their story in 1957 in the award-winning series "Shame of the Suburbs." Here, then, is their plight revisited.



by DICK HOFFMANN • Photographs by DON VICKERY

First in a series • Copyright 1962 Paddock Publications Inc.

Migrant mother and child

The wind shoulders past the faded blue curtains with impunity, rummaging through the three rooms of the tar paper shack which is home for a family of five.

The curtains are a flimsy pretext for doors. Although this day in late September is splashed with warm light, the interior of the home has a certain clamminess about it, like a cave. The feeling is reinforced by the absence of windows.

One has to stoop to enter the home of Jose Rodriguez, probably because it was never designed for human habitation. We are greeted by Mrs. Rodriguez, a friendly woman with Old World manners. She makes us as comfortable as conditions permit.

I am accompanied by Photographer Don Vickery and the Rev. Robert A. Reicher of the Catholic Council on Working Life, who serves as translator.

The first thing one is aware of is the dirt which is re-establishing its sovereignty over the wooden boards of the floor. A double bed occupies most of the space in the one room, and although the family has lived here for six years, a care-abused suitcase still sits atop one dresser because there is no place else to put it.

I am accorded the seat of honor behind the wrought iron grill work of the bed in front of a splintered mirror. Fr. Reicher and Mrs. Rodriguez are forced to sit on the bed. Behind me I hear Vickery's camera shutter click, and I wonder how he can take pictures in the poverty of light cast by the single bulb garroted on a dangling cord.

Overhead on the low slung rafters, stark in the absence of plaster and wallpaper, is a paper figure of the crucified Christ scissored carefully from a magazine. The figure is impaled through the abdomen by a pin to secure it in position.

A second room has a double bed where the children sleep. It is here that the only symbol of our era of opulence is apparent in the presence of a tacky but operable television set.

The third room is host to a sink, ice box and stove, all bearing the same tattered credentials, and huddled together as if for warmth, but actually because of severe space limitations. Outside, a washing machine labors in metallic gasps. Two drab sentries guarding the rear approach to the home are seen in the squat features of outhouses blocked against the sky. Beyond them, 100 yards distant, is where water can be drawn from a tap.

This is not the sharecropper's cabin of "Tobbaco Road," although the memory is jogged by the similarity. It is not an impoverished pocket of blight in Comas, Peru, the town adopted by Arlington Heights, although it could be.

The house is located on the south side of Golf Road across from a new Mount Prospect subdivision whose signs boast split-level accommodations, central heating, electrical marvels, and the promise of America, all wrapped in one shiny package.

The Rodriguez dwelling is characteristic of the rural slums which ring the suburban utopia, occupied for the most part by Mexican-Americans who have left the dwindling migrant labor force to nest around farms whose crop they once helped to harvest.

In most cases, the squalid housing for ex-migrants is worse than that provided for the migrant workers, whose restless gypsy existence carries them out of the Rio Grande Valley each year to chop cotton in Arkansas, pick tomatoes in Illinois, and pluck apples in the orchards of Michigan. And, migrant housing was never designed to be anything more than a seasonal roof over the harvester's head — a scant umbrella against the rain.

Jose Rodriguez resigned from roaming the earth six years ago. He leaves to others this curse which beset the Wandering Jew of forever seeking a justification to existence in endless travel. But his lot — even now — could be compared to Job's. He works for a landscaper, having relinquished his factory job to automation. He pays $16 a month rent for the hovel called home.

While he is situated at the bottom rung of the social and economic ladder, his children are inching up this vertical obstacle. Ana, his oldest daughter, now lives in Wood Dale with her husband, Ruben, and four children, in a comfortable two-room house they are buying. It was Ana, a striking beauty of 26, who was felled by tuberculosis in 1957 when she and her husband and infant son of five months lived in the one-room shack which still sits in crumbling disarray next to the cubicle her parents occupy. The old home where Ana contracted the disease is empty now. The wooden bones of the structure seem to lean against one another for support; the door gapes open obscenely, as if in remembrance of that moment.

Another daughter, 16, and a student at Forest View High School, was also a tubercular victim that season. She spent three months recuperating with her sister at the Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Hinsdale.

A later visit to the Rodriguez home reveals that the luxury of doors has been added to the shack in a concession to the approach of winter. But Mrs. Rodriguez, while her sturdy appearance suggests invincibility, is now under a doctor's care for a collection of aches and pains.

A family with 10 children live in a house just to the west of the Rodriguez residence. They are the other tenants on the Victor A. Krueger farm at 905 W. Golf Road. They are quartered in the same scant space. We meet the husband, a wisp of a man with a carefully cultivated mustache, who is crippled by arthritis. He is accepting state aid, although he is one of the few among these proud people we will meet who will take a public dole.

It becomes obvious that these living conditions violate most of the county zoning and building regulations ever authorized. Fr. Reicher explains to us: "They can't pay the rent out here or in the city for decent housing, and there is no public housing available to them out here. Where do they go if you close down the housing in which they are living?"

The story is repeated in a tour of dilapidated sheds defiling the landscape along Landmeier Road near Elk Grove Village; it is recited in migrant labor camps facing Dundee Road and Oakton Street.

At a farm on Algonquin Road about a mile and a half west of Illinois 83, we encounter a mingling of migrants and ex-migrants.

The rag-tag housing of the ex-migrant is much in evidence, and we talk to a woman whose husband left the fields for a factory job in Addison. The family, including five children, must move their trailer home because the property is up for sale.

We visit a migrant family on the property established in more substantial housing. Here, Rosalyna Garcia, a teenage girl, has been operated on by a noted Evanston surgeon to correct a kneecap deformed by polio. Her father is employed as a janitor in a Rolling Meadows store, but the family intends to leave for Texas soon. It brings momentary relief that society's verdict is not so harsh as to deny this girl the opportunity to walk erect again.

Behind this family, however, are chicken brooder shacks, six-sided buildings through which a stove pipe has been thrust, in which other migrant families are sheltered. There is no evidence that the farm has been inspected under the new state law regulating migrant labor camps.

Fr. Reicher declares: "This is where the next conference on migratory housing should convene, during the summer, when all the flies can attend and the heat is boiling the mercury in the thermometers in the chicken coops where these people live."

Most of the migrants have made the trek south by now. They have vanished from sight — like the migratory birds — until their reappearance next year, although they lack the federal protection extended to fowl.

For many, however, the harvest has ended. Dispossessed of the land, they face a future as bleak and inconsolable as their shanty dwellings humbled by the horizon into no more than a feeble protest for justice.

President's CAC to Focus On 'Interests' of Consumer

Dr. Morse Talks to Suburb Housewives

by BILL HALLS

Dr. Richard L. D. Morse, head of the department of family economics at Kansas State University, told a group of suburban housewives, editors and food distributors recently that the role of the President's Consumer Advisory Council is to "help bring into focus, for policy making consideration, consumer interests at the Executive level of government."
level of government."

Professor Morse, a member of President Kennedy's newly created CAC, delivered the address at the Conference on Suburban Homemaking, sponsored by the Suburban Press Foundation, Inc.

On March 15, 1962, the President told congress that he was asking his Council of Economic Advisors to establish the CAC.

PROFESSOR Morse said the CAC's duties would include the consumers' interest in such diverse matters as taxation, tariffs, labor-management, agricultural policy, inflation and monetary policy, economic growth and employment.

The CAC would also examine and provide advice to the government on programs designed to protect consumers' needs, including health and safety measures, and "the need of the consumer for reliable information to make intelligent decisions in the open market."

The new agency would also provide homemakers with information on new consumer research findings made by government agencies.

CONSUMERS, meanwhile, would be urged individually and through their own organizations to contribute suggestions and opinions on agency matters.

To help facilitate this plan all federal agencies concerned with consumer welfare have been asked to designate special assistants to advise and assure that each agency has the consumers' interests constantly in mind.

The President set down four basic rights of the consumer which would be protected by the CAC. They are:

1. THE right to safety—to be protected against the marketing of goods which are hazardous to health or life.

2. The right to be informed—"If the consumer is unable to choose on an informed basis," said the President. "Then his dollar is wasted, his health and safety may be threatened and the national interest suffers."

3. The right to choose—to be assured wherever possible, access to a variety of products and services at competitive prices.

4. THE right to be heard—to be assured that consumer interests will receive full and sympathetic consideration in the formulation of government policy, and fair and expeditious treatment in its administrative tribunals.

SH TON-BLACKSTONE

PROFESSOR MORSE of the Consumers' Advisory Council talks to the suburban press, homemakers and food distributors about President Kennedy's new plan.

Morse said it is the hope of the council to help facilitate the role of the homemaker.

"You (the housewife) are part of a national economy which is guided by prices, wages, profits and money incentives," said Morse. "Yet as homemakers you are the heart of your own home economy which neither hires nor fires you.

"YOUR efficiency and your profits or wages are measured in terms of love, devotion, care, sympathy, understanding. Your overriding concern is with the quality of consumption and good personal relations.

"It is our hope that with your understanding and assistance we may make your role a more satisfying and less frustrating one."

You and Your Problems

Unhappy Wife Seeks Answer to Dilemma

by DR. GERARD G. NEUMAN

Dear Dr. Neuman,

I made a bad mistake in my marriage and I don't know what to do. I can't look to my folks for help because they told me not to marry. My mother would just say, "I told you so," and turn her back on me.

DR. NEUMAN

I have a two year old boy and another baby on the way. It seems like my husband gets meaner all the time. I'm tired of trying to manage on the little money he gives me for food and I'm tired of listening to him grumble whenever he's home.

Sometimes I feel I could just walk away from it all, but I have no place to turn. Could you give me any advice?

Mrs. Y., I sense from your letter that you are angry at your husband for not being nicer to you and for not taking better care of you. You are also angry at your parents, partly because they were against the marriage, but also because you feel they won't take care of you now. You are like a little girl who expects to be taken care of, and you become angry and upset when this doesn't happen.

This is the kind of situation that develops so often in young marriages, where either one or both marriage partners were not mature enough to take on the responsibilities of marraige and a family. Young people resent being told they are "too young" to marry, but from the unusually high number of divorces in teenage marriages, we know that this is true.

THE PROBLEM starts right at the beginning in the reasons why young people get married. Of course, they believe that they are "in love" but love has many meanings. Studies of marriages that end in divorce have shown that often the feeling of being in love is really the feeling of having found someone who will take good care of you. This is particularly true where there is friction or a broken home. Then the young boy or girl is more likely to look for someone outside the family to come to his or her rescue.

In a marriage, both partners are dependent upon each other in many ways, but they also support each other and carry their full share of the responsibility for making a good home and caring for the children.

THE MARRIAGES that don't work out well are often ones where either the husband or the wife is so dependent upon the other that they can only take, not give. We often find that a dependent person is never really satisfied. The need to be taken care of is so great that it is insatiable.

Where this is the problem in a marriage, both partners have to grow and change. "Going home to mother" doesn't solve anything. Being adult does bring problems and responsibilities. Unfortunately, tempting as it may seem, we can't remain children all our lives.

Readers may write to Dr. Neuman c/o Box B-18, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights, Ill. All correspondence confidential.

Arlington Residents Observe Golden Anniversary Nov. 24

Fifty years of marriage were celebrated Nov. 24 by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buncik, 122 S. State Road, who have been residents of Arlington Heights for 38 years. The couple celebrated with their six children, including a daughter, Mrs. L. V. Shacklee from Florida, and a son, Edward, from Texas, who traveled here especially to be with their parents on the anniversary.

Present also were their four other children, all from Arlington Heights, Frank, Mrs. Joseph Hassil, Mrs. H. B. Kerce and Mrs. Pauline Hopper; their 14 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

MR. BUNCIK, 73, is a retired painter and now serves as a crossing guard at South School in Arlington Heights. Both are members of Our Lady of the Wayside Church.

The anniversary was observed with a dinner for 50 relatives and a few close friends in the Vail Tavern in Arlington Heights.

Cancer Cure Predicted In 10 Years

MILWAUKEE, (UPI) — Cancer could be conquered within 10 years, the dean of Marquette University's Medical School has predicted.

Dr. John S. Hirschboeck recently told 50 business and industry representatives that the answer to cancer "could reasonably be predicted during the next decade."

He said discoveries made in the last 10 years in biochemistry, virology and genetics indicate "we may have come to the halfway point in the answer to cancer."

Dr. Hirschboeck spoke at a two-day American Cancer Society conference on private support of cancer research.

Beau Skips, Leaving Her With Little

MADISON, WIS., (UPI) — A 19-year-old girl was left holding only part of her trousseau when the man she planned to elope with skipped out after loading his car with her belongings for their honeymoon, police said Monday.

Authorities were looking for the man in his 20's, described by the girl as "curly black-haired and good-looking," but said the girl did not sign a complaint for his arrest.

She told police she met the man in a local tavern and he persuaded her to elope with him that evening. While she was packing, he loaded up two coats, a hair dryer, a wrist watch, a transistor radio, flash camera and $127 in cash and drove off in his car. He also escaped with $15 from her roommate's purse.

Saves Cop's Job

DES MOINES, IOWA, (UPI)—A course in mathematical reasoning at Drake University has enrolled a dog.

George, a well-mannered boxer, is a "student" in good standing in the class conducted by Dr. Basil E. Gillam.

George's master, Don Clay, 23, Des Moines, acquired an enrollment slip from the Registrar's office for the dog after Gillam said "no one may attend classes who is not officially enrolled."

Gillam, who said George is a "very intelligent dog," added he doesn't care if his unusual pupil attends class "if he doesn't bother anyone."

Indian Cheer Seeks Funds

Illinois Federation of Woman's club Indian Affairs chairman, Mrs. Eugene Moroni of Johnston City, is reminding all area clubs to send their donations for the "Indian Cheer" fund which is used this time of year to bring more cheer to Indian children in missions and schools throughout the country.

Committee members report that there are more Indians living in Chicago than on any reservation in the United States.

DEC. 14 A "Salute to Youth" demonstration in holiday flower arrangement will be held at the Park Ridge School for Girls. Luncheon will be served and reservations may be made with Mrs. H. L. Berthold, 746 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, or Mrs. C. A. Hendrickson, 743 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Hendrickson is state chairman.

Quite Contrary by Mary

A Bump of Direction

Seems to me that I have heard of certain people who claim the yhave a bump of direction. Rather like an ingrown compass. I may have a lumpy head but this particular lump is very obviously missing. My son may get lost in stores but I do the same thing only on a much grander scale.

MARY

I am not a native of these parts which is the excuse I cling to in lieu of a better one. If I stick to certain roads and landmarks, I can get around fairly well. Just let me get so much as a block or two off the beaten path and I come completely apart at the seams. I not only wander bewildered all over Illinois, I have been known to almost make Wisconsin.

I had to go into Chicago. Not all the way, just sort of part way. Then I wanted to head for Evanston to do an errand. I figured that if I headed north from where I was, I was bound to strike familiar territory. I mean I have been to Evanston before. Well, I did make it and only went about ten miles too far west before I headed north. The important thing is, I made Evanston.

Intoxicated with my victory, I did my errand and headed for home. Somehow or other I missed the turn that points me in the right direction and went sailing down the road. Which, by now was quite unfamiliar. My reasoning at this point was that if you go around a block, you will end up back on the same road. Hence, it would be possible to go back from whence I came and make my turn on my nice familiar road. I reckoned without the idiot planners of Evanston who must have followed rabbit tracks when they laid out the city.

I never did get back to my checkpoint. I floated all over some very nice residential areas, admired the houses, assured the twelve year old that old Ma would take care of her and ended up in Wilmette hot on my way to Winnetka. Or vice versa whichever one comes after Evanston. Common sense told me that this way lay Racine and Kenosha. It was dark. Nothing looked familiar except for the fact that I knew I was still in the United States where the natives speak my language.

I finally asked a person in a filling station whatever happened to Mount Prospect. He told me that I was lost which I thought very astute o him. It galled me but I had to agree with him. He set me right and, let me tell you, if you come home from Evanston by way of Wilmette and Glenview, plan on being about two hours late for dinner.

Soviet Women Win Top 'Smile' Honors

CHICAGO, (UPI) — Whether Russian women are better looking than American women is a moot point — but the Soviet females certainly have more dazzling smiles.

This was the first-hand discovery of a group of American dentists who spent a month behind the Iron Curtain visiting dental clinics and schools and talking with Russian dentists.

The most surprising find of all was that Russian dentists use stainless steel to make crowns and bridges. And out of the labs, the Americans viewed the results: gleaming stainless steel bridgework gracing many Russian smiles.

THE DENTISTS Saturday reported the results of their trip to the current issue of the Journal of the American Dental Association.

Steel is used by dentists in place of other metals, the article said, because of lack of equipment and materials. And dental care in Russia is poor, the Americans found — at least 30 years behind professional standards in the U.S.

Other discoveries: Local anesthesia is rarely used in Russia—and 75 per cent of Russian dentists are women.

Santa Reindeer Shot by Dad?

BELLEVILLE, ILL., (UPI) — George Koderhandt Sr. was quite pleased Saturday when he bagged a 100-lb. doe deer near Golconda, Ill. Now he's not so sure.

When he brought it home, his 3-year-old son, Stevie, exclaimed with a horrified expression: "You've shot one of Santa's Reindeer!"

Lady Elks Plan Yule Luncheon

Arlington Heights Lady Elks will hold their Christmas luncheon Dec. 13 in Old Orchard Country Club. Lunch will be served at 1 p.m., and will be preceded by a cocktail hour at noon. This luncheon is open to members and guests, who will be entertained by Christmas music by a choral group from the high school. Cards will be played following lunch. Reservations may be made by calling either Mrs. Pasquale Danna, CL 3-8118, or Mrs. Nick Barkulis, CL 5-2241 by Dec. 10.

It is traditional that at this affair, the newly-elected officers for the next year are introduced. Mrs. Robert Hutchinson, past president, will present the gavel to Mrs. Henry Moore, the new president for 1963, who in turn will introduce the following: Mrs. Frank Kroll, vice president; Mrs. Marvin Schuler, recording secretary; Mrs. John O'Brien, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Walter Brawner and Mrs. Thomas Williams, directors.

Just Around the Corner

Baby Fat Crisis

Dear Peg:

I have been the kind of mother who, when she saw an overweight little girl, has said to herself, "It's too bad that mother doesn't do something about her child's weight!" I could remember starting to gain too much weight in about the 7th grade and unhappily carrying it around with me for several years. I'm sure, in those times (long ago) people just didn't believe in putting children on diets — they referred to it as "baby fat" and really believed that it would disappear all by its self in a little while. Of course, it never did until the child (a young girl by then) took the problem into her own hands. I promised myself this would never happen to any of my little girls — but all of a sudden it has. Bridget must absolutely lose 20 lbs.!

Fortunately, she is only 10 years old so there is still time before the dancing-dating years, but we are determined to start losing it right now. Even now, I think some of her tempermental outbursts are due to the fact that she is aware of being heavier than just about all the little girls in her class. When she chooses something to wear, she always asks, "Does this make me look any thinner?"

I suppose, because none of our other children has this problem and I hadn't noticed that she was eating any more than the others were the reasons that I was unaware of her creeping up the scales. But we are all fully aware of it now and we intend to do something about it! She now weighs 112 lbs.; for her height she should weigh about 90 lbs.

We started out a couple of weeks ago cutting out sweets, Cokes, desserts etc., but this hasn't been enough. Furthermore, she tends to fall off of her regimen on weekends — when someone comes to spend the night or she goes to the movies. Much more drastic measures are needed. We found that even falling off for a day set us back almost a week!

This is a serious problem and if you have it in your family, you know that it can cause a great deal of unhappiness. I have made an appointment with the doctor for a metabolism test and further suggestions for a diet plan for Bridget and will let you know how we progress.

My love,
Patty

Mrs. Santa Claus to Greet Clubmembers' Children

"Mrs. Santa Claus" will be on hand to greet children of members of Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club at the December meeting in Mount Prospect Village Hall, Wednesday, Dec. 12, at 7:30 p.m. "Mrs. Santa Claus" will meet each child and present him with a remembrance from the club and a gift bought for each child by his parents.

Entertainment will be provided by a newly-organized boys' trio from Prospect High School consisting of Bob Pederson, Bob Block and Dan Miller who will sing folk songs accompanying themselves with a banjo and guitar; they will also give imitations of the Kingston Trio. Community singing of Christmas carols will complete the entertainment.

AS THE meeting has been planned as a children's party, there will be no business meeting, but members will bring contributions for a Christmas basket to be given to a migrant family. As an annual custom, the club "adopts" a migrant family for Christmas providing Christmas dinner and gifts and a large supply of staples and usable clothing for the coming year.

Mrs. Kenneth Odmark, club president explained: "By combining our children's Christmas party with our migrant family contributions at the same meeting, we are trying to impress on our children the real meaning of Christmas—the Christian ideal of sharing what we have with those who are less fortunate."

THE PARTY will close with refreshments served by the hospitality committee headed by Mrs. Konrad Rother who promises a plentiful supply of children's Christmas cookies and a festive Christmas punch. More than 200 children are expected to attend. (S

Christmas Breads Lesson Is December 11

"Breads of Many Lands" will be the Christmas lesson for Elk Grove Homemaker's Extension Unit when they meet Tuesday, Dec. 11, in the home of Mrs. Noel Foss. Since the breads are of a yeast mixture, Mrs. Victor Pohlman and Mrs. Irving Scharringhausen, who are presenting the lesson, will begin the meeting at 10:30 a.m.

A potluck will be served at noon with members bringing a casserole, salad or jello mold. Dessert will be served by Miss Alma Grambauer, Miss Emily Moeller and Mrs. John Moehling.

MRS. CLARADEHL Upham spoke on "When Your Children are Adults" at the group's Nov. 28 meeting held in the home of Mrs. Arthur Busse. At this meeting the annual collection for "Pennies for Friendship" was taken, funds of which go to foreign countries to further the teaching of modernization to the women of these countries.

Tickets for the annual Cook County meeting, to be held Jan. 22 in Elmhurst Country Club are now available, according to unit officers. (S

State Regent Speaks Dec. 6 To Area DAR

MRS. ALBERT G. PETERS

Mrs. Albert G. Peters, Illinois State DAR Regent, will present the program Dec. 6 when Eli Skinner chapter members meet at 1 p.m. in the Prospect Heights home of Mrs. J. J. Hutchinson, 203 Grove St. Subject of her program will be "Christmas in Colonial Days."

Mrs. Peters holds an A.B. degree from Millikin University where she received honors in literature and public speaking. Active in civic, educational and charitable work, she has been in DAR since 1922, and has served the state as chairman of membership, registrar and chairman for organization of chapters. She has served the National Society as vice chairman of membership, vice chairman of the Flag of the United States of America Committee, has written many articles for the DAR magazine and has given many programs on genealogy, history, Americanism and national defense throughout the country. Nancy Haskins Is Fall Bride of Robert Frisk

A simple ceremony performed on Nov. 10 in Arlington Heights Methodist Church united a local pair, the former Nancy Haskins of Elk Grove and Robert Frisk of Arlington Heights. The couple met while the bride formerly lived in Arlington Heights. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Haskins, 274 Walnut Lane, Elk Grove.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frisk, 511 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights, is sports editor for Paddock Publications. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois, which his bride also attended. She was graduated there in June and is now working as an alumni representative for the university in Illini Center, Chicago.

The newlyweds are residing in Palatine following a short honeymoon in Chicago.

The double ring ceremony took place at 2 o'clock before an altar decorated with a fall arrangement of mums. Dr. Hughes B. Morris officiated, and Charles Wellnitz sang appropriate wedding songs accompanied by Charles Jenks at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a street length jacket dress of white peau de soie. The fitted jacket was edged with a lace design and had tiny covered buttons down the back. The dress had a bell shaped skirt.

COMPLEMENTING the simple lines of the dress, the bride's short illusion veil was held in place by a small pillbox hat. She carried a bouquet of white mums with greens.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Herbert Schmitt of Chicago, her college roommate. Last July the bride had served as Mrs. Schmitt's maid of honor in her wedding party.

For this fall wedding, the matron of honor wore a street length peau de soie sheath dress in a burnt orange shade and carried a bouquet of fuji mums in brown and bronze tones.

BEST MAN was Edwin Svikhart of Peoria, the groom's brother-in-law. Ushering the guests were the bride's brother, Robert Haskins of Pawtucket, R. I., and David Ryden of Arlington Heights.

For the wedding and reception which followed immediately in the church hall for 175 guests, Mrs. Haskins received in an ice blue satin sheath dress with matching accessories. The groom's mother chose a blue and green brocade sheath dress with matching accessories, and each of the mothers wore a white orchid at her shoulder.

November Newlyweds Plan December Wedding Trip

Postponing their honeymoon until later in December, Mr. and Mrs. John Claus Marxen are now at home in their Des Plaines apartment at 1107 Holiday Lane following their Nov. 10 wedding in Community Presbyterian Church, Mount Prospect. Mrs. Marxen is the former Mary Louise Wilson, daughter of the William Wilsons, 717 Cathy Lane, Mount Prospect, and Mr. Marxen is the son of the Paul B. Marxens, 100 W. Willow, Prospect Heights.

Rev. R. Norman Herbert officiated at the 4:30 p.m. double ring service during which the groom's aunt, Mrs. Roy Davis, served as organist. Soloist was Robert Norcross, who sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "With This Ring I Thee Wed." White chrysanthemums and white glads decorated the church.

THE BRIDE was preceded down the aisle by two velvet-and-satin-gowned attendants, one in lime peel green and the other in honey gold. In green was Miss Susi Fisher of Prospect Heights, who served as maid of honor and in honey was the bride's sister, Miss Jean Wilson of Mount Prospect. Miss Fisher's flowers were bronze chrysanthemums in a colonial bouquet and Miss Wilson's were marigold-colored chrysanthemums.

The bride chose a French lace gown fashioned with Spanish ruffles embellished with simulated pearls and iridescents. Her French lace pillbox held a butterfly veil and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and white chrysanthemums. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson gave their daughter in marriage.

JOHN COCHRAN of Prospect Heights was best man to the groom and groomsman was William Phar of Mount Prospect. Ushers were Jeff Inkley of Prospect Heights and Joseph Putz of Arlington Heights.

A reception for 90 guests was held in Mount Prospect Country Club where Mrs. Wilson received in a light green dress with corsage of white orchids. Mrs. Marxen was in medium blue and also had a corsage of white orchids.

The bride was graduated from Prospect High School and is employed by Kemper Insurance Co., Chicago. Her bridegroom was graduated from Arlington High School, attended the University of Illinois and is now with Spotnails, Incorporated, Rolling Meadows..

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Mexico Is Shoppers' Delight

Browsing through quaint shops or exploring colorful native markets is half the fun of visiting modern Mexico — truly a shoppers' paradise.

Northwest suburban residents who take part in Paddock Publications' 14-day "Mexican Fiesta" vacation party will enjoy hours of exciting shopping in Mexico City and Taxco — both noted for crafts and quality merchandise at reasonable prices.

In Mexico City, shoppers will find a galaxy of items to suit all tastes: hand-blown glassware, ceramics, pottery porcelains, strawwork, jewelry, silverware, native costumes, mantillas, shawls, fans, Spanish lace, blouses, sashes, tablecloth sets, leather goods, and-tooled purses, boots, wallets, luaraches, handbags, saddlery, bull whips, paintings, gems, and native handicrafts.

IN TAXCO, the bargain-hunters will be delighted with the incredible array of silver jewelry and costume pieces. The charming mining center is also noted for its huaraches, rebozos, tin candlesticks, mirrors, water colors, hand-carved furniture, and pearls. Taxco is prominent for its hand-hammered carvings and silver.

Mexico is a country of craftsmen and one of the most important aspects of a craft is to take the finished product to market.

Money in Mexico

Current rate officially is 12.50 pesos for one dollar. That means simply that each peso is worth 8 cents U.S. currency. There are 100 centavos in a peso. Most common fractional coins are 5, 10, 20, and 50 cent pieces.

In practice, tourists will find some shops and hotels exchange their dollars at slightly lower rate. Cash exchange at banks is usually 12.49 so if they have large amounts in currency or travelers' checks to be changed for cash, a trip to the bank might be worthwhile. Some hotels maintain bank branches in the lobby.

Using the official rate, you convert dollars into pesos by multiplying the number of dollars by 12½. To convert pesos into dollars multiply by .08.

The market has always been the center of life in this country. And here is not only the selling that counts; it is the pleasure of being with neighbors who bring their products, their pottery, their chickens, their woven goods. It is the social contact.

Visits to typical markets will be possible for "Mexican Fiesta" tour members.

A shopping highlight will be the visit to Taxco, "the enchanted village time forgot and which you will always remember." Historical Taxco . . . more than 300 years old, unchanged narrow cobblestone streets winding along and up the hillside, with its attractive shopping sections. The village is dominated by the bench-lined and laurel shaded plaza from which radiate numerous narrow streets and lanes, the principal ones lined on both sides by silver shops and stores displaying all kinds of regional handicrafts.

UNDER U. S. Customs law, a tourist who is in Mexico 12 days or more may bring home duty free $500 worth of merchandise at wholesale prices. There is no limit on amount of goods on which the tourist wishes to pay duty.

Goods admitted free of duty must be for personal use or gifts and not for re-sale.

A U.S. Customs Declaration Form for listing goods purchased is provided aboard all U.S. bound planes.

WHEN MAKING purchases it is a good idea to save all bills and invoices.

Silver goods without the hallmark stamps of the National Union of Silversmiths are subject to a Mexican export tax of from 4 to 7½ per cent. The hallmark is a spread eagle symbol with a number.

Special forms are needed for taking out art goods, paintings, statuary, and the like.

Details on Paddock Publications "Mexican Fiesta" are available by using the convenient blank to be found elsewhere on this page.

NATIVE DANCERS are symbolic of the color, uniqueness, and excitement which await visitors to Mexico. The adventure of travel South of the Border will await northwest suburban residents who participate in Paddock Publications' "Mexican Fiesta" tour party which departs March 8 for 14 days in the Latin country.

Mexico Completes Initial Stage in Rebuilding City

First stage in the reconstruction of one of the Western Hemisphere's most ancient cities will be complete this month in Mexico City.

The ornately carved temple-pyramids of San Juan Teotihuacan, capital of the Aztec civilization pre-dating the Christian era, will be just 20 minutes away from the Mexican capital by a new superhighway.

Other December completions in a $1.25 million, two-year restoration project, designed to make this site even more significant to the approximately 700,000 Americans who visit there each year, include a new museum and restaurant, huge new parking areas, special offices for local and visiting archaeologists, and a shopping center for Mexican handicrafts.

RESTORATION, slated for completion in 1964, includes extensive new explorations, which will highlight the area as one of the foremost archaeological importance. Already discovered are new fragments of great esthetic value. It is anticipated that further exploration will bring to light 50 additional temples and palaces.

This zone stretches out to cover an area of 3½ miles by 2 miles in the Valley of Teotihaucan. The sacred city, once paved with a plaster floor, was a religious center rather than a residential center. Its most awesome building is the Pyramid of the Sun. Almost 700 feet at the base, it rises to a height of over 200 feet and is built of adobe bricks and faced with volcanic stone, ornately carved.

The exciting pyramids will be one of the stops of Paddock Publications' "Mexican Fiesta" tour party which departs O'Hare Field March 8.

Southern Illinois In Tourist Crusade

by UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Southern Illinoians brought southern hospitality to the heart of Chicago Friday in a determined bid for the tourist dollar.

More than 100 representatives of southern Illinois displayed exhibits in the Prudential Building, and showed what they had to offer the Chicago tourists who traditionally escape northward into Wisconsin.

"This is the biggest year we've had," Bob Hendrickson, Mount Vernon, co-chairman of the annual "Southern Illinois Day in Chicago," said. "People are surprised at the scenic and vacation spots we have in southern Illinois."

"Southern Illinois Day in Chicago" was begun four years ago by Southern Illinois, Incorporated, an organization formed to boost economic development. The group is engaged in a double-barrelled campaign to secure industry and promote the area's infant fourist industry.

"We are moving out of the amateur and into the professional stage," Southern Illinois Executive Director Goeffrey Hughes, Carterville, said. "This is just the beginning. We're going to start moving faster and farther."

HUGHES SAID his organization plans similar exhibits for the Illinois State Fair, St. Louis conventions, and eventually New York.

"We're determined we are going to let the whole world know the wonderful attractions we have for tourists," Hughes said.

Several hundred Chicagoans filed past the 55 exhibits set up by cities, industries, and other organizations from southern Illinois. R. A. Reel, Marion, who co-chairmanned the show with Hendrickson, said many of the visitors asked how to get to southern Illinois vacation areas.

Reel said he was "very hopeful" the show would step-up tourist traffic downstate.

GOV. OTTO KERNER and dozens of legislators toured the exhibits, which featured Miss Illinois, Pam Gilbert, Carbondale, as a guide.

Among the exhibits were a coon, Canadian goose, ducks and grouse, displayed by the Illinois Department of Conservation and a working model of a steam tractor, thrasher, and saw mills. (T

Infant Welfare Christmas Ball Is Saturday

Christmas will come early for members of Mount Prospect Center of Infant Welfare and their guests as they gather Saturday evening, Dec. 8, in Old Orchard Country Club for a Christmas Ball.

The charcoal and white decor of the country club will be accented by brilliant red miniature poinsettia centerpieces on each table and boughs of greens, sprigs of mistletoe, colorful ornaments and the traditional Christmas tree will decorate the ballroom for the evening.

Dancing to the music of Warren Bills' orchestra will be highlighted by a vocalist, Margie Little. The club's fireplace will be the setting for the elegant holiday buffet which will be served later in the evening. (S

Britain Ideal Yuletime Spot

Holiday Traditions Have Roots in Isle

by JEANNE WELCH

One of my most cherished daydreams centers around spending a Christmas season in merrie olde England, in one of the villages so often pictured on Christmas cards. I'm sure you know the kind I mean — those peopled exclusively by jolly old gentlemen and rosy-cheeked children, ali sporting red and white striped mufflers.

So many of our Christmas customs come to us from England that a field trip at Yuletide seems like a wonderful idea, and perhaps some day the daydream will become reality. I hope that when and if it does I will not find that cellophane wreaths and loudspeakers have replaced the holly and carolers of old.

While mass communications media are changing the face of rural England, just as they are in this country, there are many villages where a real sense of history prevails and where the villagers take great pride in the antiquity of their buildings. Until March 31 you can take advantage of Pan American World Airways special 17-day excursion fares, New York to London and from London explore rural England on low-cost bus tours. The New York to London flights operate daily, require just six hours, and the special fare is $350.

Bus tours change frequently so it is best to check details after you reach London, but a typical tour of two days might cover Oxford, the Cotswold, villages, Stratford-on-Avon, Warwick Castle and Sulgrave Manor. The cost of $29.50 would cover some 250 miles of travel, all meals, lodging at one of famous old inns and incidentals.

The trip north from London to Stratford combines history with country charm. Typical of the old market towns along the way is High Wycombe, where an ancient custom still observed is that of weighing the mayor as he takes office and again on his leaving office, to determine whether he has gained materially from his official duties. Seems like an eminently sensible custom.

Nearby are the villages of Stow-on-the-Wold with its hotel postinghouse, licensed in 1548 to lodge the king's messengers, and Upper Swell and a hotel which once served as Cromwell's headquarters. Near the village of Broadway the spires of Oxford reach into the sky. Oxford is a cloistered world, even today. Although many new buildings have risen and the university is now coed, the traditions of the past remain a part of the daily routine. The students parade across the lawns in their academic robes and Henry VIII, the royal patron, is still honored with evening prayers in the Cathedral.

Stratford, as a tourist shrine, has a few anachronisms, such as a tearoom which serves hamburgers and a five-and-ten which sells Shakespearean souvenirs, but the Red Horse Inn remains much the same as it was when Washington Irving penned part of his Sketch Book there. How sad that the contributions Americans have made in this century are the hamburger and the five-and-ten!

Another historic site with American connotations is Sulgrave Manor, ancestral home of the family of George Washington. A Gilbert Stewart portrait of our first president is among the furnishings to be seen in room after room of fine period furniture.

Before your trip to England or immediately upon your arrival in London, investigate the Open House Program which will arrange for your visits to private homes and workshops. Its headquarters is at Kent House, Market Place, Great Titchfield Street, London, W. 1.

Wise Time Management Helps Ease Holiday Frustrations

If the prospects of the coming holidays seem overwhelming, take a new look at your management practices.

Virginia Guthrie, University of Illinois home economist, points out that one aid to making ends meet without unnecessary frustration is to get organized ahead of time. Think ahead and put plans on paper. Seeing clearly what has to be done takes the pressure off and helps get the jobs done. Remember, daily plans call for more detail than do plans for the week.

Miss Guthrie lists several other aids for coping with holiday demands:

PREPARE FOOD, whether for family meals or entertaining, ahead of the peak rush. Take advantage of the home freezer or freezing compartment in the refrigerator to put aside cookies, pies, casseroles and other dishes.

It may be that you can make two sets of one food or dish, one to eat immediately and one to freeze for later use. This doubling-up also decreases the time and energy needed to prepare food at the last minute.

Use as many time-saving short-cuts as possible. Here are just a few examples:

SERVE SIMPLE meals. Save more elaborate ones for after the holidays. However, meals needn't be dull because they are simple. Such things as herb buttered crumbs and new combinations of vegetables vary foods without adding to preparation time.

Other ideas for simplifying meals are to serve baked potatoes instead of mashed, lettuce wedges instead of tossed salad and fresh or canned fruit instead of prepared desserts. Or try oven meals or boiled dinners that require a minimum of attention during cooking.

A time-saver for the homemaker whose family prefers vegetables and other foods with white sauce is to mix the flour and butter or margarine ahead of time. Form the mixture into a stick and store it in the butter or margarine wrapper to cut off and use as needed.

ENCOURAGE CHILDREN to take added responsibility for caring for their own personal possessions and for doing routine chores.

A further aid to time management may be to change your standards. If you usually use washable table linens, try plastic or paper place mats, paper napkins and perhaps even paper plates. Accept graciously other changes in standards, such as a less frequently cleaned house and more than usual clutter. Don't do the task better than it needs to be done.

Finally, take time to rest. Hurrying to "save time" and getting too tired reduces efficiency, contributes to home accidents and mars the Christmas spirit.

Remember, the aim of good management of time and energy at holiday time is to reduce unnecessary wear and tear that can obscure the true meaning of the season. (S

WELCOME WAGON

Here's Your Holiday Weight-Watching Guide

Luscious party food and traditional goodies always tempt even the strongest minded weight - watchers around the holidays. But it's what you do about that temptation that will tell the story when you step on the scales after New Year's, according to Harriet Barto, University of Illinois nutritionist.

Miss Barto points out that it takes a reduction of 3,500 calories to subtract one pound from your weight. It takes only 10 extra calories a day to add one pound a year.

But most food "extras" add far more than 10 calories at a time, let alone in a day. Just take a look at the calorie content of some of the favorite holiday confections, nibbles, pastries and trimmings: 1 ounce of fudge, 115; 1 ounce of peanut brittle, 125; 1 tablespoon of chopped walnuts, peanuts or pecans, 50; a 2-inch square of dark fruit cake, 100; a piece of mince pie (1/7 of a 9-inch pie), 340; one heaping tablespoon of hard sauce, 120; 1 small ripe or green olive, 5 to 7.

DOES THIS mean that one must be a stoic or a martyr about holiday eating - either abstaining or feeling quilty about each morsel? Certainly not, says Miss Barto. She lists these suggestions as a guide to holiday eating:

Enjoy yourself, but in moderation. Be content with just a taste of the nibbles and party food whenever you have a choice in the quantity you eat.

Adjust the calorie content of your regular meals during the days when you know you will be "partying." For example, skip the rich sauces on vegetables or meats. Or leave the gravy off potatoes. And make the pie at the party be your dinner dessert.

WHILE YOU'RE adjusting your calories, keep up the necessary nutrients in the day's meals. Remember that vitamins, minerals and protein are just as important during the holidays as at any other time.

Last, face up to what you're eating and how much. Don't try to kid yourself about the amount you eat. (S

Schaumburg Juniors Set Bazaar and Card Party

Schaumburg Junior Woman's Club will hold a combined card party and Christmas bazaar Friday, Dec. 7, at Schaumburg Junior High School, at 8 p.m. Tickets are available from members or can be purchased at the door.

The bazaar will feature homemade Christmas gift items and baked goods made by club members. "Though we expect many card players, we hope some people will come just to buy bazaar items," said Mrs. Carter Berg, chairman of the bazaar-card party.

Refreshments will be served during the evening. (S

How to Select Gift Clothing for Teens

A way to please many a teenager at Christmas is by a gift of clothing.

But, before you buy, it's wise to think about teenagers' attitudes toward clothes, suggests Esther Siemen, University of Illinois extension clothing and textiles specialist.

During the teenage years, the approval of their own age group is more important than the desire for adult approval. Wearing the "right" clothes gives them a sense of security and belonging. The desire to select their own clothes is also a part of adolescents' struggle for independence.

TO HELP you buy for teenagers and guide them in making their own selections, Miss Siemen offers the following pointers:

Learn the accepted fashions in the teenager's school and in his own circle of friends. For example, are the boys wearing V-neck, crew-neck, slip-over or three-button cardigans this season? The wrong style of weater will never be worn.

Look to the personality of the teenager as another guide. If he is a leader and starts the fashion, he will like new and imported styles. If he is more conservative, give a firmly established fashion.

Fad items make excellent Christmas gifts. Teenagers who manage a clothing budget realize that fads are often short-time gimmicks that waste precious clothing money. Nevertheless these items are often high on the want list.

GIFTS THAT add variety and interest to the wardrobe are also welcome, especially by girls. Such accessories as fancy belts, gloves, and "junk" jewelry are possiblities.

Another safe choice is the versatile classic garment. For example, for girls, cardigans and tailored shirt-waist blouses are favorites. (S

Safe Toys Help Assure Safe Play

Safe toys help assure safe play, points out O. L. Hogsett, University of Illinois extension safety specialist. He lists these suggestions for selecting safe toys:

Choose toys that are suitable for the strength of the child. A toy that is too heavy for a youngster to handle easily may cause an accident.

Check all playthings for babies and toddlers to be certain that no parts may become loose and find their way into the mouth. Stuffed animals with button eyes, whistles with removable mouth pieces and pull-toys with small removable parts all are dangerous. Nearly 600 children under five years of age die each year from suffocation due to undigested small objects.

SEE THAT playthings are sturdy and well made. Cheaply constructed or breakable toys will come apart or be broken under strenuous play, leaving jagged edges that may cause cuts and infection.

Beware, too, of playthings that have sharp edges or pointed ends.

Electrical toys of any type are unsafe for very young children. For older children, select only those that bear the seal of approval of the Underwriters' Laboratories.

Hogsett also points out that wise selection of toys is only the first step in keeping children's play safe. Some parental teaching or supervision is a second important step.

An air rifle, archery set, dart game, sharp knife or chemistry set may become dangerous in the hands of children too young to understand the hazards involved. Even older children should have adult supervision with play equipment of this type.

Be sure that children are taught how to play with electrical toys. Remind them never to play with electrical equipment when hands or clothing are wet or damp. (S

Here's HAUGH to Plan a Party

Plan a Holly Berry Breakfast

by DOLORES HAUGH

Tis the season to be jolly and time to think of bright green holly and that is what we will plan a Christmas breakfast around. This theme can be used for the family on Christmas morning, for a few close friends, or may be adapted for a luncheon.

INVITATIONS

Cut shiny green holly leaves out of green shelf paper and cut the berries from red. Place on a plain white stationery and write the following inside:

Come for breakfast, don't be late
See below the time and date.
Christmas brings us fun and folly
And we've chosen bright green holly
To decorate our house for you
And share the season's best, tis true.

State time, date and mail early so that your guests can plan ahead for the date.

DECORATIONS

Your decorations will follow the theme and a white background with white china will point up the true Christmas colors. Cut large holly leaves for placemats and for the berry at the point of the leaf roll a bright red napkin and here you may wish to use a napkin of chintz, made by simply pinking the edges. Place cards have holly on the upper corner, names in red ink.

Plastic holly points are to be used in everything from floating in the cranberry juice to the topping of the final coffee cake dessert. The centerpiece may be greens with wooden spoons made into Mr. and Mrs. Holly. This is done by making a hat for the fork, Mr. Holly, from a top to a squirt whipped cream can; a hat for Mrs. Holly is a paper nut cup sporting a bright red bow.

A face is drawn on the wooden spoon and fork and you may wish to attach a nose which is an ornament. The arms are pipe cleaners covered with green ribbon and red bow mufflers complete the Christmas pair. Of course, holly will be tucked in among the greens.

MENU

Either juice with a holly float or a half grapefruit topped with cranberries and citrus holly leaves will start the meal. Fluffy pancakes or scrambled eggs, you know your family's favorite breakfast menu, so do it up that way.

Make your coffee cake in the form of leaves and use round dishes of bright red cherry, raspberry and strawberry jelly for the berries - make two coffee cakes and serve on a large tray or board covered with white paper. By sprinkling them generously with green sugar you will get the color effect. Holly wreath rolls may be added too.

Lots of hot coffee, please, and then just sit back and enjoy yourself. Time to relax before you have to do those dishes. But do be jolly and unlax amid the Holly - happy breakfasting.

Hairdressers Hold Holiday Meeting Nov. 29

Hairstyling for the holidays was the highlight of a demonstration held Nov. 29 at Campbell's Hearthstone Restaurant for members of the Northwest Suburban Hairdressers' Association. Guest artist was Eugene May, member of the Illinois Hair Fashion Committee and the Chicago Style Body.

Another holiday feature of the meeting was a Christmas grab-bag. Plans were discussed for the group's annual project of free hair care for both children and adults at local children's homes, convalescent and hospital units and old people's homes. This is one of the ways in which the northwest unit observes National Beauty Salon Week in February.

ALL LICENSED hairdressers and cosmetologists in the area are eligible for membership in the association. Meetings are held at 8 p.m. the first Wednesday of each month at the Hearthstone Restaurant.

Present membership includes nearly 100 local cosmetologists. (S

Promotion Needed For Tourist Area

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)—If the tourist business in northwestern Wisconsin is to prosper, the state must invest more heavily in promotional activities, operators of tourist-oriented businesses in that part of the state believe.

Looking into a nine-county northern area last summer, University of Wisconsin professors I. V. Fine and Roy E. Tuttle said that nearly one-third of the tourist business operators who responded to their questions reported that they operated at a loss every year.

LESS THAN half said they made a profit, according to the report. About 20 per cent did not reveal their financial status.

The survey was sponsored by the UW School of Commerce and the Wisconsin Department of Resource Development to determine the financial condition of tourism—the state's third largest industry—in the northern part of the state.

The nine counties studied were Ashland, Bayfield, Burnett, Douglas, Iron, Price, Rusk, Sawyer, and Washburn.

Fine and Tuttle said that 42 per cent of the responding businesses cannot plan improvements due to financial losses.

"The extremely short season and the transitory nature of the customer in this industry does not make it particularly attractive to normal sources of risk capital," they said, explaining why money for improvement is difficult to obtain.

MORE THAN half the available tourist facilities in the area are at least 20 years old. One was reported built in 1880.

More than half of the respondents said they employ only their family in operating the business, the report said. (T

How to Select Clothes For Children's Yule

For the child who has everything or the child who needs everything, clothes may solve the Christmas gift problem. But they should be clothes that delight and flatter the child, according to Marjorie Mead, University of Illinois extension clothing and textiles specialist.

Color is important and appealing to both boys and girls. Learn the child's favorite color. Or choose a color that is flattering to his or her coloring. Children generally have delicate coloring, so pastels and lighter shades are most becoming.

But, like adults, blonde and brunette children are flattered by different colors. The blonde, blue-eyed youngsters can wear pastels, lighter shades and cool colors, such as blues and greens. Children with dark hair, eyes and skin look best in the warmer colors and deeper shades.

MATCH THE size of the fabric design to the child's size. For small youngsters, pea-sized polka dots are better than quarter-sized dots. The same idea applies to stripes, checks, plaids and floral designs.

Soft and silky textures delight all children more than stiff, harsh textures. But little girls do adore crisp ruffles and standaway skirts.

Christmas is not the time to shop for dark-patterned, serviceable fabrics. Neither is it the time to shop for double hems, straps for lengthening and other growth-allowance features or self-helps, such as large buttons and front zippers.

INSTEAD, IMAGINE a little girl's delight as she sees the full pink skirt with little bells on the embroidered pockets. And the little boy as he tries on the fancy corduroy vest with watch and chain.

Choosing the correct size in gift clothing is difficult. Some manufacturers size by age. Others use weight, height, chest and waist measurement standards. Garments sized by measurement standards and properly labeled simplify shopping for correct fit. (S

Sharon Behm Married Amid All Blue and White Setting

After a wedding trip to the Hawaiian Islands the former Sharon Behm of Palatine and her groom, Philip G. Dahlstrom of Harwood Heights, are residing in Cumberland Terrace, Des Plaines. They were married at 5 o'clock on Nov. 10 in St. John Lutheran Church of Chicago. Rev. John Lutz officiated at the candlelight ceremony.

A large bridal party, all attired in two shades of blue and carrying silver baskets of blue and white mums and pompons, approached the altar through an aisle of arches. Blue and white flowers also decorated the altar.

MAID OF HONOR was the bride's cousin, Beverly Debs of Chicago. She was gowned in a brilliant blue organza dress with a matching velvet hat and carried a silver kissing basket trimmed with royal blue ribbon.

Four bridesmaids, two junior bridesmaids and a flower girl also preceded the bride down the aisle, all gowned in petal blue organza with brilliant blue velvet hats to match the attire of the maid of honor. Their silver serving baskets were also trimmed with royal blue ribbon.

BRIDESMAIDS were Dianne Debs of Chicago, another cousin of the bride; Jackie Kehe of Arlington Heights, Elise Rehberger of Chicago and Karon Kempf of Elmwood Park. The junior bridesmaids were Mary Barnick of Portland, Ore., the bride's cousin, and Diana Shaffer of Bozeman, Mont., the groom's niece.

Flower girl Andrea Shaffer, another niece of the groom coming from Bozeman for the festivities, will long remember the day as a dual celebration along with her birthday.

ENTERING the sanctuary on the arm of her father, Wallace Behm, the bride wore a white satin gown with long sleeves, sabrina neckline and full circular skirt. The skirt had a side drape caught up at the back of the waist with a large bow. The front of the dress was appliqued with a panel of Brussels lace beaded with crystals and pearls in a diagonal line from neckline to hem. The lace was repeated at the wrist of each sleeve.

Her head piece was a spray of satin leaves with a shower of pearls attached to a 4-tiered fingertip veil. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of mums, stephanotis and silver feathers.

AFTER GIVING his daughter in marriage, the bride's father took his seat with Mrs. Behm, who was attired in an emerald green peau d'ange ensemble with a white cymbidium corsage.

The groom is the son of the Herbert Dahlstroms. His mother chose a silver and gold brocade sheath dress with jacket, matching accessories and a white cymbidium corsage for the ceremony and reception.

NORMAN DAHLSTROM, the groom's brother was his best man, and ushers were another brother, David Dahlstrom; Marvin Behm of Chicago, the bride's cousin; Dale Hertel of Palatine and Harold Kace of Chicago.

Ring bearer was another cousin of the bride, Smiley Barnick of Portland, Ore.

A reception took place in Tam O'Shanter Country Club following the ceremony.

The bride, a graduate of Mosser Secretarial College, is a legal stenographer for Groble and O'Flaherty in Chicago. The groom is employed by American Airlines. (S

Sorority Activities

ALPHA PHI

Alpha Phi Northwest Suburban Alumnae will gather for their Christmas potluck luncheon Thursday, Dec. 13, at 1 p.m. in the Mount Prospect home of Mrs. John Bannister.

Everyone is asked to bring her favorite salad or casserole as well as a Christmas tree ornament for a grab bag exchange. A short business meeting will follow the luncheon.

GAMMA PHI BETA

Gamma Phi Betas will bring white elephants for a silent auction to their Christmas Party Wednesday, Dec. 12. Proceeds of the auction will go to the two summer camps for underprivileged girls in Denver and Vancouver, a service project of Gamma Phi Beta.

The party will be held in the Park Ridge home of Shirley Christopher at 8 p.m. and new Gamma Phi's in the area are invited according to Jan Impey, CL 3-7912.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Northwest Suburban Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma is planning a Christmas Party on the regular meeting day, Dec. 11, at 1 p.m., in the home of Mrs. Douglas Thomson, 802 Catino, Arlington Heights. Assisting Mrs. Thomson will be Mrs. Alan Macdonald, Mrs. Paul Splittorff, Mrs. Leo Hunter, Mrs. Richard Bardach, Mrs. Robert Starr and Mrs. John Trees.

Refreshments will be provided by all the members bringing a batch of their favorite cookies along with the recipe.

Entertainment planned is to be a surprise.

New Kappas to the area are welcome to attend and for further information may call Mrs. William Van Dyck, CL 9-3584.

PI BETA PHI

The annual Christmas party and gift exchange of Arlington Heights Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi sorority will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 12, in the home of Mrs. Joseph Behm, 241 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

An invitation to attend is extended to all new Pi Phis in the area. They are asked to contact Mrs. Dean Hopkins at CLearbrook 9-2149.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Members of Lambda Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will hold their annual couples Christmas party Dec. 15, with final arrangements being completed at the Dec. 5 meeting.

Mrs. Martha Shaw of the Clearbrook School for Retarded Children displayed Christmas cards and gifts. Members made selections and the profits from these gifts will benefit the school.

Mrs. Louis Sciez, a guest, read selections of her own poetry as part of the program presented by Mrs. Vernon Schlexer and Mrs. Robert Strama. Mrs. Alfred Lange of Hoffman Estates was also a guest.

"Poetry into Music" is the program to be presented at the next meeting by Mrs. Lester Turmen and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin. Mrs. Arnot Croslin and Mrs. Herbert Cunniff will be hostesses.

DELTA ZETA

Arlington Heights Area Alumnae Chapter of Delta Zeta will hold a potluck dinner Tuesday, Dec. 11 in the home of Mrs. Robert Jones, 402 Busse Road, Mount Prospect at 7 p.m. Members will each bring a homemade item for the grab bag.

Those unable to attend the dinner may come for the program at 9 p.m. when a representative from the Gift Box in Mount Prospect will demonstrate Christmas gift wrapping. Mrs. Jones, HE 7-3684, may be called for reservations. All Theta Upsilons in the area are invited to attend this Christmas meeting.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA

Much fun is in store for members of Northwest Suburban Alumnae Club of Alpha Gamma Delta who will attend the Christmas meeting Tuesday, Dec. 11, at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. C. S. Cline, 415 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights. Co-hostesses fo the affair will be Mrs. J. L. Smith and Mrs. C. F. Beck, both of Mount Prospect.

Three students, Miss Patricia Paul, Miss Rosemary Gordon and Miss Sally Fenn, musicians from Forest View High School, will highlight the evening with a program of Christmas song selections played on their violins.

Adding to the enjoyment of the party, the evening will consist of a sing-a-long of Christmas carols directed by Mrs. B. W. Markwell of Mount Prospect and Mrs. W. F. Davis of Buffalo Grove.

THE PROBLEM of securing unusual and clever handmade Christmas gifts, decorations, and homemade cookies made from the Alpha Gams' own recipes will be solved by members participating in an auction during the evening program.

New Alpha Gams in the area are welcome to attend the meeting and are asked to contact Mrs. W. F. Davis at LE 7-4204.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Mrs. William Lebsock of Arlington Heights is in charge of decorations for "Beaus and Belles," the annual Christmas party given by the Lyrette group of Alpha Chi Omega alumnae. The affair will be held in the Lake Forest home of Mrs. James L. VanderVort.

The traditional holiday buffet supper is open to members and their husbands and will begin at 6 p.m.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Friday, Dec. 14, Sigma Sigma Sigma Chicago Suburban—West Alumnae Chapter will hold its annual Bridge Christmas Party in the home of Mrs. Russell Sack, 502 North Gibbons, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Sack will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Wellnitz, 1031 South Dunton, Arlington Heights and Mrs. Howard Rudin, 505 South Dryden, Arlington Heights. The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m., and after the usual business meeting, the group will play bridge.

This year the alumnae group has decided to donate what they would usually spend on a grab-bag gift to the Lutheran Children's Receiving Home, Addison, to help make Christmas a happier occasion for the children there. Members feel this idea goes well with Sigma Sigma Sigma's philanthropic aim, Sigma Serves Children.

Any Sigmas in the area who wish to attend the party may contact Mrs. Russell Sack, the hostess, at CL 5-5529. (S DECORATIONS AND centerpieces for the "Kris Kringle Kaper" are being assembled by members of the dance committee Mrs. Robert Zalud, Mrs. William Matheson, Mrs. William Grady and Mrs. Julian Garcia. Sponsored by Arlington Heights Newcomers Club, the affair will be held Dec. 7 in Old Orchard Country Club and will be followed by a midnight buffet. Mrs. Richard Wood, 253-7975, is in charge of tickets. (S

Rainbow-Attired Attendants Lead Fall Bridal Procession

A large bridal party attired in rainbow-hued dresses attended the former Althea Jean Berlin of Palatine for her Nov. 3 marriage to Walter A. Schuler Jr. of Wheeling. The bride and her seven attendants entered the sanctuary of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine, at 4:30 in the afternoon for the double ring rites. Rev. R. C. Sauer united the pair before an altar decorated with bouquets of white carnations.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Delia Berlin, 340 N. Brockway St., Palatine. The groom's parents are the senior Schulers of 1054 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

GOWNED IN a floor length dress of imported chantilly lace, the bride came down the aisle on the arm of her brother, Ralph Berlin. Her traditional gown had a fitted bodice with long sleeves and sabrina neckline outlined with iridescents and seed pearls. The bouffant skirt was smooth in front, but the entire back was set in tiers of lace-edged ruffles and fell into a chapel train.

White roses, stephanotis and ivy surrounded a single white orchid, forming the bride's bouquet. Her bouffant veil was held in place by a small lace headpiece.

THE BRIDAL attendants were all gowned in identically styled dresses, each in a shade of the rainbow. The street length dresses were of silk organza with fitted bodice, oval neckline, brief sleeves and a tiered petal effect on the back of the skirt, similar to the bride's gown.

Each girl had a crescent bouquet of large bronze-toned mums, the maid of honor's highlighted with white stephanotis.

THE BRIDE'S sister, Sheila Berlin, was maid of honor in a coral gown. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Beverly Graham of Arlington Heights, a cousin of the bride, wearing a blue dress; Mrs. Marilyn Graham of Chicago, in maize; Mrs. Grace Hogoboam of Arlington Heights, in sea green; Shirley Walenter of Palatine, in orange sherbert color, and Joyce Schuler, the groom's sister, in orchid.

Audrey Motto, 4, of Des Plaines was flower girl in a dress which matched the maid of honor's and carried a white basket of bronze mums. John Gintz of Palatine, 4 years old, came down the aisle with her as ring bearer.

STANDING AT the altar with the groom were his best man, John Schoenbeck of Arlington Heights, and five groomsmen. They were the groom's two brothers, Leonard and Jim Schuler of Wheeling, Kenneth Scheer of East Dundee, Raymond Hogoboam of Arlington Heights, and Charles Benhart Jr. of Roselle, a cousin of the groom.

Organist for the ceremony was C. E. Goldenstern, who accompanied Kenneth Sodt as he sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

FOLLOWING THE wedding, a reception took place for 400 guests in the VFW Hall in Arlington Heights. The bride's mother received in a royal blue sheath dress with black and white accessories, the groom's mother in beige with brown accessories. Both had a corsage of pink roses.

After a week's honeymoon at the French Lick Sheraton Hotel in Indiana, the couple is now back in this area where both are employed. The bride, a Palatine High graduate, works at the Pure Oil Co. in Palatine. The groom, an Arlington High graduate, is an employe of Buckeridge Garage Door Co. in Arlington Heights.

Divorce Law 'Cooling-Off' Period Is Complete Flop

by MARGERY McELHENY
United Press International

The 60-day cooling off period in the Illinois divorce law was a "complete flop" in the opinion of many judges and attorneys in Cook County.

The law, which was enacted in 1955, was repealed in September of 1961. It required couples to file a notice of their divorce intentions, then wait 60 days before filing a formal complaint.

Originated by Judge Julius H Miner, now a Federal District Court judge, the cooling-off period was intended to prevent impulsive or ill-advised divorces. It was hoped that during the compulsory waiting period, voluntary reconciliation conferences held by judges would help bring many couples back together.

At the time the law was passed, Judge Miner said "No branch of our law has been more sadly neglected than domestic relations. No field demands reform more urgently and drastically."

MINER POINTED out that "cooling-off" periods are invoked to prevent labor troubles and are advocated in international disputes." He asked, "Why should the judiciary wait until the family is actually wrecked before it extends a helping hand to innocent minor victims?"

The law "was a complete flop here and also flopped in Michigan and New Jersey," said Superior Court Judge Harry G. Hershenson.

"We didn't have enough administrative aid to deal with couples," he said.

Hershenson said divorce or matrimonial cases make up 40 per cent of the total filed in Superior Court here. "Judge Raymond Drymalski and I hear 50 to 60,000 divorce motions a year and I hear from 100 to 300 motions a day," he said.

"UNDER THESE conditions, judges had little time to hold conciliation conferences, and the 60-day waiting period only meant more work for lawyers and therefore more fees."

Another reason the law failed, said Hershenson, "is that emergencies required us to waive the 60-day period."

Since women and children usually need financial support, he said, the court would have to step in if the husband tied up bank accounts or safety deposit boxes. "Perhaps he would try to sell the home or the furniture. Or he might be a wife or child beater. Occasionally the mother would desert the children, or maybe she would be alcoholic. In all of these cases we were forced to ignore the waiting period because immediate relief was clearly indicated."

Victor Neumark, chairman of the Commission on Matrimonial Law for the Chicago Bar Association, said the law "was a great waste of labor without results."

NEUMARK SAID that since the law was amended, a lawyer may choose to file a motion to use the cooling-off period, but is not obligated to. He added that most lawyers would not use the delay "because it is needless when it is obvious the couple will ultimately go through with the divorce.

"I don't think any marriages were saved as a direct result of the cooling-off period," he said.

Hershenson agreed, and added, "By the time a couple seeks a divorce, it's the last resort. They've already talked with counselors, with their minister, priest or rabbi, and with their families. Their lawyers have also tried to reconcile them."

Superior Court Judge Daniel A. Covelli said "There is value in any cooling-off perod if you can get people to think twice before taking the fatal step. If a judge wants to sit down with a couple and get them to air their troubles and vent their anger, sometimes this is enough to save a marriage. But this can be done in any divorce case, with or without a colling-off law."

HE CONTINUED, "Sometimes couples haven't talked with each other for weeks. They've stored up all their anger, remembered old injuries or imagined new ones, and there's absolutely no communication between them. They're like kids sometimes, and when they get a chance to talk things over, they feel better and begin to solve their own problems."

Covelli said, "Of course some cases are hopeless. If one party is an alcoholic, it's virtually hopeless. If one party wants to marry someone else, again, it's hopeless.

"A judge can usually tell immediately if there is any chance to reconcile a couple," Covelli added.

ALL OF THE judges interviewed agreed that judges are simply too busy to devote much additional time to conciliation conferences.

Neumark said "Judges Hershenson and Drymalski not only hear all the motions for divorce, but settle most of the cases as well. A look at their tremendous case load will give you an idea of how badly treated these judges are. And despite the backlog of all cases in our courts, you still can get a trial in a divorce suit within a year."

Neumark said he thought the Blue Ballot court reform amendment will help solve the problems of "the overworked divorce court."

"I think they'll provide more judges for that division," he said, "and help us elaborate on administrative aides. We may be able to call in ecclesiastic officials of all faiths, psychiatrists, social workers and others we need." (S

TV Spurs Special Toy Requests from Santa

by BETTY AINSLIE

Santa Claus doesn't dare bring just a doll or just a train this Christmas. It must be a Barbie, Chatty Kathy or Betsy McCall doll. An HO Santa Fe diesel or Lionel train or a toy by Mattel. But whatever it is that the youngsters would like to see in Santa's pack for them you can bet it's big and it's expensive.

"I just don't know how we can afford some of the new toys," a woman declared at the beauty shop where we were all sitting around in the various stages of being changed into something gorgeous. "When I say it's too expensive the kids just say—but Santa will bring it, you don't have to pay for it. What do you say to that?"

"I tell mine," said my hairdresser, "that Santa has to pay his helpers these days and so that's why things cost money so Santa will have enough for all the helpers pay. So far that's satisfied them," she finished.

"I TELL MY little girl," chimed in the woman next to me, "that we pay for our toys so Santa will have the chance to bring free toys to poor boys and girls. Anyway, at 5 or 6 money doesn't mean much."

Bobby and Susie watching TV before Thanksgiving are shown new toys that are THE special ones for this year. Remember the big as life walking dolls a couple years ago? These toys which are promoted over the youngster's TV program are especially attractive to the child always eager for new excitement. The toys are big, colorful, animated and expensive.

This toy business is a billion dollar industry, and when you notice the terrific difference in toy prices from one store to another you realize there must be a tremendous profit and mark up on playthings. Some stores will reduce a popular toy to below the cost price in order to get people to come into the store with the hope, of course, that they'll buy other items once in.

ALL THE stuffed animals which are offsprings of the original teddy bear, the stacks of games, and the almost for real looking baby dolls are a super attraction to me. Toy items are the first things purchased on my Christmas list because shopping for them is such fun. Things for Pop and the rest of the older males on my list always come last. Somehow shirts, ties and socks make for rather dull shopping.

This year I'm reliably informed, by a certain member of this family still young enough to be constantly in touch with the latest in toys, that this year it is batteries again—not just one or two mind you, but four or six or even a battery pack. And we can't even find a working flashlight around this house.

Do you do like I do? Buy one of these highly touted games or motorized affairs and forget completely about the batteries? So come Christmas morning and Mamma in her kerchief suddenly has visions of at least four toys that will spend the great day sans wrappings, but alone until we can go purchase the power to make them go.

IS THERE anything that runs without batteries? For instance the big selling items advertised for this year are loaded with plastic and dry cells. Gaylord the friendly Bassett hound who doesn't need to be housebroken. The Dino taken from the Fred Flintstone TV show. Odd Ozz who must be a charming froglike critter that sticks out his tongue and offers a battery operated bronx cheer—certainly an educational toy no doubt. Zor who runs around roaring and spitting out ping-pong balls if his tail is hit with a dart from the dart gun included. I should think the last two would be enough to give a youngster nightmares for a week. Even the dolls need batteries. One expensive little sweetheart actually plays back your own voice as you talk to her—how? With batteries of course.

Some of these new toys cost thousands of dollars to design and engineer. According to Sylvia Porter, a columnist for the Daily News, one toy manufacturer employs more doll hairdressers than the largest of the New York shops. And more dress designers than some dress manufacturing companies—and all of this just for a doll and her wardrobe.

A doll can't just be a doll. She has to laugh, cry, talk, walk and bring along a wardrobe and furnishings that are complete to the smallest detail, and all fit compactly into a trunk even if the price doesn't fit your pocketbook.

THE IMAGINATION and ingenuity that goes into the new toys is wonderful. All the educational toys advertised to be helpful to Junior will probably only fascinate Pop come Christmas morning. But a toy labeled educational can command a good price and Pop's respect even though Junior would probably prefer the latest animated monster seen on TV.

But toys are wonderful and it brings back a youthful spirit just to wander down the many aisles filled with them. To watch them perform. Exclaim in wonder over the lifelike features of a doll and be amazed at the just - like - mommy's sweepers and stoves, or fascinated by the number and the cleverness of tne new games.

Toyland truly is a magical land with a high price tag. But unlike the famous Victor Herbert piece you can return again and again to this mystical, wide eyed world, because just a visit yearly to the Christmas wonderland of a toy department can keep you young in heart through the holidays. (SOC

Jane Stumpf Becomes Robt. Wellman's Bride

Dr. Paul Louis Stumpf, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, gave his daughter, Jane, in marriage on Oct. 27 and also officiated in the double ring rites, along with Rev. George Kincheloe and Rev. Roger Kellogg. The bride is now Mrs. Robert Wellman, her groom also an Arlington Heights resident.

Dr. and Mrs. Stumpf and family reside at 702 S. Evergreen, and the groom's parents, the James Wellmans, live at 1610 Brown St.

THE LATE afternoon ceremony took place by candlelight with a reception following in the church fellowship hall, given by the church women's association.

For the wedding the bride wore a gown designed and made by a friend. The train of the peau de soie gown was a brocade which Dr. Stumpf brought back from Japan when he was on a missionary tour five years ago. The brocade was repeated in a midriff on the bodice of the simply-styled dress.

A peau de soie headpiece held the bride's short veil in place, and she carried a nosegay of white roses.

MRS. WILLIAM Crabbe of Chicago was her matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. William Box Jr. of Elk Grove, Miss Joyce Worchester of Mount Prospect and Mrs. George Beasley of DeKalb.

All were gowned alike in gold satin dresses, fashioned with scooped neckline, three-quarter sleeves and bell skirt. Each carried a cascade bouquet of bronze fugi mums interspersed with orange wheat.

Soloist Earl Auge sang "Jesus, Stand Beside Them" and "O Perfect Love" during the ceremony, accompanied by Mrs. Auge at the organ.

SERVING AS best man was Spencer Ewing of Arlington Heights, and ushers were William Box Jr. of Elk Grove, Lawrence Smith of Arlington Heights and George Beasley of DeKalb.

Receiving the guests after the nuptials, Mrs. Stumpf was attired in a three-piece pale green brocade ensemble and Mrs. Wellman in a royal blue pure silk jacket dress. Mrs. Stumpf's corsage was of dark green orchids and Mrs. Wellman's of white mums and pink roses.

The newlyweds honeymooned at the Wagon Wheel in Rockton and are now at home in Arlington Heights. Both are graduates of Arlington High School, the bride continuing her education at the University of Dubuque and the groom graduating from Ferris Institute in Big Rapids, Mich.

Both are employed in the local area, Mrs. Wellman in the office of Dr. V. R. Boman in Arlington and the groom at Curtis 1000 in Palatine.

Musical Surprise Planned For Arlington Clubwomen

The Music Study Group of Arlington Heights Woman's Club invites members and friends to a Christmas Musical Surprise, in which members will be the participants, on Thursday, Dec. 13, 1:30 p.m. in the Palatine home of Mrs. William Willy, 109 Winston Drive.

The club's scholarship winners, Janet Klinkey, voice, and Randy Opela, drums, will also entertain. Both of these students are juniors at Arlington High School and attended the Illinois Summer Music Camp at the University of Illinois.

RESERVATIONS for the afternoon may be made with members of the committee: Mrs. Paul Brna, CL 5-0269; Mrs. John Galandak, CL 3-5461; Mrs. George Hasbach, FL 9-1968; Mrs. Edward Pauly, CL 3-1962; Mrs. Charles Rehfeldt, CL 3-1385; or the chairman, Mrs. Hugh Hoym, CL 3-3149.

Following an established custom, Seventh District of Illinois Federated Women's Clubs will again be hostesses at the International Hospitality Center, 116 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago. The center will be open from Dec. 19 through Dec. 30.

Dec. 19, members of Arlington Heights Woman's Club have volunteered to act as receptionists, serve luncheon as well as afternoon tea, and in general, make any and all foreign visitors welcome. The center is used by students, business people and travelers.

TWENTY members have volunteered their services for that day. Many members have donated money to help purchase "trimmings" for the luncheon, others have promised to provide Christmas cookies.

Any member wishing to help with this project may call Mrs. George E. Vitoux, International Relations Chairman, at CL 3-2866. (S

Week's Best Food Buys

For the week of Dec. 3-8 the University of Illinois reports the following: market reaction firms wholesale meat costs despite heavier livestock receipts. Little retail price changes except for promotionally discounted selective cuts of pork, beef and lamb.

Fryers again bargain priced but in fewer stores. Egg prices have dropped; top quality tomatoes are scarce and other fresh produce supplies are ample.

Chicago area food values—meats, pork roasts, chops, bacon, blade chuck, beef chuck roasts, lamb roasts; produce—lettuce, radishes, celery, cauliflower, green beans, carrots, onions, potatoes, Emperor grapes, grapefruit, pears, oranges and bananas; poultry, fryers.

Shares Yule Goods With Family, Sick

by LOIS SEILER

About the middle of October Mrs. W. J. Willy starts her Christmas baking. It is imperative that she get an early start, for this energetic housewife makes about 35 different kinds of cookies and 25 varieties of candy, along with popcorn balls, fruit cakes and the like.

"And it is all gone by the week after Christmas," Mrs. Willy exclaimed. A good share of these goodies are given away to sick people and friends, a certain quantity is set aside for holiday callers and a sizable amount is consumed by her husband and three sons with hearty appetites, who like nothing better than sampling their mother's home-baked delicacies.

Mrs. Willy has a simple philosophy underlying this ambitious baking venture. She expressed it this way: "Christmas is a time to give of one's self, to express one's love for others, and I feel I can do this through my baking. The personal touch is so meaningful to people, and I feel that I am giving a little bit of my love in each cookie or piece of candy I make."

This, of course, is the true spirit of Christmas that Mrs. Willy admirably carries into other activities as well. An accomplished vocalist, she sings both professionally and for charitable causes, giving musical programs for various clubs, organizations and institutions during the holiday season as well as other times during the year. She also plays the harp, and enjoys painting in both oils and water colors.

This talented woman carries her vitality and enthusiasm into several organizations: the Palatine Women's Club, where she is music chairman; Palatine Presbyterian Church, where she sings in the choir and is fellowship chairman for the women's association, and the Community Concert Association as Palatine district chairman.

She also retains membership in the Arlington Heights Women's Club, is active in PTA and attends an art class at the Prospect High Adult Evening School.

Shirley Willy's artistic ability comes in handy in her baking endeavors too, as she paints many cookies with vegetable coloring, frosts others and decorates hundreds with sugared candies.

"Many of my recipes can be used year 'round," she said "but for Christmas I really dress them up. Our boys, for example, love cookie canes, wreaths and bon bon fancies in addition to the animal cookies and gingerbread men.

Shirley makes several batches of the sugar cookies, using a basic dough from which she also makes a stuffed cookie.

"This versatile recipe belonged to my grandmother," she said. "The filled cookies, which contain cooked figs or dates or Solo brand apricot filling, are a real man's cookie, and a big favorite with my men-folk."

Women love the Chocolate Cornflake Macaroons that look like snowballs, high, puffy and delicately brown. The Persian Cookies are chock-full fo chewy goodness, containing chopped dates, figs, candied pineapple, chopped nuts and coconut, while the Ice Box Cookies are an old-fashioned recipe for a flavorful rolled refrigerator dough containing dates and walnuts.

All three of these recipes were handed down to Mrs. Willy from her mother, and a special recipe for Molasses Crinkles was given to her by her sister-in-law. Perfectly round and all crinkly on top, these flat little crispy cookies have a delightful spicy flavor.

Shirley Willy's favorite fruit cake is more cake-like and lighter in texture and color than most.

"I'm not too fond of so many different varieties of candied fruit, and this cake contains only two kinds: candied cherries and pineapple. It has lots of nuts, both Brazil nuts and English walnuts, and a pound of dates. It looks very pretty when sliced."

Simple to make, this cake can be flavored with brandy, grape juice or wine. It can be baked long before the holidays, because the longer it stands, the better it is.

All of the cookies can be made months in advance, too, and frozen in tightly-covered tins. Mrs. Willy doubles or triples almost every recipe, so there is lots of pre-Christmas nibbling available for the family. "Children love cookies," this capable homemaker commented, "and baking for them is just part of being a mother."

Your children are certain to enjoy these delicious cookies too, and there is still lots of time to whip up several batches of this good cook's specialties.

Mr. and Mrs. Willy and their sons, David, 15, Paul, 9, and Tom, 6, reside at 109 Winston Drive in Winston Park, Palatine.

CHRISTMAS IS A family affair in the W. J. Willy's Palatine household. Mrs. Willy goes "all-out" in an ambitious baking venture, making about 35 varieties of cookies. She gets lots of help from her sons, Paul, 9, David, 15, and Tom, 6, in both decorating and eating her delicious homemade delicacies. (SH

GRANDMA BRICKER'S STUFFED COOKIES

Filling:

1 cup chopped figs or dates
1 cup sugar
1 cup water

Boil until quite thick. Let cool before using.

Rolled Cookies:

½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
3 cups all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Thoroughly cream shortening; add sugar. Add egg and beat well.

Sift dry ingredients together and add to batter alternately with the milk and vanilla. Mix thoroughly.

Roll out ⅛ inch thick on a lightly-floured surface. Cut with floured round cookie cutter. Put a teaspoon of the above filling or Solo Apricot Filling on one side and lift over the other side to cover. Prick with a fork and push sides of cookie down. Bake about 12 to 15 minutes in a 375 degree oven.

This recipe may also be used to make all kinds of rolled cookies, using cookie cutters appropriate for the season. They can be decorated with sugar candy, frosted or painted.

CHOCOLATE CORNFLAKE MACAROONS

3 egg whites
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
3 cups cornflakes
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate bits
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine egg whites and salt and beat until very foamy. Gradually add sugar; beat very stiff. Fold in remaining ingredients.

Drop from teaspoon onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 15 minutes. Yield: 6 dozen.

PERSIAN COOKIES

1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¾ cups sugar
2 eggs, well-beaten
⅓ cup dates, chopped
⅓ cup figs, chopped
⅓ cup candied pineapple
2 cups coconut
⅓ cup chopped nuts
3 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ cup milk

Combine shortening, salt and vanilla. Add sugar gradually; add beaten eggs and mix thoroughly. Mix in fruits, coconut and nuts.

Sift flour with baking powder and add to batter alternately with milk. Drop by teaspoonsful onto a cookie sheet and let stand a few minutes, then flatten with a glass covered with damp cloth. Bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes

OLD FASHIONED ICE BOX COOKIES

1 cup butter
2 cups brown sugar
2 eggs
3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup dates, chopped
1 cup walnuts, broken in pieces

Cream butter and sugar together thoroughly. Add eggs and mix well. Sift flour and baking soda together and add to batter. Mix in dates and nuts.

Form dough into rolls, wrap in waxed paper and let stand in refrigerator overnight. Slice and bake at 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes.

MOLASSES CRINKLES

¾ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
¼ cup molasses
2¼ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoons cloves
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon ginger

Cream shortening and sugar together thoroughly. Add egg and molasses. Sift flour, soda, salt and spices together. Beat into batter. Chill dough.

Roll dough into balls the size of a walnut. Dip in sugar. Place on cookie sheet and bake in a 375 degree oven about 15 minutes.

FRUIT CAKE

5 eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1¼ cups flour, sifted
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 pound whole Brazil nuts, shelled
1 pound whole English walnuts, shelled
1 pound whole dates
½ pound green candied cherries
½ pound red candied cherries
1 pound candied pineapple
½ cup wine or brandy or grape juice
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg until thick; gradually beat in the sugar. Add flour sifted with baking powder and beat well. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly.

Line two standard bread pans with greased waxed paper and pour in batter. Bake in a 275 to 300 degree oven for 1¼ hours. (SH

Wants a 'Life Together'

New Congresswoman Puts Key Stress on Her Family Needs

by UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

A new Illinois congresswoman, who shares her late husband's beliefs but dislikes party labels, said this week among her biggest tasks in politics will be keeping her family together.

"I certainly shall miss them," Mrs. Charlotte Reid of Aurora said, in reference to her two youngest children who live at home.

"I hope after this semester they can join me in Washington . . . and continue school there next year so we can have a family life together."

Mrs. Reid, a Republican, won her 15th District seat in the Nov. 6 election after filling a gap in the party slate left by the death of her husband, Frank B. Reid Jr. He had been nominated to run in the April primary, but suffered a fatal heart attack.

"I based my campaign on three fundamental ideas," she said. "Economy in government . . . decentralization of power where possible . . . and freedom of the individual."

"My husband and I discussed these ideas many times," she said. "I campaigned with him throughout the primary and later . . . and felt so much a part of all this."

MRS. REID said that indirectly her experience as a singer with the Don McNeill Breakfast Club radio show in the 1930s helped her campaign.

"I learned to enjoy meeting people," she said. "It doesn't bother me to appear before them and speak."

But following the rigors of the election race, she came down with laryngitis, and upon this she commented.

"I guess that's one time I talked too much."

Mrs. Reid said she didn't care for intra-party classifications. "I do rather dislike labels, because I think each person has a different idea of what a label means. I suppose if I had to have one, I would be a conservative," she said.

ON THE question of whom she would prefer for the GOP Presidential nominee in 1964, she said, "I wouldn't commit myself."

"I think that it is healthy to have varied ideas within the party," she added.

Mrs. Reid said her two youngest children, Susan, 16, and Tom, 19, will stay with their grandparents in Aurora until she gets settled in the Capital.

Her elder daughter, Pat, 22, is employed and her 20-year-old son, Frank, is in the Marines.

She said she was leaving Susan and Tom behind because she was "so unsettled . . . about what my duties will be at first and how much time I will have."

"I want to give all of my time and energy to my job—at least to begin with," she said.

"I'm going to try to find a place to live in Washington for the time being—just an apartment if possible."

MRS. REID said a fellow GOP congresswoman from Illinois, Mrs. Marguerite Stitt Church of Evanston, who is retiring, has been something of an inspiration for her.

"I have met and talked with Mrs. Church," she said. "I have followed her career.

"She has been a fine legislator . . . to try to even match her career would be a challenge."

Mrs. Reid, who was born in Kankakee but has lived most of her life in Aurora, said she planned to leave for Washington this week.

"I'm going into this with the idea of doing the very best I can," she said. "But I certainly realize the responsibilities will be tremendous when I think of all the people I'll be representing." (S

Senior Citizens Mark Second Anniversary

Members of Mount Prospect Senior Citizens Club celebrated the second anniversary of the club's founding at the monthly club meeting Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in Lions Park Field House in Mount Prospect. The club was started and is sponsored jointly by the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club and Mount Prospect Park District.

Members enjoyed a program on Hawaii presented by Charles Kuehn of the Des Plaines Travel Agency, who showed two films on Hawaii, distributed souvenir leis and conducted a quiz game for which he provided prizes.

REFRESHMENTS included a special birthday cake provided and served by the members of the board of Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club. Mrs. Kenneth Odmark, president of the Juniors, cut the cake and congratulated the club on its growth in its first two years and expressed the hope that it would continue to grow. Fifty-two senior citizens attended the affair. (S

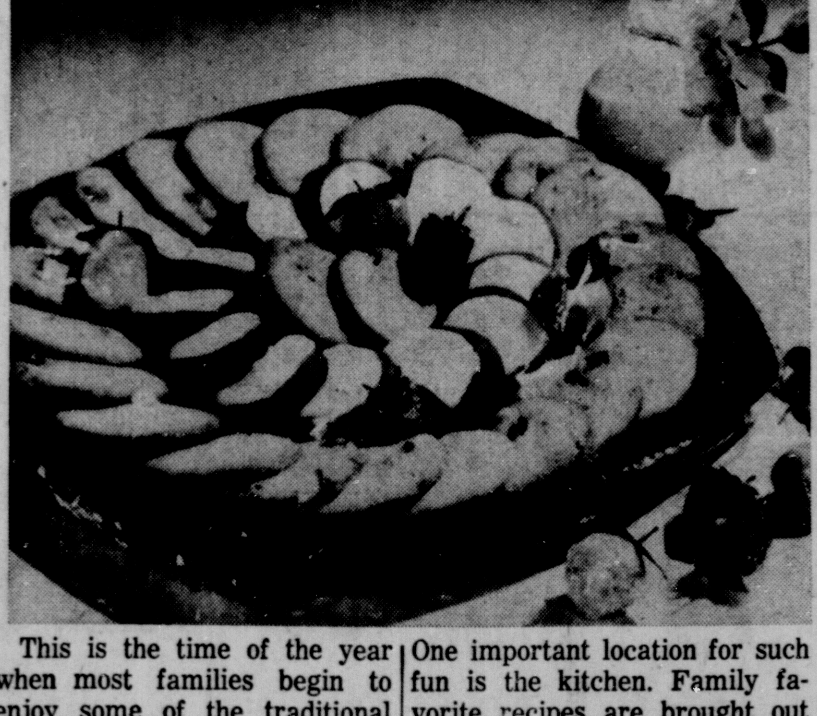
SERVING AS escorts were the boys of Prospect Chapter, Order of DeMolay, and Nancy's father, Richard Heilig, Past Master Builder, gave the Rose Ceremony from the ritual Order of the Builders.

Other local officers installed were: Dixie Alletto and Sandy Larsen, senior and junior princesses; Sue Livingston, guide; Ellen Davis, Marshal; Ellen Retterer, recorder; Jane Haynesworth, treasurer; Sue Heilig, chaplain; Sherrie Lister, librarian; Cathy Nelson, musician; Paula Myers, Gail O'Brien, Carol Cory, LuAnn Schmidt and Debbie Deehring, the five messengers; Carol Herda and Vicky Slater, senior and junior custodians; Donna Gephardt and Janet Olsen, inner and outer guards; and 11 choir members.

RETIRING HONORED Queen was Gayle Johnson and distinguished guest present was William Zibell, Associated Grand Guardian of the State of Illinois.

The first state meeting of these newly-installed officers of Bethel 103, of which Mrs. Carol Schaetzlein and Olav Larsen are guardian and associate guardian, will be held Wednesday, Dec. 12, at 7:30 p.m., at the Arlington Heights Masonic Temple. (S

Lemon Spice Drops Say Happy Holiday



This is the time of the year when most families begin to enjoy some of the traditional activities of the holiday season. One important location for such fun is the kitchen. Family favorite recipes are brought out and soon the aroma of fruit cakes, cookies, bread and other holiday foods begins to permeate the whole house.

Most folks have friends, neighbors, shut-ins and others whom they wish to remember at Christmas time, but there's often a question of what the gift should be. Baked foods of your own making can answer this question.

For instance, cookies can be attractively arranged on a reusable plate or tray, then over wrapped with sparkling saran. When this is done, the real goodness of your baked gift will show through and protect the freshness and flavor.

No need to buy expensive gift wraps when you have saran right in your kitchen. Gifts from the kitchen have a very special appeal and will convey the real spirit of the season. Even the most particular person will be pleased with your thoughtfulness.

LEMON SPICE DROPS

½ cup butter
½ cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup molasses
2 tablespoons bottled lemon juice
2½ cups sifted all purpose flour
½ teaspoon soda
1½ teaspoons ginger
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
2 teaspoons bottled lemon juice

Cream butter and sugar until smooth. Add egg and beat well. Add molasses and two tablespoons bottled lemon juice. Sift together dry ingredients. Combine milk and two teaspoons bottled lemon juice.

Add dry ingredients alternately with milk mixture to smooth. Drop by teaspoonsful onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) about 15 minutes or until done. Frost with Lemon Icing. Yield: 6 dozen.

LEMON ICING

2 cups confectioners' sugar
¼ cup melted butter
3 tablespoons bottled lemon juice

Blend all ingredients together until smooth. Spread over baked Lemon Spice Drops. (SH

Go Spanish This Year With Gay Yule Table

The stand-up buffet is still one of the most popular of all forms of entertainment, especially during the holiday season, but hostesses now seek more satisfying foods to offer guests than the "finger-to-mouth" kind. Some excellent hors d'oeuvres ideas come from Spain, where the "tapas hour," like our cocktail hour, often extends from 7 in the evening until 10 or 11 p.m.

Before the mid-day meal as well, elaborate hors d'oeuvres are commonly served, called "entremeses."

Spanish hostesses have learned that olive oil can do much to keep hors d'oeuvres fresh looking even when the foods must stand for hours. Stuffed eggs, for example, with a thin film of olive oil brushed over the top will not get that dried-up look. Any kinds of cooked vegetables, whether artichokes, green beans, or carrots, if marinated in an olive oil dressing, will remain flavorful and delicious.

EVEN SMOKED salmon makes a more delicious appetizer when marinated in Spanish olive oil.

A Spanish buffet table may include a cold baked ham, shrimp with mayonnaise, crisp batter-fried seafood, stuffed olives, and a mixed seafood-and-meat salad, as well as stuffed eggs and marinated vegetables.

With such a buffet, one hot dish, served from a casserole, makes a substantial meal.

HUEVOS RELLENOS (STUFFED EGGS)

6 hard-cooked eggs
6 anchovy fillets, minced
1 teaspoon capers, drained
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 tablespoons Spanish olive oil
1 teaspoon vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste
6 strips pimiento

Cut eggs in half, removing yolks. Mash yolks with a fork, add anchovy, capers, parsley, olive oil, vinegar and seasonings, blending well. Refill whites, piling lightly. Lay a strip of pimiento across the top of each, or a slice of pimiento-stuffed olives. Chill. Makes 12.

PIMIENTOS FRITOS

Drain canned pimientos, cut in 2-inch squares, saute in Spanish olive oil with 2 or 3 peeled cloves of garlic until delicately browned. Remove garlic, discard; sprinkle pimientos with salt. Serve cold as an hors d'oeuvre, sprinkled with minced fresh parsley.

ALCACHOFAS CON JAMON (ARTICHOKES WITH HAM)

2 packages frozen artichoke hearts
½ cup Spanish olive oil
¼ cup minced cooked ham
2 slices onion
½ lemon, sliced
½ teaspoon salt

Place frozen artichoke hearts in heavy saucepan with the olive oil and salt, cover, heat until frozen blocks can be broken up. Add ham and onion, place lemon slices over top, cover again, cook until artichokes are tender. Serve hot or cold in their own sauce. Strips of pimiento may be added for color, if desired.

ENSALADA MIXTA

1 can (7 oz.) tuna fish, drained
¼ cup sliced chorizo sausage or diced salami
4 ounces boiled ham, cut in thin strips
2 or 3 tomatoes, quartered
1 small onion, thinly sliced
¼ cup Spanish olive oil
¼ teaspoon salt, or to taste
Freshly-ground black pepper
1½ tablespoons vinegar
4 hard-cooked eggs, quartered

Chop tuna in big chunks, combine in bowl with sausage, ham, tomatoes, and onion. Cover with olive oil, salt and pepper, and vinegar. Marinate half an hour. Arrange over salad greens with eggs arranged as garnish. Sprinkle a little of the dressing over the eggs to keep them fresh until served. (SH

Bright Cranberry Gifts From the Heart of Home

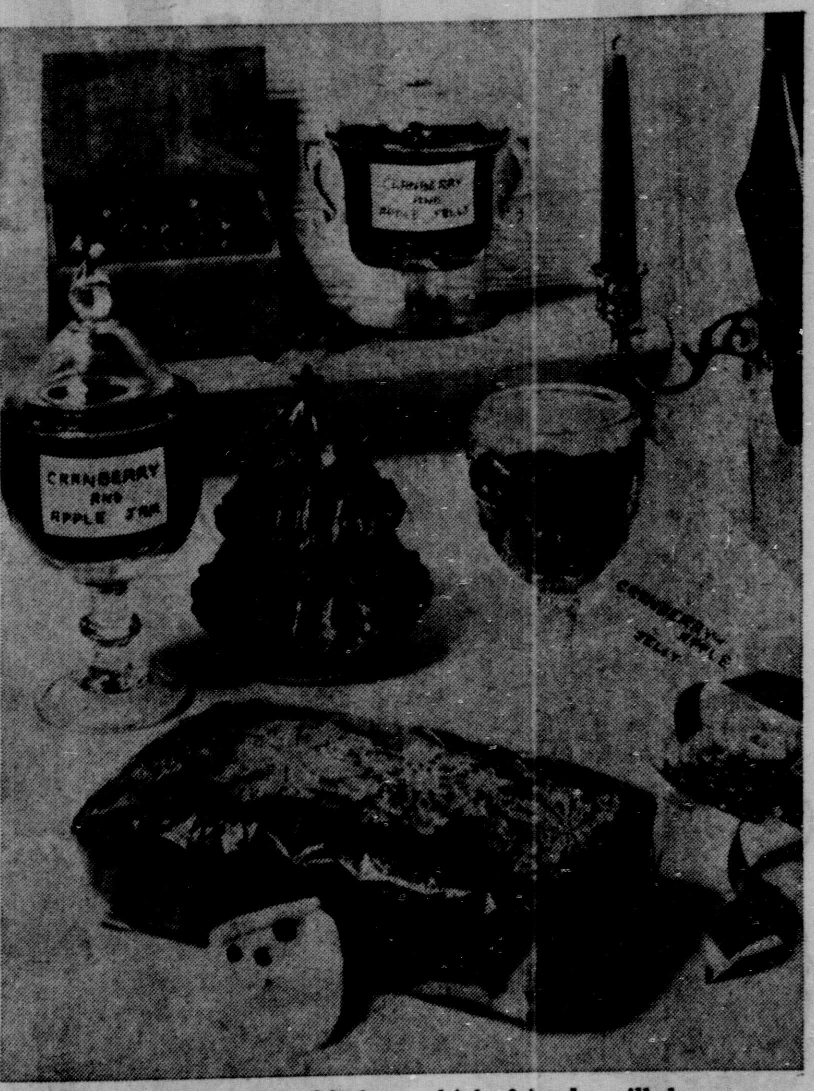
One good way to get into the spirit of a "Merry Christmas" is to make charming little gifts to give to all those nice people with whom you don't really "exchange" gifts. Such tokens of good will and good wishes are especially welcome when they come from the kitchen—a loaf of nut bread fresh from the oven, a few jars of jam or jelly, a box of your best cookies.

The brightest, reddest, most Christmasy ingredient you can use for such holiday gifts is the cranberry. For something quite different, try a beautiful, ruby red cranberry jelly, the kind you can see through, that quivers delicately when passed along with a plate of hot biscuits.

This will cause a stir because it's so different from the usual jellied cranberry sauce. The solid remainder of the pulp makes a nice spicy Cranberry and Apple Jam. These two gifts can be made weeks before Christmas.

Fresh Cranberry Orange Bread or Fresh Cranberry Kuchen are easy gifts from the kitchen which may be gift-wrapped and delivered a week or two before Christmas as a pre-holiday treat.

The Molded Cranberry Fruit and Nut Salad couldn't be wrapped, of course, but would be a delicious treat for a good neighbor who's done past favors.



GIFTS FROM YOUR kitchen which friends will love — a clear ruby-red cranberry jelly; apple jam and cranberry in odd and pretty containers; and a cranberry and orange nut bread, chamingly wrapped. (SH

CRANBERRY AND APPLE JELLY

4 lbs. fresh cranberries
2 quarts peeled diced tart apples
2 quarts water
Sugar

Wash cranberries and place in a saucepan with apples and water. Cover, bring to boiling point and cook 10 minutes or until skins of cranberries burst and apples are soft. Line a colander or sieve with a double thickness of cheese cloth.

Place in a large bowl or large saucepan that just fits the top of colander or if you have a jelly bag use it and let it hang overnight or until it stops dripping. Never press the bag or the jelly will be cloudy. (Save the cranberries and apples left in the bag to make jam.)

MEASURE THE juice (6¾ cups). Measure ¾ cup sugar to each cup of juice and set it aside. Turn the juice into 5 to 6 quart kettle. Bring to boiling point and boil 3 minutes. Gradually stir in sugar and cook 12-14 minutes or until two drops run together when poured from the side of a metal spoon.

Turn into hot sterilized jars and seal airtight at once. Yield: 4 pints.

CRANBERRY AND APPLE JAM

Measure the cooked cranberry and apple mixture left in the jelly bag (8 cups). Add ¾ cup sugar to each cup of the mixture. Turn into a 4-quart saucepan, mix well. Add 4 two-inch cinnamon sticks. Stir and cook 10 to 15 minutes or until thoroughly hot. Ladle into hot sterilized jars.

Seal airtight. Yield: 5 pints.

FRESH CRANBERRY-ORANGE BREAD

1 cup coarsely chopped raw cranberries
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 tablespoons sugar
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
¾ teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
1 large egg, beaten
½ cup orange juice
½ cup water
1/3 cup shortening, melted
1 cup chopped pecans

Combine cranberries, orange rind and the 2 tablespoons sugar. Set aside for later use. Sift together flour, soda, salt and the ¾ cup sugar. Combine egg, orange juice and water. Add to flour mixture along with melted shortening, cranberries and pecans.

Stir only until all ingredients are blended. Turn into a well-greased, lightly floured 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) 60 minutes or until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean.

Remove from oven. Bread will slice better, if made the day before serving. Yield: One 9-inch loaf. (SH

Fast 'n Fancy Fruitcake

For gifts, for snacking, or to serve with pride at your holiday open house, there's nothing quite like rich, moist fruitcake. This recipe fits the busy season's schedule nicely, too, because it starts with Date Bread Mix.

With a few quick additions you'll have a loaf or individual fruitcakes as full of goodies as a Christmas stocking.

DATE FRUITCAKE

1 package date bread mix
1 cup chopped pecans
1½ cups chopped candied fruit
½ cup raisins

Prepare date bread mix adding candied fruit, pecans and raisins with the dry mix. Bake at 350 degrees for 65 to 70 minutes. Glaze with warm corn syrup and garnish with candied fruit. Cool thoroughly before slicing.

Miniature Fruitcakes: Bake in 24 paper-lined or greased muffin cups for 30 to 35 minutes. (SH

Gift Exchange Is Yule Dance Feature

A unique gift exchange will be a highlight of the Bucks and Does Square Dance Club Christmas dance which will be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Higgins School, Touhy and Higgins, Elk Grove.

Instead of the usual grab bag, members who care to may bring small gifts to be given to patients of Dunning State Hospital, where the women enjoy cosmetics, tote bags, soap and wash cloths, aprons and combs; and men like to receive shaving preparations, wallets, socks and scarves.

"GIFTS SHOULD be marked whether meant for a woman or a man," said Mrs. Mildred Christiansen.

After the first of the year, the dancers will visit the hospital on Wednesday nights to instruct the patients in square dancing. Regular caller Bob Lewis will alternate with Wallie Paulsen calling the sets.

Anyone interested in the project may call Mrs. Christiansen at CL 5-0323.

The BOWLERS DIRECTORY

Deadline

Deadline for publication of bowling scores is 4:00 Monday afternoons at the office of Paddock Publications. League secretaries and bowling proprietors are urged to remember this deadline, and do everything possible to have the scores on time.

No standings will be taken over the telephone.

There is a mail slot at the left of the front door at Paddock Publications for deliveries after 5 p.m.

Forest View Frosh Lose On the Mats

Glenbrook North edged Forest View's frosh wrestling squad, 29-21, Saturday in the season opener.

The meet was tied at 21 all with the two matches left but the Spartans picked up a pin and a decision for the victory, according to coach Bob Walther.

Bruce Dunker (95 pounds); Jim Kubik (103); and Pete Phillips (165) all won matches on pins for the Falcons. Ken Andrews and Dick Henderson picked up decisions.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

A UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS surgeon has said most athletic injuries are caused less by the viciousness of competition than by the "abysmal physical condition of some of the participants."

"This is particularly true in the case of high school athletics, and more missionary work is needed in this field," Dr. Theodore A. Fox said recently.

Fox placed part of the blame for sports injuries on "fanatically zealous parents who just have to see Johnny strut his stuff on the field of valor even though Johnny may not have the stuff physically."

"Some parents, especially Dads, cannot conceive that their sons are not athletically inclined," he said. "I mean both the 'All-America' Dad who insists his son follow in his footsteps and the athletically poor father who seeks to bask in the reflected glory of his son's athletic prowess."

Here we go again. There goes another blast leveled at the parents. It certainly has some obvious merit and we would be the first to admit that, but we feel there's a definite need to give Mom and Dad a pat on the back once in a while in their association with the high school athlete.

It isn't easy to raise a teenage boy today. We speak from observation, not experience. Mom and Dad certainly feel a joy in watching their son grow into a man, but there also is the anquish of worry for the present and the future.

There's a worry that the boy will associate with the "wrong crowd." And if the parents see their boy hurdle the present dangers, there is that battleground of the future where the spirited competition of the high school days yields to a much more severe competition.

High school football serves as an illuminating example of the parent-son relationship. Any boy playing football owes a debt of gratitude to his parents as they make a considerable sacrifice by allowing him to even try out for the football team.

Another prep football season has found its way into the record book, and we can only reflect on the 10-15 years we've been watching the game. Reports of football facilities are certainly infrequent in comparison to automobile accidents, but they still cannot be dismissed by the parents of a boy who plays football.

There is no such thing as an ordinary game or routine play for the parent of the football player. A boy is stretched out on the field during the contest, and all parents in the stands anxiously look for the jersey number of their sons.

One father and mother will not heave a sigh of relief.

Wouldn't it have been easier for Mom and Dad to simply say, "No, son, you can't play football." When consent was given, the parents felt that character and personality are molded perhaps firmer and faster in the average boy who plays football. A participant in a contact sport is more likely to be repelled by brutality in his personal life.

The average football player enjoys the game and it never occurs to him that his parents regard his playing with mixed emotions. They do and for this alone, the boy owes them much.

We have our over-zealous parents who push their children too far in many endeavors, including athletics. This is unfortunate.

But let's not forget that we're speaking of the minority. These are the exceptional cases — the rarity, not the rule.

In Interim Loop

Two Cage Tilts Set For Falcons

Forest View's varsity cagers move into Interim League action in earnest this weekend with a two game card.

Coach Ken Arneson will take his squad to West Leyden for the first game Friday. The Falcons will return to the home court Saturday to face unbeaten Niles West (3-0).

West Leyden has split two games this year, beating Ridgewood, 59-43, and bowing to Glenbard East, 40-39, in an Interim contest last week.

THE KNIGHTS from Northlake posted only four wins in 21 games last season and have only three lettermen returning.

Jim Playzk, a 5-6 senior is the only starter left over from last year's team. The other returnees are Jim Nardiello, a 5-7 junior, and Len Breston, a 6-1 senior.

Coach Sid Gerenstein's club lacks size and has not been challenged so far this season.

Niles West, although small (they have no starter over 6-0), has beaten both Palatine and Wheaton, and may be troublesome. They are quick, and scrappy, according to the reports of victims, and should be one of the toughest teams the Falcons face all year.

ARNESON SAID he plans no change in his starting lineup. Dick Anderson and Garron Kokai will remain at the forwards; Brian Karp at center; and Joe Mueller and Russ Barger in the backcourt. Chip Julin, a standout in the Morton West loss, should also see action.

Mueller has averaged 14 points a game in the Falcons' first three tilts this year, and appears to be the bulk of the Forest View offense.

Arneson is still working on fundamentals and the fastbreak offense, and feels his team is coming along.

"We have a lot of work to do yet," said Arneson. "But I think we'll come along alright!"

Both weekend contests open with jayvee games at 7 p.m. Varsity games start at 8:30 p.m.

Seeks More Shooting, Rebounding

Kinneman to Change Lineup For Two-Game Roundball Trip

by BILL HALLS

In an effort to get some scoring punch and rebounding strength into his Prospect High basketball squad, coach Dick Kinneman plans "some changes in personnel" for two weekend road games, starting tomorrow night at Morton West.

Saturday, the Knights move on to West Leyden in Northlake. Jayvee games start at 7 p.m.

ALTHOUGH playing well on defense, the Knights have lacked scoring punch in two outings this year, averaging only 35 points a game on offense. The defensive average is an excellent 38 points per game, but this is fruitless if you can't score.

"WE LEARNED a lot about our personnel in the first two games," said Kinneman, talking about possible lineup changes. "We need a little more speed and shooting out there."

The rebounding also bothers Kinneman. The Knights managed only one rebound off the offensive backboards against Maine West in the first half. The Warriors grabbed off 10.

At Morton West

5-11	or Groh
5-10	White	G	Moss	5-10

TIME:
Jayvee game, 7 p.m.
COACHES:
Prospect, Dick Kinneman; Morton West, John Capron

But more important, Maine took five of nine first half rebounds away from Prospect on the defensive boards.

THE SHAKEUP will include Ron Moehling, 6-0, and Don Neubert, 6-2, a pair of juniors who scored 14 points between them in relief roles against the Warriors.

Dick Smith, a 5-10 senior, may also get a chance to crack the starting lineup.

Moehling is a fine shooter, and Neubert has been impressive on the boards.

The Morton West front line averages close to 6-4, and is led by Carl Gatlin, a vastly improved ballplayer this year, according to Ken Arneson, whose Forest View Falcons dropped a 52-44 decision to Morton last weekend.

"THIS BOY must be one of the best centers in the league," said Arneson. "He was outjumping my boys by six inches under the basket."

Gatlin scored 18 points

FORWARD JIM HOGARTY of Prospect whips a pass to a teammate in the Knights' 46-38 loss to Maine West Friday. Prospect was strong on defense but lacked scoring punch. Coach Dick Kinneman plans some personnel changes before tomorrow's clash with Morton West.

St. Viator Suffers Two Cage Reversals

There are four months in the St. Viator High School varsity basketball season.

November and December are devoted to non-league competition.

The Lions get down to a little more important business in January and February when they hook up in conference wayfare.

Phase one of this schedule has produced three reversals in four outings, but head coach Ron Feiereisel isn't that pessimistic over the cage outlook at the Arlington Heights school.

"WE'RE A YOUNG team," Feiereisel commented, "and these nine non-conference games we play before the holidays will give the boys some important experience to carry into the conference schedule.

"Right now our youth and inexperience are hurting us. We are lacking that little extra effort that it takes to win, and this could be from the lack of seniors on the team. We don't have that senior to lead us on the floor."

St. Viator is slated to hook up in another weekend doubleheader with a home contest Friday against Foreman. The Lions will hit the road Saturday for a game at Marian Central.

Both contests will be preceded by frosh-soph preliminaries at 7 p.m.

St. Viator was scheduled to host towering Farragut yesterday (Wednesday).

FEIEREISEL has been stressing defense in drills this week. "We've been giving up too many cheap baskets," he explained. "Our scoring hasn't been too bad, but we need a lot of work on defense.

"We're also getting into too much foul trouble. We've lost some key boys on personals in close games."

JIM MURRAY

Feiereisel continued to praise the efforts of Jim Murray, who has dialed 20-plus points in each of his four outings. Jim had two 20-point efforts last weekend as St. Viator dropped 57-52 and 55-46 decisions to Maryville Academy and Glenbrook.

BILLY NAGEL whipped in 31 points to lead Maryville to its

DAVE WHITE OF PROSPECT gets off a jump shot in the Maine West game Friday. The Maine player is John Gabbert (25). White scored 12 points to lead the Knights but it wasn't enough as Maine went on to win, 46-38.

St. Viator Drops Two Soph Games

Maryville Academy and Glenbrook posted victories over St. Viator's sophomore basketball team last weekend.

Maryville rolled to a 50-32 victory on Friday evening, and Glenbrook's junior-varsity aggregation handled the young Lions 51-37 Saturday.

Nothing went right for the locals Friday as they were guilty of repeated errors in the 18-point setback. Maryville vaulted to a 15-5 first period lead and held a 23-14 advantage at halftime.

Richard Merkel sparked the Lions with 12 points on five baskets and two free throws. John Kidd pitched in six points, Mike Hughes and Mike Hogan added five, and Ron Bakalar collected four.

Score by quarters:

Maryville	15	8	15	12—50
St. Viator	5	9	9	12—32

ST. VIATOR played its best game of the season Saturday evening against a junior-varsity team, but Glenbrook's superior experience paid off in a 51-37 decision.

Rich Reardon popped in a jump shot at the outst of the third quarter to pull the Lions into a 24-all deadlock, but the Spartans then applied a full-court press and coasted home with the decision.

Sophomore John Kidd paced the St. Viator attack with 16 points on six baskets and four free throws, and he did a masterful job on the boards. Ron Bakalar tossed in 10 and Reardon added five.

Demons Boast 4-1 Standard

Arlington Seeks Fifth Straight Cage Victory

by BOB FRISK

A powerful schoolboy basketball division through the years, the West Suburban Conference is headed for another crazy, mixed-up season.

Few campaigns in history have been launched amidst as much confusion as that surrounding the 1962-63 scramble. Trying to pick a favorite borders on the impossible.

Riverside-Brookfield looked good beating touted York, but is York strong this winter just because it went downstate last year? LaGrange is a hot-and-cold outfit, bombing someone one night and getting bombed the next.

MAINE EAST breezes past four straight opponents then suffers a one-sided setback to Elgin. Arlington picks up four straight wins and shows promise, but the Cards won their first five last year before dropping a pair and fans are reserving judgment right now.

Hinsdale is faced with a building year, but the Red Devils could give anyone fits. Glenbard West either wins big or gets clobbered and is a real question-mark. Downers Grove has dropped four straight and appears to be the best bet for a cellar position, but the Trojans are young and could find themselves in due time.

With this confusing state of affairs is it any wonder that every game is "crucial" for each of the eight league schools?

BASED ON the hardwood firing thus far, the league headliner this Friday evening will take place in the Arlington High School gymnasium when the varsity Cardinals battle the Maine East Blue Demons.

Combined, the two clubs have picked up eight victories in nine outings and have shown enough class to be considered bona fide title contenders.

Arlington has never won a varsity basketball crown in the West Suburban and with Chuck Close and Gary Brodnan scheduled to pick up their diplomas next June the Cards would do well to do some serious thinking about the loop flag.

GUARDS THE calibre of Close and Brodnan don't come around very often, and head coach Norm Patberg is well aware that even with his three frontline performers back for 1963-64 he'll be pressed to find some backcourt support.

The performances put on by Close and Brodnan in the Cards' last two victories were spectacular, particularly in Saturday's conquest of neighboring Barrington. Over-all, the talented seniors dialed 86 points in the two wins with Chuck collecting 47 and upping his per game average to an even 20.0.

Patberg was satisfied with his squad's efforts against Hinsdale and Barrington and was encouraged by some marked improvement in the rebounding department.

"BUT WE still need a lot of work," Norm emphasized. "We definitely have more offensive punch than we did last winter, but we're not nearly as effective yet on defense. The next month should tell the story on just what to expect from this team."

TIME:
Frosh-Soph game, 7 p.m., Fri.
COACHES:
Arlington, Norm Patberg; Maine East, Bernie Brady

Patberg's main concern through the first few weeks of the season has been directed at the perplexing pivot slot with both senior Phil O'Connell and junior Greg Buczynski battling for the job. Buczynski has earned the starting berth right now, but O'Connell still is very much in the picture.

One discouraging item in the Cards' play has been its work at the free throw line, a spot where many games are won and lost. Arlington missed 25 throws in the two games last weekend, including several that carried with them bonus shots, and improvement has to come in this department immediately.

MAINE EAST will bring a club to Arlington Friday that sports fair over-all height without any imposing big man the likes of 6-5, 230-pound Steve Smith who sparked the Demons last winter.

Coach Bernie Brady lost two good boys in center Smith and guard Johnny Hanson, but he has molded a swift unit that rebounds well for its size and also can score with the best.

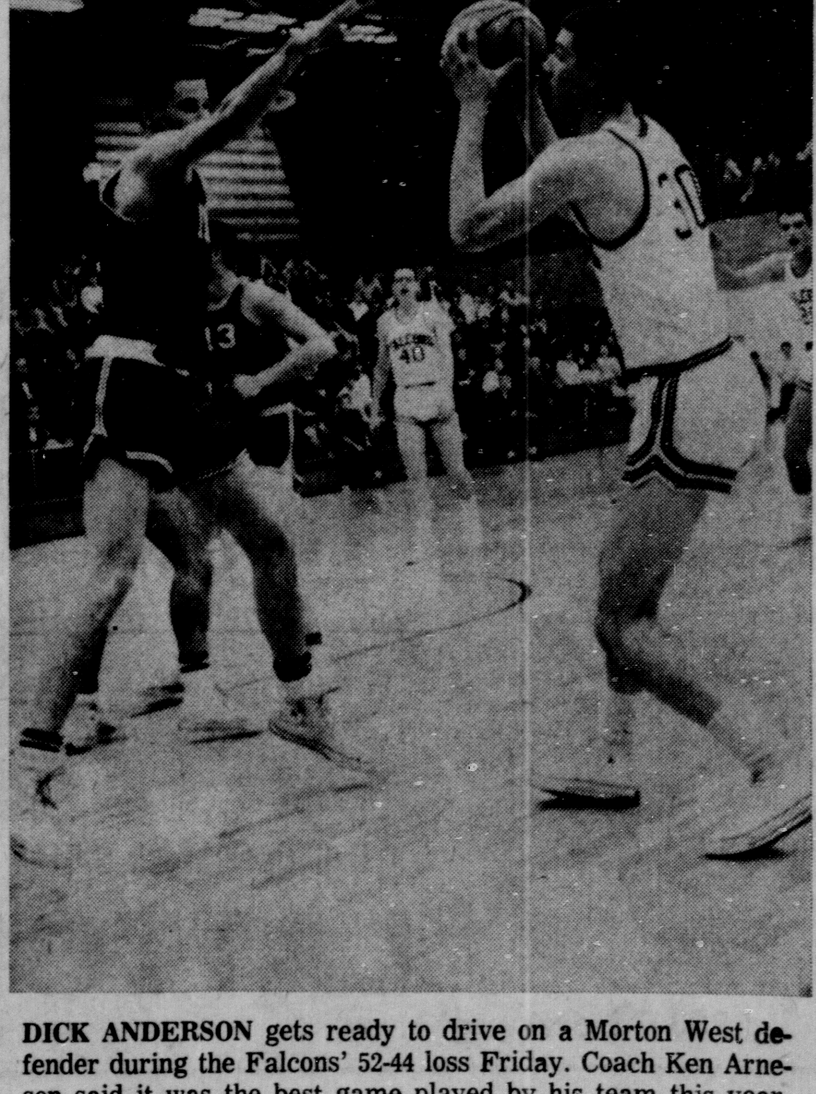
The Blue Demons feature exceptional balance in their scoring department without relying on any one boy. Maine averaged 67 points per game in victories over Crystal Lake, Evanston, New Trier, and Glenbard West and cashed in with 55 in a 19-point loss to Elgin last Saturday.

BRADY WILL open with Bill King (6-2) and Len Diorio (6-2) at the forwards, Jeff Jonswald (6-3) at center, and George Collins (6-0) and Jim Spohnholtz (6-0) at guards. Bob Kuntz (6-3) and Dave Petrick (6-0) are the top reserves.

Brady says his boys were just "flat" in the 74-55 loss to Elgin. And the Watch City quintet was idle on the previous evening while Maine had to kick off its league slate.

Arlington handled Maine East on two occasions last winter in West Suburban firing, but lost to the Blue Demons in the crucial regional finale.

Friday's varsity contest will be preceded by a frosh-soph preliminary at 7 p.m.



DICK ANDERSON gets ready to drive on a Morton West defender during the Falcons' 52-44 loss Friday. Coach Ken Arneson said it was the best game played by his team this year.

Knights Host Willowbrook In Gymnastics

Coach Rick Farris will have nine lettermen back for the Interim League gymnastics opener with defending champion Willowbrook at Prospect High on Friday, Dec 14.

The Knights, who finished third in the conference but eighth in the state meet last year, have a good chance for an improved showing.

Gary VanderVoort, a versatile senior, heads the list of returning lettermen. Farris plans to use him in three of the six meet events, including VanDerVoort's specialty, parallel bars. Vander Voort finished eighth among state schoolboys in that event last spring. He will get a shot at the rings and horizontal bar this year as well.

ALSO BACK are Rick Anderson, Bob Sabey, John Sowinski, Tim Jennings, Dan Price, Jim Smith, Dave Leekley and John Strobel. All are seniors except Jennings and Strobel.

The probable starting lineup looks something like this.

SIDEHORSE: Anderson, who finished third in the state meet last year, along with Sabey, a fourth place in the 1962 conference meet. The third spot will probably go to sophomore Ken Stubenrauch.

PARALLEL BARS: Farris plans to use VanderVoort, Sowinski and Wayne Deeke, a senior with two years experience

RINGS: VanderVoort will get the starting call again here along with Jennings. A pair of seniors, Roger Major and Wayne Aronson are fighting it out for the third spot.

HORIZONTAL BARS: VanderVoort again, this time behind Price. The third spot will go to Scott Paris, a junior.

TUMBLING: Farris is strong in this event with two lettermen, Smith and Leekley, both back. The third spot is a toss-up between juniors Brian Williams and Al Smith.

TRAMPOLINE: Letterman Strobel is back, but this is the team's weakest event in terms of experience. Bruce Frasch, a junior, has looked good. The other spot will go to either Pat Kivland or Mike Zadel, both sophomores.

With good depth in most events, Farris should have another winner this year. He will be assisted by Fred Gaines on the freshman and sophomore level.

Arlington Sophs Seek First Win Friday Evening

Still searching for that first victory of the season, Arlington High's frosh-soph basketball team will host Maine East Friday evening at seven o'clock.

Coach Bob Baker's Cardinals, saddled with four straight setbacks, had trouble getting untracked on offense last weekend and dropped 43-21 and 42-29 decisions to Hinsdale and Barrington.

The young Cardinals had only one point in the first period and seven at halftime in the contest at Hinsdale and claimed just 12 at the intermission Saturday evening.

Hinsdale moved out to a 26-6 halftime advantage in the West Suburban contest and had little trouble the rest of the way.

Guard Mike Frase was Arlington's top scorer with eight markers on four baskets, and Bob Connors chipped in with five. Otherwise, no other Cardinal had more than one basket.

Score by quarters:

Arlington	1	6	4	10—21
Hinsdale	9	17	9	8—43

CONNORS ENJOYED a 16-point effort Saturday against Barrington, but the lanky soph had no support as the Cards dropped a 13-point decision. Bob whipped in seven points in the first half and had seven more in the final quarter.

Jerry Fink added five points on a two and one evening. Two points represented the next best output by an Arlington performer.

Score by quarters:

Arlington	4	8	8	9—29
Barrington	10	11	13	8—42

Falcons Fight Morton; Collapse At Elgin Larkin

After fighting Interim League defending champion Morton West down to the wire before losing a 52-44 decision in the league opener Friday, Forest View High ran out of gas the next night at Elgin Larkin, and got blitzed by the Royals, 47-31.

Morton led all the way by a four to nine point margin, but the stubborn Falcons, playing in their new gym for the first time, stayed in the ball game until the final gun.

"It was our best ball game so far," observed Coach Ken Arneson. "We shut out Gatlin in the second and third quarters."

CARL GATLIN, Morton's 6-5 jumping jack center, collected 18 points, but managed only two free throws in the middle two stanzas.

Meanwhile, guard Joe Mueller carried the hot hand for the Falcons.

The 6-1 backcourt act split the nets on nine of 13 field goal attempts for a robust 69.2 shooting percentage. Mueller tallied six of 11 shots at the foul line, and led all scorers with 24 points.

The Falcons hit on 17 of 43 floor shots for a creditable 37 per cent. Morton hit 20 of 42 attempts for 46 per cent.

FOREST VIEW lost center Brian Karp on personal fouls in the third quarter but Chip Julin, his replacement, hit two field goals and snatched seven rebounds in the final eight minutes of play.

The Larkin game was a different story. Forest View managed only 12 field goals in 41 shots for a mediocre 27 per cent. Larkin wasn't much better, hitting 17 of 53 shots (32 per cent), but as the game wore on, the Royals got better, and the Falcons worse.

"Our defense fell apart after a good start," said Arneson. "I guess it was playing two nights in a row for the first time. The boys haven't had that experience yet.

Karp paced the Falcons with nine points, but Mueller had a poor night from the floor, hitting only two of 12 shots.

five-point decision over the Lions. St. Viator trailed throughout the contest Friday but pulled within two points of the Terriers in the fourth period.

However, the Lions were unable to overtake the experienced hosts, and the Terriers put the game out of reach with some more sniping by Nagel.

Sophomore forward Jim Vidt turned in a solid game for St. Viator on the boards and on defense and also contributed 10 points to a losing cause. Soph Chuck Grandt appeared to overcome the jitters which hampered him in the first two contests and he tossed in nine markers.

Late in the contest St. Viator lost starters Vidt, Mike Ainslie, and Ken Hoffman on fouls.

FOR THE FIRST five minutes of the tilt Saturday the locals appeared ready to shock a favored Glenbrook team, but the Spartans battled back and finally wound up with a 55-46 conquest.

Feiereisel's outfit held a 12-2 lead after the first five minutes and carried an 18-10 advantage into the second period.

An effective Glenbrook press cut the Viator lead to a trio at the intermission, and the Northbrook quintet pulled in front to stay at the end of the third quarter.

MURRAY contributed 20 points for the second straight night and Grandt collected 11 on five baskets and a free throw. Vidt added three baskets but fouled out midway in the final period, and the Lions missed his rebounding talents.

Hoffman tossed in seven points, and frosh Joe Sanchez added two free throws.

"We're going more with Sanchez now," Feiereisel said. "He never hurts us although he has not been scoring. He's played some fine ball on defense though."

Seniors Dazzle Bronchos

Chuck, Gary Combine For 52 in 62-51 Win

by BOB FRISK

Barrington's Bob Madding was introduced to Arlington's Chuck Close and Gary Brodnan Saturday evening.

Bob is the coach of the North Suburban Conference Broncos.

He'd heard a lot about the veteran backcourt performers from Arlington High, but he'd never tested their abilities in actual competition. He had high hopes of holding the senior sharpshooters in check when his Bronchos battled the Cardinals.

Such was not the case Saturday as Close and Brodnan put on a brilliant offensive display that keyed a 62-51 non-league victory, Arlington's fourth straight cage triumph of the young season.

CHUCK POPPED in 29 points, his career high as a varsity performer, and Gary added 23 for 52 of Arlington's 62 points. Whereas impressive balance had dictated the Cards' first three victories, Close and Brodnan carried the load Saturday.

The front-line contributed only five baskets and Arlington didn't receive a single point from centers Greg Buczynski and Phil O'Connell.

The front-line performers may have been feeling the effects of the first weekend doubleheader of the 1962-63 season, but Close and Brodnan are three-year veterans and old hands at engaging in the rugged varsity twin-bills.

ALTHOUGH Close achieved his career high with the 29-point exhibition, Brodnan's output was three markers shy of his personal best, a 26-point effort against Anna-Jonesboro last winter in the Pontiac Holiday tournament.

Close mixed in a few drives with his usually effective sniping from 15-25 feet, but a majority of Gary's points came on crowd-pleasing drives.

Both seniors had five-for-eight evenings at the free throw line as Arlington continued to have problems at the charity stripe. Only 10 of 23 throws found the mark and on only one occasion did the Cards take full advantage of a one-and-one situation.

BARRINGTON gave Arlington fits for over three periods Saturday before the hosts could take charge and pull away. With seven minutes remaining in the game the Cards were nursing a slim two-point, 43-41 lead when the fireworks started.

Close tallied on a drive and Paul Splittorff put up a tip before the Broncos' Jimmy Condill rifled home a 20-footer. In less than a minute Arlington had six more points on Splittorff's 17-foot jumper, a drive by Brodnan, and a 15-footer by the 5-9 senior guard.

From then on it was all Arlington as Norm Patberg's outfit wrapped up its fourth straight decision.

THE TWO clubs traded points in the opening stanza with Close and Brodnan contributing all but two of the Cardinals' 17 counters. Arlington shot off to a quick 27-20 lead in the second period on three baskets by Close, a 10-footer by Dan Sherman, and drive by Brodnan, but Barrington fought back and cut the margin to five points at the intermission.

The Broncos charged into a tie with 4:10 remaining in the third quarter and held the lead for a minute and twenty seconds before the Cards gained a deadlock on Close's jumper from the side. Arlington carried a 42-39 lead into the final period.

The Broncos pulled within two markers early in the fourth period on Wayne Graver's two free throws, but that was as close as they could come in the final seven minutes of play. Close's drive ignited the Cardinal explosion.

Prospect

against Forest View, but was shutout in the second and third quarters with just a pair of foul shots.

Prospect's good defense may be able to stop Gatlin. They held Maine's Al Waters, an all-state candidate. to eight points Friday, and the entire Warrior team to a mere 46 points, enough to win most games.

BUT THE Knights must come up with a scorer if they hope to win this year. Dave White, a fine shooter, has been having his troubled finding the range so far. But he is assured of a starting role along with Neubert.

Smith or Jim Hogarty will be at the other forward post. Hope has the inside track on Ron Koepke at center, and Moehling or Ken Groh will be at the other backcourt slot.

Wrestlers Divide Pair

Forest View's soph wrestling squad split a pair of matches Saturday. They clipped Glenbrook North, 32-23 in the morning, and dropped an afternoon meeting to Arlington, 27-21.

Coach Maury Levy's grapplers picked up five pins in the Spartan encounter, including Omar Aviles (95 pounds); Terry Hayden (103); Rick Zographos (138); Bob McDonald (145); and Fred Prete (165).

Alan Inzerello, who weighs 149 pounds, lost a tough decision, 11-7, in the 180-pound class.

Friday's Prospect — Morton West High School basketball game will be broadcast over radio station WTAQ (1300 on the dial), starting at 8:15 p.m. Ralph Faucher, WTAQ sports director, will cover the action.

Cardinal Frosh Register Split

Arlington High School claimed a split Saturday morning in its initial frosh basketball games of the 1962-63 season.

Paul Grady's frosh "Bs" posted an impressive 48-27 decision over Barrington, but Bob Knilhans' "As" suffered a 37-35 reversal.

Arlington's frosh "A" squad will journey to Maine East Saturday morning with both clubs getting back into action Monday at Palatine.

Knilhans felt his "A" squad "played well both on offense and defense for an opener." Barrington already had several games on the record.

MARK SAYLOR paced the young Cardinals with five baskets and three free throws for 13 points, and he turned in a solid defensive effort. Rick Whiteman added three baskets, and Vaughn Strong and Jim Theroux chipped in with two baskets each.

Schumaker was high for Barrington with seven baskets and Hopkins added six from the field.

STRONG REBOUNDING of Tom LeStarge, Jim Jorgenson, and Brian Burke were key factors in the one-sided 48-27 victory by the "Bs." Arlington held a 19-13 halftime lead, then pulled away in the final two periods.

Anderson popped in 12 points to top the locals and Jorgenson added nine. Also giving Arlington some valuable offensive assistance were Barker with eight, Burke with seven, and LeStarge with six.

Mackie pumped in nine for Barrington.

Arlington's Wrestlers Rip Falcons

Arlington High's varsity wrestlers raced off to a 22-0 lead after six bouts and coasted in with a convincing 38-6 triumph over neighboring Forest View Saturday afternoon.

Coach Bob Emmons' Cardinals used four first period pins en route to the decision with Jim Varnado, Bob Conti, Bob Clark, and Hal Selleck applying the snappy clinchers.

Clark's pin at 165 was his second in as many outings, and Bob now has been on the mat for only 69 seconds in those two meets. He disposed of his McHenry opponent in 29 seconds and needed only 40 to eliminate Forest View's Roger Shutt.

VARNADO APPLIED the clincher to the Falcons' Dick Konieczski in 1:08 of their 112-pound tussle, and Bob Conti pinned George Peknik in 43 seconds of their 127-pound test.

Selleck fashioned another impressive win at 180 with a pin in 1:05 against Mike Hericodt.

Also picking up points for Arlington with decisions were frosh Scott Brown at 95, Denny Fitz-Patrick at 103, Bob Hoehle at 120, Bill Anderson at 133, Mike Ryan at 145, and Rick Keller at 154.

Brown authored the most one-sided victory with a 10-3 conquest of Forest View's Fred Lindemann at 95.

COACH HAL HENSON'S Falcons claimed decisions at 138 and heavyweight in their second meet of the season. George Derby, a junior, decisioned Bruce Yates 5-4 at 138, and Chuck Lemke posted an identical 5-4 win over Jim Bland at heavyweight.

The victory was Arlington's second straight of the 1962-63 season with the Cards slated to host Palatine this Saturday.

CHUCK CLOSE OF Arlington High School enjoyed the finest offensive performance of his three-year varsity career Saturday evening when he poured through 29 points against visiting Barrington. Here Chuck drives home a layup in the fourth period of the 62-51 decision over the Broncos. Close now has 80 points in four games for a 20.0 average.

Cards Launch League Play With 61-50 Win

by BOB FRISK

Hinsdale is normal after all.

Arlington can beat the Red Devils in varsity basketball.

The way things have been going in recent years it was becoming doubtful if Arlington would ever handle Hinsdale again in hardwood competition.

DAN SHERMAN

And it was even more doubtful that the Cardinals would be able to sidetrack the Red Devils in their own backyard.

BUT NORM Patberg's outfit was ready, willing, and able last Friday evening as they cracked the Hinsdale domination in basketball which covered eight games and stretched back to the 1957-58 season.

A little ragged in the West Suburban opener, the Cards still managed to post a 61-50 victory with three boys reaching double figures. Chuck Close was high with 18 points on nine baskets but Gary Brodnan with 16 and Dan Sherman with 15 were right behind.

Arlington was in control throughout most of the contest Friday but continues to lack the "killer instinct", the ability to add to a big lead and ease the tension. The Cards had the Red Devils by 11 early in the fourth period, but saw that advantage sliced to two within two minutes.

SHERMAN'S LAYUP pushed the Cardinals into a four-point lead at 49-45, and Paul Splittorff crashed in with two clutch free throws. Sherman's brace at the charity stripe matched Bill Koch's drive, and after both clubs missed first shots on one-and-one situations Gary Brodnan put Arlington up by eight with a pair from the line.

With 54 seconds remaining Hinsdale's Koch pushed home two free throws, but Sherman's layup kept the Cards' advantage at eight with 36 seconds showing on the clock. Brodnan added two with 28 seconds left, and Splittorff's work at the line upped the lead to 61-49 with 15 seconds remaining.

Ed Hall's free throw accounted for Hinsdale's final point.

ARLING fell behind by four at the outset of the game Friday, but gained the lead at 7-6 on Brodnan's jumper from the edge of the circle. The two clubs traded points in the final four minutes with Hinsdale carrying a two-point (16-14) lead into the second stanza.

Close's 15-footer tied the score at the beginning of the second quarter and Sherman's basket from underneath gave the Cards a lead they didn't relinquish until midway in the third period. Arlington carried a 27-22 advantage into the final half.

Hinsdale battled back after the intermission and claimed a 31-30 lead at the 4:36 mark on Bill Donnelly's marksmanship from the key, but Close hit for two quick baskets and Arlington never trailed again.

The Cards held a 40-33 lead after three periods and although they gave their followers some anxious moments in the final eight minutes of play they managed to hang on for the victory.

Finally!

Three Area Gymnasts Sparkle

Three area products posted impressive finishes Saturday in the Mid-West Open Gymnastics meet at Navy Pier in Chicago.

Gary Erwin, state trampoline champion for two years at Arlington High and now a sophomore at the University of Michigan, gained an impressive first on the tramp.

Ray Strobel, a 1962 graduate of Prospect High School who placed third in the state on the tramp, finished fourth in his specialty Saturday. Ray is a freshman at Michigan State University.

Tom Geocaris, a 1960 graduate of Arlington High School, finished fourth on the rings. Tom attends Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

Forest View Frosh Win First Ever!

Forest View High racked up the first basketball win in the history of the school Saturday, but it was up to the frosh "B" squad to turn the trick.

Coach Prucell Stybr's team beat Glenbrook North, 24-19, displaying a balanced attack led by Wally Price's seven-point effort. Roy Palomo added six points; Chuck Boesenberg, and Tom Straight, four apiece; and Kurt Koentapp, three.

Meanwhile, the frosh "A" team, under Ralph Naylor, dropped a tough one-point decision to the same school, 19-18.

The Falcons led 13-10 at the end of the third quarter, but the Spartans rallied to win it in the final two minutes of play.

Bill Widenski led Forest View with five points. John Tabbert added four.

Highland Motors Ups Paddock Classic Lead

Highland Motors took a commanding nine-point lead in the Paddock Classic Traveling League Saturday with a four-point sweep over second-place Lieber Bowlers Shop.

Led by Ron Fogarett of Palatine who rolled a 213-186-228—627 series, Highland piled up more than a 100-pin lead in the first game and costed to the night's high team series of 2,900 pins.

Cass DeWitz of Chicago paced Lieber with a 224-233-188 — 634 series. Teammate Paul Borvig of Palatine added a 598 series, but it wasn't enough to overcome the balanced Highland attack.

STAN'S STANDARD, paced by Buck Perkins of Barrington Woods, racked up individual and team honors, but dropped three of four points to James Stavros.

Perkins bowled a 201-202-256—659 series to take high individual game and series laurels, and Stan's racked up 1032 total pins in the final match, for another team high. But it was too little and too late.

Hec Healey of Northbrook paced a steady attack with a 602 series, moving Stavros into third place ahead of Moyle Construction which split four points with Morton Pontiac. Healey rolled games of 194, 216 and 192.

George Sargent of Great Lakes hit a hot 202-247-199 — 648 series to lead Moyle. Ernie Koche of Roselle paced Morton with a 613 series, including games of 202, 223 and 188.

TONY SASSO and Don Christensen overcame a 625 series by George Schmidt of Addison to lead River-Rand Bowl to a 3-1 win over Pioneer Lanes. The victory left River - Rand in sixth place but only one point behind Pioneer.

Sasso of Des Plaines had a 579 series, and Christensen of Arlington Heights, was two pins back at 577.

The difference was in the final game, won by River-Rand, 956 to 892. Mike Wagner of Des Plaines contributed a 201 game to insure the victory.

This week's action will move to Hi-Way Recreation in Palatine, home of Lieber Bowlers Shop. The schedule:

Stan's Standard vs. Lieber Bowlers Shop.

James Stavros vs. Highland Motors.

Moyle Construction vs. Pioneer Lanes.

River - Rand Bowl vs. Morton Pontiac.

Falcon Gymnasts To Host E. Leyden In Dec. 15 Opener

Coach Gay Hughes has about 50 freshmen, sophomores and juniors working out in preparation for Forest View High's opening gymnastics meet Dec. 15 with East Leyden.

"We have only five boys with limited experience," said Hughes, who has three state gymnastics titles to his credit while coaching at Arlington High.

It may be a while before he has another title contender, but Hughes takes an optimistic view.

"We have a lot of boys with the potential for next year," observed Hughes. "But if we win two or three meets this year, I'll consider it a successful season."

The most experienced boy is sophomore Frank Scardina, who competed on the Arlington frosh team last year.

"His experience is on the sidehorse," said Hughes, "but he can make it on the rings and horizontal bars."

The other four boys include Ralph Kaspari, Steve Kretschmer and Larry Lynn, all juniors; and Dick Antti, a sophomore.

Kaspari picked up some experience on the rings at Prospect High last season. Both Lynn and Kretschmer, also at Prospect last year, are sidehorse men. Antti was at Arlington last year.

The team received its horizontal bar and ring equipment only last week, so there is still much to be done before the 11 dual meet season starts next week.

Hughes will have assistance from Hal Sprehe, who will handle the frosh-soph team. The schedule is reprinted below.

Barrington JVs Stop Cardinals

Barrington's junior - varsity basketball team exploded for a 16-5 lead after one period Saturday morning and then breezed in with a decisive 43-26 victory over Arlington High School.

The Broncos held a 22-14 halftime advantage and 31-19 lead going into the final period.

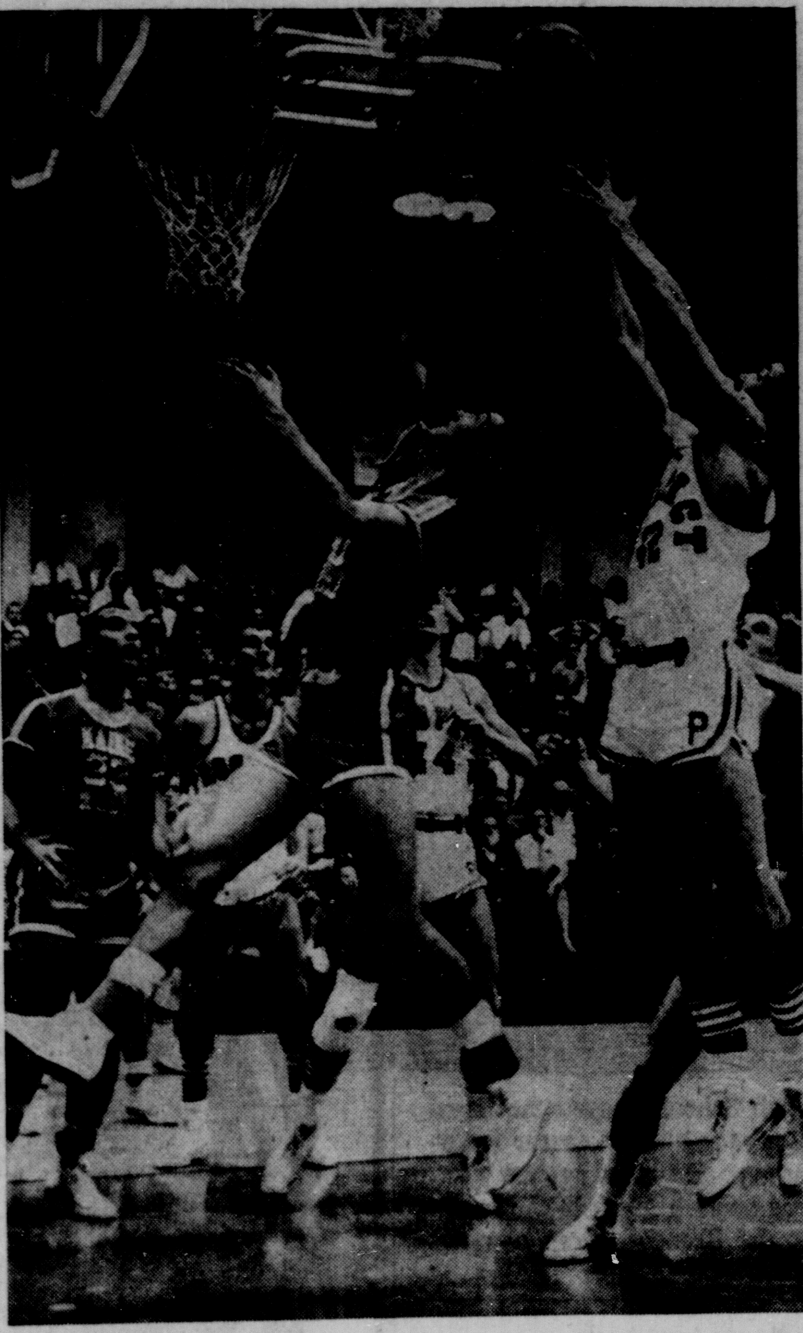
Grabenkort paced the victors with 17 points on seven baskets and three free throws. Roake added nine.

Ray Merkel sparked Ted Ecker's Cardinals with 10 points on four baskets and two three throws. Jeff Beckman chipped in with five.

Hoping for some marked improvement in Saturday's game at Maine East, Arlington's Ecker commented "we just missed too many easy shots against Barrington. And there was no one to rebound."

Score by quarters:

Arlington	5	9	5	7—26
Barrington	16	6	9	12—43



BATTLING FOR A REBOUND in the Prospect-Maine West game Friday are Jim Hogarty (white suit) and the Warriors' Al Waters. Maine won the game, 46-38.

Ridge Motors Takes Three From Steve's

Although there was some minro re-shuffling among the elite, the biggest noise Saturday in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling league was created by lowly Ridge Motors.

Saddled in fifth place for a good part of the season, Ridge Motors came up with three big victories over Steve's Restaurant and moved within one game of fourth place Steve's.

Moyle Construction and Tommy Thomas' Casablanca are alone again at the top of the Paddock Women's division.

JOINED FOR one week by River Rand, the two pace-setters each salvaged two victories in three outings Saturday while River Rand suffered a pair of defeats and skidded back to third, one game out of first.

Edith Wayne of Des Plaines paced Ridge Motors in its surprising 3-0 victory over Steve's with a 536 series that included a 203 third game. Also fashioning 500-plus efforts for the victors were Maxine Moehling of Mount Prospect with 510 and Donna Dubs of Arlington Heights chipped in with a 503.

Ann Neumann of Morton Grove was the only gal able to top 500 for Steve's and she barely made it at 507. Ann started with a sub-par 139 but warmed up gradually at 172 and 196.

MOYLE Construction showed some of the top bowling of the evening with the high game of 920 and the high series of 2656. Moyle had four gals above 500 and one, Ethel Martin of Rolling Meadows, just shy with a 495 in bumping Morton Pontiac 2-1.

Bonnie Kuhn, the league's third best bowler average-wise with a 179.23 standard, sparked Moyle with a 571 series and 201 opener. Shirley Schultz had a 551 and 213 opener, and Nancy Dietz of Mundelein chipped in with a 531. Fran Altergott of Mundelein also topped 500 with a 508.

Joanie Lindahl of Arlington Heights was the shining light for Morton with a fine 626 series. Joan backed a creditable 171 opener with 227 and 228. Pat Proebstle of Arlington, the league's top average gal by some ten pins, came in with a 576.

WINNIE LOHSE'S 534 keyed Casablanca to its 2-1 victory over River Rand with a 193 opener high for the Palatine bowler. Vi Douglas of Palatine and Arleen Rein of Palatine were next in line at 513 and 509.

Rosie Alfson of Des Plaines sparked River Rand with a 545, including a 211 game, and three other gals also topped 500 but that still wasn't enough.

Preparations Continue for Paddock Tests

One hundred and seven men's leagues and 94 women's divisions are eligible for the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap bowling tournaments, according to tourney coordinator Marian Phillips.

That was the announcement this week as preparations continued for the bowling spectaculars scheduled in early 1963.

Mrs. Phillips stressed that any local leagues not bowling at local establishments would be eligible for the Paddock meets if they can prove 50 per cent residency in this area.

IN ADDITION, any divisions not reached as yet which would be eligible for the tournaments should contact Mrs. Phillips at Paddock Publications (CLearbrook 3-1520) during the business day.

Seven men's leagues have folded since last year's tournaments.

First place teams in the men's divisions on Dec. 22 will be eligible for the tourney at Pioneer Lanes in Addison on Jan. 12-13. First place teams in the women's divisions on Dec. 29 will compete in the gals' spectacular at Rick Casares Pro Bowl in Buffalo Grove on Jan. 20.

BOWLERS WILL be shooting for the team trophies, five individual trophies, and hundreds of dollars in prizes when they hook up in the two tourneys.

Multiple participation is permitted. When more than three players bowl together more than once, the teams with which they compete are eligible for only one position standing prize.

Only ABC and WIBC members can bowl in the tournaments. Eligible non-members can qualify by paying an unattached fee for which the Congress will issue an unattached membership card.

When league entries are decided the various secretaries are urged to contact Mrs. Phillips immediately at Paddock's for preferred times.

Forest View Soph Cagers Lose Twice

Forest View's soph cagers dropped a doubleheader Saturday, losing a heartbreaker in the morning, 49-48, to Glenbrook North, and dropping the night game to Elgin Larkin, 58-32.

Pat Dunnigan poured 20 points through the hoop against the Spartans as the Falcons overcame a 16-point deficit to come within one point of victory.

Coach Rog Steingraber said his team started slowly and was weak on defense and rebounding in the first half. The other factor was an Al Wiggins' 21-point outburst in the first half.

The Glenbrook ace led both teams in scoring with 25 points in the game. Jim Junkunk and Jim Baumgardt added nine points apiece for the Falcons.

"Elgin just overpowered us," said Steingraber in talking of the loss to Larkin.

The Royals used a full court press to stymie the Falcons' attack, and out-rebounded Forest View, 30-22.

Steingraber said the team's poor reaction to the press can be attributed to inexperience.

Baumgardt was forced to leave the game in the first quarter with a sprained ankle. Dunnigan and Bryon Borgardt paced the Falcons with eight points each. Junkunc added seven.

Dave Moe led Larkin with 13 points, and Dave Sund added nine.

Knights' Loss First In Series History

by BILL HALLS

A scrappy bunch of Prospect High lads turned in an outstanding defensive performance but lacked scoring punch, and finally succumbed to Maine West, 46-38, in the Interim League Basketball debut for both teams Friday.

"I thought we made some improvement over the Evanston game," said Coach Dick Kinneman. "But I was disappointed in the team's shooting and rebounding."

RON MOEHLING

The loss was the first ever administered to a Prospect basketball team by aMine West.

THE KNIGHTS scored only 16 points in the first half, but held the Warriors to 18. The Warriors were cold, hitting only 16 per cent of their floor shots, but the Knight defense put up a constant pressure to take a share of the redit.

The Warriors' all-state candidate, Al Waters, was held to eight points, and was presssed to get off shots all night.

Forwards Dave Aegerter and Barney Franzen kept Maine in the ball game, and accounted for 29 points between them.

Dave White hit for 12 points, mostly in the first half, to pace Prospect.

WHITE TIED the game at 18-18 at the start of the second half with an easy layup after the Warriors became confused on directions, and fell back to defend the Prospect basket.

Ron Moehling and Don Neubert, inserted in the game by Kinneman to change the Knights' shooting luck, came through with eight and six points respectively, but it wasn't enough to offset the shooting of Franzen and Aegerter.

The Warrior forwards put Maine out in front by eight points in the third quarter. A pair of field goals and a free throw by Neubert cut the lead to three points with 1:52 left in third period, but Maine increased the margin to seven points at the start of the final stanza.

A THREE-point play by Moehling cut the lead to five points (39-34) with 4:33 left in the game, and a little later, White scored to make it 40-36 with about four minutes to go.

But that's as close as the Knights came. Aegerter hit a field goal, and then Franzen followed up with four quick points to make it 46-36 with one minute left.

Jim Hogarty scored on a jump for the final Knight tally, and the gun went off with the Knights scrambling around the Warrior basket trying for another score.

Falcon JV's Drop Opener

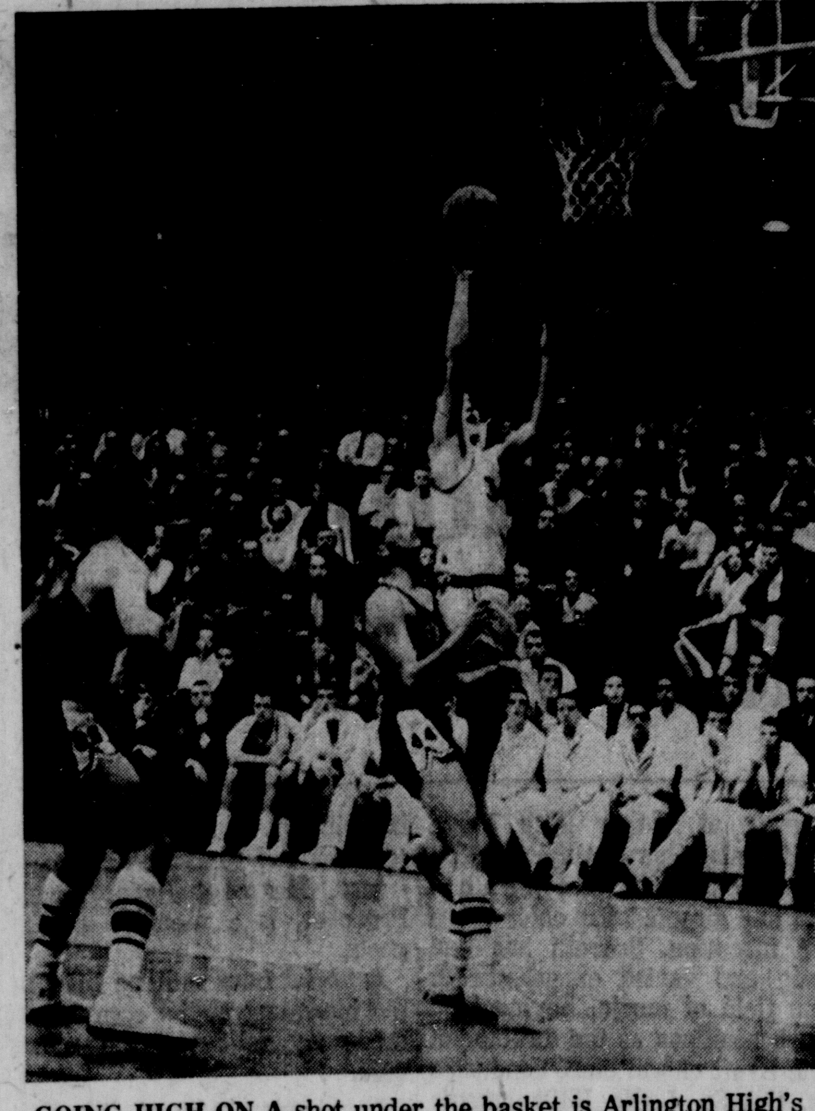
Forest View's jayvee basketball team dropped its opening game to Morton West, 48-36, Friday, but showed vast improvement in the second half after trailing 28-9 at halftime.

Steve Humfleet paced a balanced Falcon attack with nine points. Every boy in the lineup scored at least two points for coach Bob Rees' team.

The Falcons go to West Leyden for a 7 p.m. match Friday, and returned home Saturday to face Niles West.

Harrier Haven

Michigan State's campus has been the site of the NCAA cross country championships each of the 24 times the meet has been held since its inception in 1938.



GOING HIGH ON A shot under the basket is Arlington High's Dan Sherman during action last Saturday evening. The host Cardinals rolled to their fourth straight victory with a 62-51 conquest of Barrington's Broncos. Arlington will host a strong Maine East team Friday evening.

Prospect Jayvees Edge Maine West

Prospect High's jayvee basketball team edged Maine West 40-38, Friday in a thrill-packed finish in which the lead changed hands six times in the last four minutes.

Tom McClellen, a 5-8 guard, got credit for the winning points when he hit a pair of foul shots with 52 seconds left to give the Knights a 39-36 lead. Dick Freyman iced it with a free throw at the eight-second mark, after Chuck Esposito had brought the Warriors within one point with a pair of chaity tosses.

No more than three points separated the two clubs throughout the game. The win got the Knights off on the right foot in pursuit of the Interim League JV title. They are defending champs.

MAINE led by one point at the end of the first period, but the Knights tied it up by halftime, 15-15.

Near the end of the third quarter — with the Knights ahead, 25-21 — Joe Wehlacz, the Warriors' 6-8 pivotman, hit two straight buckets to tie it up.

Forward Greg Kowal, a key man all night, put Prospect back in front with a field goal as the gun went off.

With 4:15 left, Kowal came through again on a three-point play to give the Knights a 31-30 lead. In the last four minutes, center Keith Bergen hit six points to keep the Knights in the ballgame, but it was Kowal who snatched a defensive rebound with 1:30 left and Prospect leading, 37-36.

THE KNIGHTS stalled and McClellan was fouled. He stepped to the line and sank both shots to put it away for Prospect.

Coach Ted Wissen started three sophomores, including Kowal, Bergen and Jim LaRocco along with juniors Freyman and McClellan.

Considering they had only four days to work out as a team, they played fairly well. Freyman's shooting was a factor early in the game, but Bergen led both teams in scoring with 11 points. Freyman had nine; Kowal, eight; and McClellan and LaRocco, each six.

Knight Grapplers Lose at Maine; Morton West Next

Prospect High's wrestling squad will be seeking its first win of the season Friday when it hosts Morton West at 7 p.m.

The Knights lost the opener, 26-14, at Maint West last Friday. Coach Dick Mudge blamed the loss on the fact that "some of the boys are not down to their proper weights yet."

Inexperience also hurt the Knights, said Mudge. In four matches, Mudge used boys who have little or no wrestling background.

MUDGE HAD praise for Jim McMillan, Ron Aukamp and John Beier, along with Wayne Zaehler.

McMillan shut out the Warriors' Terry Albers, 12-0, in the 133-pound class.

"He (McMillan) did a real good job," said Mudge. "And Aukamp wrestled a smart bout."

Aukamp beat Chris Baldo of Maine, 5-2, at 165 pounds. Beier, subbing for the injured Mike Dawson, bested Jim Gilmore, 11-9, in the 180-pound bracket.

"BEIER LACKS a lot of the moves, but should be real good with more experience," said Mudge.

Zaehler, who scored a point in the state meet last year, lost a tough bout to Bill Kribble, 14-12, at 127 pounds.

Most of the Warriors' wins were in the lower weights where the Knights lack experience, along with the heavyweight bracket.

At 145 pounds, Greg Field was leading Ervin Geisler of Maine, 6-4, when he got pinned. It was a tough break.

Arlington Grad Wins Mat Title

A former Arlington High wrestling standout captured the 115-pound title Saturday in the Illinois Invitational mat tournament.

George Shartle, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shartle, 808 S. Ridge, Arlington Heights, rallied in the final seconds for an impressive victory in the 115 pound class.

Trailing 3-2 with two seconds remaining, the Northwestern University junior picked up two quick points and added another marker for riding time in claiming a 5-3 decision.

The competition included wrestlers from Purdue University, Illinois, Northwestern, Southern Illinois, and Eastern Illinois.

Shartle, who placed fourth in the state meet in his weight class as an Arlington High senior, competed in three meets for the Northwestern squad as a soph.

Northwestern is one of the favorites for the Big Ten mat crown.

Lutheran Choir Sets Christmas Musicale

Sunday, Dec. 9, is the date chosen by the Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Valparaiso University Guild for the annual Christmas musicale and tea.

Christmas choral music will be presented by the Lutheran Choir of Chicago, directed by Gerhard Schroth.

The musicale will be held in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Lee and Thacker Streets, Des Plaines.

The Lutheran Choir of Chicago had its beginning in the early months of the Missouri Synod Centennial year 1947. During the Centennial concert, in which Bach's "Reformation Cantata" was the climax.

DIRECTOR Schroth is on the faculty at Luther High North and is also choral editor for Niel Kjos Publishing Company. He has directed the choir since its inception. Schroth has had long and varied experience in the field of music, having held such positions as the director of the Kraft choral club, conductor of the St. Louis Philharmonic orchestra and Civic chorus, and musical director and executive officer of the Family Worship Hour.

The post of director of music at the University of Chicago Chapel was his for five years. He received his masters degree of music from Northwestern University and studied conducting with Dr. F. Melius Christiansen and Dr. Frederick Stock.

Mrs. Margaret Pyde, Mount Prospect, is a member of the choir.

A social hour will be held in the basement of the church immediately following the musicale.

Local members of the Valparaiso Guild who are assisting with the preparations are Mrs. William Broadfoot and Mrs. Al May of Arlington Heights, and Mrs. Vernon Wille of Mount Prospect. (Bill

Sinatra in Film Here

Frank Sinatra, who plays an army officer in "The Manchurian Candidate," opening Friday at the Dundale Drive-in Theatre, Rt. 72, through the United Artists release, remembers when he asked for, and got, his release from M-G-M because he was tired of constantly playing servicemen on the screen.

His first free-lance movie, "From Here to Eternity," which won him an Academy Award for his performance as a soldier!

In "The Manchurian Candidate," Sinatra co-stars with Laurence Harvey and Janet Leigh. Co-feature is "The Night Heaven Fell" with Brigitte Bardot and Stephen Boyd. (Bill

Choral Concert at Maine West Dec. 9

To benefit mentally deficient children and adults of the northwest Chicago and suburban areas, the Normennenes Singing Society and guest artists are participating in a Christmas Choral Concert at Maine Township High School West Auditorium (corner of Wolf Road and Oakton Street, Des Plaines) on Sunday, Dec. 9, at 4 p.m.

The Normennenes Society has been in existence since 1870, and throughout the years has joined in the national Norwegian "Sangerfest," held each year in America since 1892.

THROUGH this medium, the singers have devoted their efforts to many charitable events.

MISS SPIES

Last summer they sang at the famous Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City and 1964 plans have already started to tour Norway.

The Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded brings a repeat performance of Mette Askheim Spies, soloist, the Triple Trio, and the 80-voice male chorus to enhance the holiday season with favorite Christmas selections.

Tickets will be available at the door. (Bill

Guest Critic for Art Guild Dinner

Richjrd D. Hoyt, 807 See-Gwun, Mount Prospect, will be guest critic for Des Plaines Art Guild's annual Christmas dinner and critique on Monday, Dec. 10.

The affair, for members and their guests, will be held in the Patio Restaurant of the Flamingo Motel, River road and Milwaukee ave., Wheeling, beginning with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m.

EACH MEMBER is requested to bring one of his original paintings or art works for comment by Hoyt and his wife, Doris, also an artist. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt are natives of Cleveland, Ohio, and graduates of the Cleveland Institute of Art.

The Hoyts will award first, second and third place ribbons to the paintings of their choice.

Hoyt, an illustrator of note, has won awards from the Artists Guild of Chicago and from various publicatons and business associations. He was formerly with Whitaker-Guernsey Studio, and is now associated with O'Grady-Payen, Inc. of Chicago. (Bill

Annual Arts Bazaar Set for Dec. 8, 9

JEAN CONNELLY, artist member of Countryside Art Center, puts the finishing touches on "Ojos de Dios," a folk art decoration for the holidays. Mrs. Connelly and many other members will have paintings and crafts at the Arts Bazaar, Dec. 8-9, at The Countryside Gallery, 10 W. Miner St., Arlington Heights. (Bill

Members of the Countryside Art Center, Inc., Arlington Heights, are busy preparing for their annual Arts Bazaar. Foregoing their usual December meeting, they have been working separately and in groups to produce gifts for Christmas giving.

This year the Bazaar will be held at the new Countryside Gallery, 10 W. Miner St., Arlington Heights, on Saturday, Dec. 8, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 9 from 1 to 5 p.m.

Often referred to as the "Robbers Mart," this annual affair offers arts and crafts for Christmas, priced at $35 and under. All items are designed and created by the artist and craftsmen members of the Countryside Art Center.

A LARGE watercolor by Rudolph Ohrning will be awarded to some visitor to the bazaar. Ohrning is a graduate of the American Academy of Art and is represented in the Sales and Rental Gallery of the Art Institute.

Christl Hansen of Mount Prospect will be on hand to do portrait sketches.

Some of the unusual items especially suitable for Christmas giving will include handcrafted sterling silver jewelry and wall hangings by Ruth Murray of Arlington Heights; stitchery felt ornaments and folk art decorations by Jeanne Connelly of Arlington Heights; vitreous enamels on copper, and silver jewelry by Robert Goudschaal of Des Plaines; and stoneware by Don Johns of Elgin.

FRIEDA Womeldorf, chairman of the bazaar and a Barrington artist, will provide decoupage gifts and folk art ornaments, and new designs in crafts will be displayed by Art Center members Carole Komarek of Arlington Heights, Dorothy Kruse and Fran Shillington of Palatine, and Aloise Zehner of Arlington Heights.

Member artists who will have paintings on sale include Helen Anderson of Wood Dale, Carl Berglund of Rolling Meadows, Rosemary Bogaerts of Palatine, Mary Bornarth of Chicago, Sallie Gracey of Park Ridge, Barbara Houskeeper of Deerfield, Nancy Kirk of Elk Grove, Joyce Moon of Palatine, Margot Morris of Des Plaines, Lois Roe of Palatine, and Hedvic Vlasak of Mount Prospect.

Carole Komarek, president of the Countryside Art Center, has promised an unusual lighting display for the gallery if weather permits.

AT TWILIGHT on Saturday and Sunday during the bazaar, the entrance will be lighted by a "luminaria," a special seasonal candlelight display which originated in the Southwest and Mexico.

The Countryside Gallery is located in the center of Arlington Heights at Northwest Highway, Dunton and Miner Streets. The telephone number is 255-9718. (Bill

'Creatures' Of Culture

CHICAGO, (UPI) — A leading Protestant minister said Sunday, "People are more creatures of culture than children of the church."

Dr. Truman B. Douglass, executive vice president of the United Church Board for Homeland Ministries, told 60 near-graduating ministers, "The church must provide the answers to new situations . . . it must find new forms for the church's ministry to fit the contour of our culture."

He spoke at the Chicago Theological Seminary. (B8

Throughout December

Christmas Art Is Gallery Project; Gift Ideas Told

The Countryside Gallery, 10 W. Miner St., Arlington Heights, will offer art for Christmas giving during the month of December beginning Tuesday, Dec. 11.

Mrs. John Kehe, chairman of the gallery directors, has announced that 23 gallery artists will be represented in the December show.

Many of the artists are newly associated with the Countryside Gallery, as a result of the first jurying held in November, Mrs. Kehe said.

MARY BORNARTH of Chicago is one of the artists whose work will be hung in the Gallery during December. She is a graduate of the Chicago Art Institute, has taught at the Skokie Art League and was a director at the Saugatuck School of Painting.

Her oils and watercolors have been exhibited nationally, including the Chicago Art Institute, and most recently in the Chicago Vicinity Show of 1962. Mrs. Bornarth is a recognized portrait artist.

Louise Elam is another artist to be presented by the Gallery in December. She now lives in Arlington Heights, but formerly resided in Seattle, Wash.

A GRADUATE of the University of Washington, Mrs. Elam has taught art and has studied with Mark Tobey and Kenneth Callahan. She has exhibited at the Seattle Art Museum, the Puyallup Washington State Fair, the Woessner Gallery in Washington and Frederick Nelson's "Little Gallery" in Seattle.

A Barrington resident, Eleanor Rosenfeld, is another new artist at the Gallery. She has studied with Eleanor Coen and Abbott Pattison and works in many mediums; at present is primarily concerned with oils and collage.

The work of George Schneider of Wheaton will also be shown at the Countryside Gallery. He is a graduate and now an instructor at the Chicago Art Institute and teaches at St. Francis and St. Athanasius schools.

HE IS represented in the Chicago Art Institute Sales and Rental Gallery. Schneider's watercolors were selected for travelling art shows to be presented in many countries, and he has exhibited at the Chicago Art Institute, McKerr Gallery, Old Town and Old Orchard shows.

A Deerfield artist, Lucille Shellman, will have her work hung in the December show. She attended the American Academy and has studied with Rudolph Penn. Mrs. Shellman's work has been honored with a number of awards, including prizes at the North Shore Art League. She has exhibited at the Sun-Times Shows, North Shore Art League and New Trier exhibits.

In addition to those already mentioned, artists to be presented in the December show include: Inez Abrahamson of Wheeling; Robert Borchard of Arlington Heights; Jeanne Connelly (T. Krythe) of Arlington Heights; Ki Davis of Lake Forest; Gerald Hardy of Melrose Park; Don Johns of Elgin; Carole Komarek of Arlington Heights; Ruth Murray of Rolling Meadows; Catherine Painter of Glenview; Lois Roe of Palatine; Barbara Schlenker of Deerfield; Irving Shapiro of Skokie; Hedvic Vlasek of Mount Prospect; Frieda Womeldorf of Barrington; and Aloise Zehner of Arlington Heights.

MANY OF the paintings will be moderately priced for the Christmas season and will present a complete range from traditional art to abstract and impressionist styles, Mrs. Kehe said.

The board chairman also announced that the January show at the Countryside Gallery will be offered through the cooperation of the Fairweather-Hardin Gallery in Chicago. A reception for the public on Sunday, Jan. 6, 1963, from 3 to 6 p.m. will officially open this exhibit, which will close Jan. 31. Regular gallery hours are Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. (BILL

Not Too Early to Try: Kipke

Chicago Hoping to Attract GOP, Dem '64 Conventions

by UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Chicago is the best place to hold both the Republican and Democratic 1964 political conventions and it's not to early to start attracting them, a man who has been trying to do just that said Friday.

"We think we can swing both of them," said Harry C. Kipke, former University of Michigan football coach and president of the Chicago Convention Bureau.

"But we can't be too optimistic at this point," Kipke added, talking a little like a coach before a game.

Attracting one national political convention involves months of negotiations and perhaps more than a little behind-the-scenes maneuvering. To attract two you double the effort.

THE MACHINERY for getting a convention is intricate and traditional and inherently full of politics, not to mention economics.

Kipke's associate, Gerald Sanderson, executive director of the convention bureau, explained how it works.

Both parties, he said, name site committees "and these will be chosen pretty soon." These committees, operating independently, shop around for the best convention city and reach a decision, "which we expect in mid-April."

Both committees, Sanderson said, use a six-point selection chart. The points include hotel space, the meeting site, transportation, press accommodation, financial structure and "correct political climate."

"This last item might amount to 98 per cent of the reason for selecting a certain city," Sanderson said. "It's a kind of mystery factor at this stage."

CHICAGO attracted both conventions in 1952 but only one each in 1956 and 1960.

"We lost the Democrats in 1960 to Los Angeles," Sanderson said, "because of the correct political climate."

Chicago, Sanderson said, has had more political conventions than all the other cities put together. Citizens hereabouts feel they're worth going after, despite the fact that other, non-political conventions bring in more visitors.

"It's a prestige thing," Kipke said. "Nobody would be able to set a value on the publicity Chicago derives by having news stories go out all over the world under a Chicago dateline."

Neither Kipke nor Sanderson estimated how much money would be needed to win either or both conventions. Chicago put out $400,000 in 1960 to get the Republicans. The money went for such things as decorations, printing and staffing of the convention headquarters.

"Chicago will put up whatever is needed," Kipke said, "and we feel sure we can compete against any other city."

THE convention site could be either the International Amphitheatre or McCormick Place, Chicago's new lakefront exposition hall. McCormick Place is committed for parts of July and August, 1964, but the Amphitheatre is open throughout the June-through-August convention period.

Sanderson thought Chicago's chief competition would come from Dallas, Miami Beach, Las Vegas, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

"I would be surprised if it went to Philadelphia—either of them," Sanderson said. A-14

Drivers' License Revocations Drop

Drivers license revocations and suspensions this week were down in number with one revocation and eight suspensions listed in Paddock Publications area, reported Charles F. Carpentier, secretary of state.

John J. Martin, 902 Adler Lane, Mount Prospect, had his driver's license revoked for a driving while intoxicated conviction.

Eight residents of Cook and DuPage County who had their drivers licenses suspended for three violations within one year were: Frank V. Heinrich, 317 Hatlen Court, Mount Prospect; David L. Jiran, 15 W. Davis St., Arlington Heights; Benno W. Lagemann, 209 Walnut Lane, Elk Grove Village; Freddy L. McIntire, 1532 N. Hicks Rod., Palatine; Robert W. Glines, 329 E. Virginia St., Bensenville; Robert R. Hoegner, 138 Kankakee Lane, Roselle, Frank W. Kolodziej, RR 2 Box 40D, Bensenville, and Luz S. Schlief, Box 213 Oak, Ontarioville.

Probationary permits were issued to the following drivers: Marshall H. Brosh, 422 E. Central Road, Arlington Heights; Ronald E. Culpepper, 1112 N. Beverly Lane, Arlington Heights; Dan M. Fisher, 520 N. Ridge Court, Arlington Heights; Eugene Folkes, 2315 Bluebird Lane, Rolling Meadows; Kenneth M. Kimbell, 7500 N. Elmhurst Road, Bensenville; Terry L. Leighty, 117 W. Washington St., Palatine.

Ray E. McManaway, 89 Debra Lane, Wheeling; Mary M. Michalowski, RR 3, Box 256, Palatine; Dennis J. Poteracki, RR 3, Box 242, Palatine; Jack Termaat, 668 N. Wayne Place, Wheeling; and Robert A. Young, 304 N. Salem Ave., Arlington Heights.

THE SECRETARY of state's office listed 129 revocations and 642 suspensions of drivers licenses in Northern Illinois as a result of local court convictions and police reports.

A total of 247 probationary permits was issued to those drivers who did not have more than 62 point accumulation.

'Play' Money Turns Out To Be Real

ST. LOUIS, (UPI) — James Jackson, 9, and his friend, Reginald Gaines, 8, had a fine time playing with some "play money" they found in an alley.

When they tired of the game they took the "money" home to show their parents. The parents called police.

Police said the "play money" was $1,300 in stolen savings bonds, and traced them to Ward Fowler, who had reported earlier in the day that his apartment had been broken into and ransacked. (A14

Pass	1 ♠	2 ♥	3 ♣
Double	3 ♠	4 ♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of spades.

South wins opening lead with ace in closed hand, returns small spade which West trumps with the jack while South sluffs a small diamond from the board. West leads ace and king of clubs, then small diamond which dummy wins with the ace. South leads two rounds of trumps ending in dummy with the ten; then sluffs the two spades on the queen and jack of clubs and lays down remaining hearts to make contract.

COMMENT: I see no fault in the play of the hand, but disagree with East's opening bid of one spade. The hand was too weak. East should have opened with three spades. South would probably have bid four hearts and play would have been the same.

The Way We See It

Tragedy for Youth

A good deal of soul searching by adults has followed the death of one New Trier High School student and injury to others in an automobile crash which was preceded by some drinking.

Of course, many young people die in tragic circumstances, and their deaths go almost unnoticed because their parents are poor and obscure. In the New Trier case, the families were wealthy and prominent, the children were talented and ostensibly engaged in a Thanksgiving charity collection. As a result, the case has been widely publicized and discussed, which may result in some good.

But it is not easy to make pertinent and useful comment.

When a person searches his mind for some really good advice to offer young people as a result of this tragedy, he is struck by the incongruity of the "do's" and the "don'ts" which the adult world prescribes for teenagers.

Some of the "do's" include: "Be prepared to fight with lethal weapons in remote jungles and mountains to defend us grown-ups." And: "Be prepared to die 'bravely and cleanly' (as one commentator put it during the Cuban crisis) under the H-bomb if the President decides it is for the best."

In conjunction with this kind of "do's" the warning against breaking open a six-pack before reaching age 21 loses a good deal of its force.

This incongruity is easily overlooked because adults develop a skill at placing the good and the bad in separate compartments of their mind. The bad things go in a bottom drawer, and often the adult is able to go on thinking and livas if they did not exist. Youth has not yet acquired this talent for accommodations.

Another characteristic of youth is that it judges people more by their actions than by their words.

Adult preachments against drinking, and driving after drinking, are outweighed by the visible fact that a large part of the nation's important business is conducted over martinis, after which the men of affairs get behind the wheel and drive back to their offices or homes.

The conclusion to be noted is that the adult world is the one which is most in need of correction.

Obviously, if we lived in a world free of grave threats, hypocrisy, and the constricting and distorting social pressures which drive people to drink, then we could be hopeful that many tragedies for youth might be averted.

Short of achievement of this millenium, we must rely upon a more modest platitude — that the basic responsibility for the teenager belongs with parents.

Studies show that teenage drinking is on the increase, and that it is more and more condoned or approved by parents. Apparently many parents see a social-business future for their children in which drinking plays a part, and reason that the sooner their children learn to handle the stuff, the better.

There are hazards along this path, it is plain to see.

The other main problem area is parental neglect. Society can't legislate people into being attentive parents, but it can refuse to ignore or cover up for the AWOL parent, and it can and should punish criminal neglect.

The best weapons against juvenile misconduct, when they are found, will turn out to be the remedies for adult delinquency.

The Value of Opposition

The pre-holiday weeks find suburbanites turning their efforts to the business of selecting candidates for local school and municipal offices.

In recent years, the caucus has probably been the most popular method of choosing candidates for school boards. The caucus system has also been used effectively in municipal elections, the Village of Arlington Heights being a prime example of caucus success.

In essence, the objective of the caucus is to find and elect men and women of high calibre and integrity to positions of responsibility in the community. A caucus motto is "the office seeks the man."

We believe the caucus system, like any other political organization, is neither inherently good nor bad. The effectiveness and community service of the caucus may be measured in terms of citizen participation.

When voters turn out en masse to nominate caucus candidates, the system is working. When less than one-half of one per cent of a community's residents attend a meeting to name a caucus candidate selection committee, the system is falling short of its goal.

There seems to be a tendency on the part of some suburbanites to regard a caucus-backed ticket as sacrosanct. This is a mistake. In terms of participation, for example, a non-caucus slate of candidates may have two or three times more local supporters than the caucus candidates.

The caucus should not necessarily be equated with "good schools" or "good government." Since all caucus systems are nurtured and operated by human beings, the systems will have human failings.

The principle behind the caucus offers a potential for choosing first rate candidates. But the presence of a lofty principle does not assure the ultimate attainment of Utopia.

When it comes to elections, local or national, Paddock Publications welcomes the discussion of issues and debate among the electorate that an opposition usually invokes.

Dollywalogy

Just in time to make out the Christmas list comes a girl with the waxen snare. She is the doll who can write. Others may open their eyes to look, and close them to think. Some can make verbal comments, from what they think, about what they see. But so far as the average shopper is permitted to know, this is the first doll able to "put it on the record."

In their increasing capacity for achievement dolls are not so different from their human counter-parts. Boy dolls know that the four-minute mile is not the end of the run, but a milestone on the race with time. Girl dolls now know that, even if big blue eyes get them into the organization, it will take good spelling to stay there.

In the long history of dolldom perhaps no Porcelain Parliament has ever exceeded the enterprise in the house of Coppelius. There is even a touch of the "We will bury you" theme in the second act of the famous ballet.

But all came out right in the end. For humanity escaped the disturbing prospect of sharing the world with automatons indistinguishable from human beings.

Until now, when a new Coppelia appears as winsome as ever, with pen in hand — and probably waiting for a checkbook.

Ads of Distinction

by BOB CUMMINS

The Yuletide season has arrived. It is the time of year when I cultivate my appreciation of the whiskey situation by thumbing through the ads.

The distillers are still trying to capture the market with unique bottles. A bottle for Scotch whiskey is shaped like a bagpipe. A bottle for Irish whiskey is shaped like a harp. A bottle for Burmese whiskey is shaped like a pagoda. Baby's whiskey comes in a milk bottle. It is all quite appropriate and original.

I notice another trend in the whiskey business — one which may have greater long-range significance than the bottles. The theme of this trend is to create the impression — which may be true — that the whiskey is made by an incredibly small and ancient company, preferably in a place so remote that it is difficult to get the whiskey to the outside world.

CUMMINS

The pioneer in this sort of thing, of course, was the Jack Daniels distillery in Lynchburg, Tenn. (pop. 382).

AS A RESULT of their ads, I feel that I would be very much at home in Lynchburg. If I were there, I would shoo away the geese, sit down in a rocking chair on a porch with the distillery employes, and nap for 12 years while the whiskey seeped through the hard maple charcoal, drop by precious drop.

Now a distiller of Scotch whiskey is working on the theme. I saw a photograph of this distillery building, which is "hard by the North Sea," in an ad last week.

The building is of gray stone, and evidently was built by the Druids.

The employes are gathered at the weather worn steps of this crude structure. They are posed in a way that I thought went out of style after those pictures of the unbeaten Cincinnati Red Stockings of 1879.

On the left is Bob Gammie, the mashman. Good old Bob! A more conscientous workman would be hard to find.

KNEELING BESIDE him is Jimmie Sim, the tun room man. Jimmy is a young fellow who still has something to learn about the tun room, but he'll be a good one, mark my words!

What did you say? That fellow standing on the barrel? That's James Anderson, the boiler man. Well, you can't expect the organization to bat one thousand, can you?

Jack Grant, on the right, is the maltman. Why is he holding that funny looking rake? Don't ask me, but I am sure that whiskey made with a rake like that is out of this world.

AND GOOD gray Willie Craig standing on the porch— he's the manager. But still just "one of the boys," as anyone can see.

All in all, it's a wonderful outfit. Not at all like those big corporations where everyone is just a number. The homey appeal is tremendous.

I'm sure they sold every barrel of their whiskey instantly.

Maybe I ought to start a family distillery!

Kathleen would be pictured in the kitchen, using a big wooden spoon to stir the mash in an old iron kettle.

Some of the girls could wear aprons and feed corn to the geese (it seems every distillery has to have some geese around).

AND THE toddlers would make an appealing sight as they carried armfuls of charcoal to the vats.

With the right pictures of all this, Old Cummins would be a best seller!

'Cradles of Eminence'

Unpredictable Successes

by MARTIN E. MARTY

What do the following persons have in common: Fred Allen, Thomas Wolfe, Tito, Stalin, Eleanor Roosevelt, Rasputin, A. E. Housman, Kahil Gibran, Maurice Chevalier, Ernico Caruso? Their fathers were alcholic.

MARTY

Try again. What do these share? Pearl Buck, Grover Cleveland, Charles Evans Hughes, Martin Luther King, Friedrich Nietzsche, Woodrow Wilson, Orville Wright, Field Marshall Montgomery, Cecil Rhodes? Their fathers were ministers.

DO YOU need a religious home to produce an eminent child? Then you may be surprised to learn that Charles Lindbergh, Salvador Dali, Sigrid Undset, Albert Einstein, Thomas Edison, William Allen White, Fiorello La Guardia, George Washington Carver came from homes with one or more agnostic parents—yet many of the children were religious.

One could go on indefintely. Eva Peron, T. E. Lawrence, Toyohiko Kagawa, Paul Cezanne share the fact that they were illegitimate. Albert Einstein heads a distinctive list of those who were failures in school.

If you want to hear more, read "Cradles of Eminence" by Victor Goertzel and Mildred G. Goertzel (Little, Brown, $5.95). The Goertzels conceived the idea of going to the Montclair, N. J. Public Library and looking up the childhoods of the 413 people they could call "eminent."

"Eminent" meant that if they were Americans there were two biographies or more, if non-American, one biography. They dealt only with 20th century figures.

AS THEIR reasonably scholarly research took shape in a fascinating book, some surprises became clear. The psychologists may serve us well by urging "well-adjusted" children in warm homes. But not many of the eminent eminent turned up in such homes. There were some homogeneities. Dictatorial types: Hitler, Mussolini, Salazar, McCarthy, Nasser, Nietzsche, and some rather dainty poets like Rainer Maria Rilke and Oscar Wilde came from "mother-smothering" homes where mama lavished too much protection and shelter on the child.

If there was any one single tendency that produced the "wrong" kind of eminence, it was over-protective mothering. In almost all homes "there is a love for learning" in one or both parents. Three-fourths of the children were from troubled situations. Most parents were opinionative about some controversial subject.

NONE OF THE 20 poets among the 413 people was a son or daughter of a poet. One-fourth had dominating mothers but only one-twentieth had dominating fathers. Death of a brother or sister was a traumatic experience to very many. Most explorers and adventurers were accident - prone children. Stepmothers played a helpful role in 11 of 14 circumstances. Few homes had mental illness.

I am not sure, except for "mother - smothering" among the "dictators, military men and poets" that there was much of a pattern of consistency. The one overpowering lesson of "Cradles of Eminence" is this: life is fortunately more surprising, more unpredictable, than our planners and programmers would let us believe.

Tax Cut Predicted By Senator Douglas

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. (UPI) — Sen. Paul Douglas, D-Ill., this week predicted a tax cut next year to stimulate American purchasing power.

In an address at a California Western University forum, Douglas said one means of lowering taxes would be to raise the exemption from $600 a dependent to $750 or $800.

Douglas said he favored this method as a stimulus to the purchasing power of the average American.

He said he also favors a reduction in the percentage paid by those in the upper income tax brackets.

The United States is in an economic doldrum — not going up or down but remaining steady, the Illinois senator said.

Critic's Corner

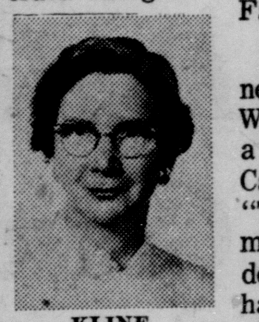
White House Satire Tops

by HESTER KLINE
News Editor, Rolling Meadows Herald

Jack Kennedy won a four-year tenancy of the White House by a narrow margin, but a recording of the adventures of his "typical American family" is sweeping the nation by a landslide.

The satire about "The First Family" draws guflows from GOPs and Democrats alike. It fractures college students as well as teens. Reports concerning its reception at the White House vary.

There are plenty of barbs, but they aren't cruel. The good natured spoof of the President's private and public life is a refreshing departure in style from the usual frenetic comedy routines. It's what isn't said rather than what is that makes the skits so funny-bone tickling. The press, religion, politics, big business, culture, status seeking, all are targets for the authors' wit. But it's done so gently.



KLINE

It's a classic of the soft sell.

No clout. It doesn't slap you in the face. Just uses the subtle approach. "When will we send a man to the moon?" a reporter asks at a press conference. "Whenever Goldwater wants to go," replies Jack. Which neatly disposes of his Far Right adversary.

THE HISTORY OF Kennedy's first two years in the White House is squeezed into a bedtime story he tells to Caroline, who later sighs, "These sessions do him so much good." What father doesn't, at the end of a long hard day, need to have his ego restored by the faith of his children?

Little homilies like that scattered throughout create a universal appeal.

It's gratifying to identify oneself with a member of the First Family, whether it's a discussion of how to cut food bills or the weekly allowance. And that's just what the listener does.

RUEFUL RECORD moguls who turned down writer Earle Doud's idea probably wonder why they didn't recognize it as a potential best-seller. Little Cadence Records, who taped the platter, is going to be much bigger before the demand for "The First Family" dwindles.

Excellent characterizations give the recording an aura of authenticity. Spontaneity of the performance (it reportedly was recorded before a studio audience without rehearsal) brings a natural quality that might have worn thin with long preparation. These are among the intangibles that make the difference between a hit and a landslide.

But most of all it is a bit of Americana. If I know anything about teens, they'll longer remember the events of the past two years from this record than from all the American history books that will be written.

WHERE IN THE world but in America, to coin an old song title, could such a record have been made? It may do more to "sell" Americanism and Democracy than all the flag waving propaganda poured out by press secretaries.

Long live "The First Family."

Forever live our right to consider the tenants of the White House as a "typical American family."

Students Create Center for War

MADISON, WIS., (UPI)— The Scrutinizers of Overbearing and Antiquated Necessities (SOAN) announced recently it is creating a Student War Center at the University of Wisconsin campus here.

The zany student group, which picketed a university fountain recently because it had water in it, said the center "will be a non-violent school for violence."

According to Peter Carstenson of Soan, Wis., the center was being created "because the university student is unaware of the vast potential and possibillities of war."

Library Tax Campaign Hit

It is to be regretted that out of an estimated 1,500 voters in the Wood Dale Library Tax District, only around 300 or approximately a fifth of the voters, made a decision for the other four fifths. In other words, about 20 per cent decided for all, to put Wood Dale's Library on tax support. An even smaller number of voters was represented by a negative vote.

If the tax referendum had been properly publicized through ALL the channels open to it — for a reasonable length of time before the decision—a much more widespread representation could have been expected.

A large community sign on the side of Wood Dale's train station announces in large visible letters, events of importance in Wood Dale. The library used it to announce a spaghetti dinner a few days before the referendum, but DID NOT announce the referendum.

DURING THE original Fund Drive, for the building and furnishing of the library—letters were sent to EVERY HOME—explaining HOW MUCH was needed and WHAT it was to be spent for. Local papers at that time contained news stories explaining the needs and progress of the library. In the recent referendum—this was most conspicuously NOT DONE.

During the voluntary fund drive POSTERS were placed in stores and other PUBLIC places. This was NOT done for the tax referendum.

In fact, few outside of the proponents of the tax bill knew anything of it.

Many elderly, retired couples live on fixed incomes in Wood Dale. They are struggling not to be engulfed in a rising tide of taxes. That taxes must and will rise because of expanding village needs that can be met in NO OTHER WAY, we know. The library had however proven, that it could—under forward looking and energetic management—not only survive—but flourish as a cooperative project.

I feel that any proponents of the library tax, who deliberately and intentionally did not fulfill a moral responsibility to bring information and adequate advance announcement—to ALL the voters of the library district—used a base means to obtain their ends.

I WOULD like to ask that the DuPage Register continue to keep Wood Dale residents informed of further developments of the library. It will be nice to know how much the library will cost each homeowner and what the different portions of the money will be spent for.

I thank the DuPage Register for printing the announcement of the recent Wood Dale Library tax referendum. In connection with its policy of printing the news impartially, this is to be commended.

Mrs. Ansel Huntley former founding board member and publicity director of the Wood
Dale Library

Public Support Is Gratifying

To the citizens of the newly-formed Wood Dale Library District.

The Board of the Wood Dale Library would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank those people who participated in the referendum Saturday, Nov. 17, 1962, and made it possible to take another step forward.

The plurality was very gratifying and shows a deep public interest for community improvement.

THE POSITIVE reaction to the referendum on Saturday makes it possible for the library to become a public library on the first of July, 1963.

The Board will make every effort to justify the support given by the citizens in this endeavor.

Thank you again for this most encouraging response.

Library Board.

Dedication of Coach Praised

I would appreciate your printing this letter as a tribute to Coach Bill Pichler of the Hoffman Raiders and to all coaches who have the same dedication that he has.

This morning (Nov. 26) we discussed by phone yesterday's game and the injuries sustained by three of the players. Bill was extremely worried and disturbed over the injuries. He said to me "You know, John, I love those boys." These words stuck with me and I began to think about them. What makes a man like Coach Pichler give almost all of his leisure time since August 15 to organizing and coaching a brand new football team to the top in their first year of playing together. Is it the love of the game; certainly. Is it the glory of the win; yes. No athlete in his right mind plays to lose. What drives a man to give of his own time everyday, day in and day out coaxing, scolding, begging, instructing, teaching, polishing and demonstrating with a group of boys until they become a team. When Bill remarked to me with compassion in his voice "I love those boys" I knew the answer. I also found out something else; everytime a boy fails to get up on his feet after the completion of a play the coach has a piece of his heart torn out by the roots. This is small reward for the effort and energy this man has given for the team.

THE GREAT Rockne said that every boy has the natural spirit of combat in him and football is the game that teaches the boy how to use this spirit of combat constructively. But this takes a dedicated man to coach and develop the boys and the team. A man with love in his heart for the sport, the team and the win, but most of all love for each and every boy.

Let the sideline coaches and the armchair generals criticize if they wish but I, for one, wish to express my appreciation for the wonderful job Coach Pichler has done for my boy.

Next Sunday Hoffman Raiders play North Austin at Hanson Park in Chicago for the championship and I hope we win. However, win, lose or draw, I shall never forget Coach Pichler's words, "I love those boys." This is the most important thing—even above winning the championship.

Safety Council Raps Editorial

On November 29 you carried an editorial in which you said the National Safety Council is planning to start a fire in a school to test reactions of teachers and pupils to the real thing.

This editorial is completely false, both as to purported statements of fact and conclusions.

You approach the truth in your last paragraph when you state that "an experiment which could easily backfire doesn't seem consistent with the aims of the National Safety Council." This statement would have been correct if you had said it is NOT consistent with the aims of the National Safety Council.

ACTUALLY, the facts are these:

On November 19, Marshall E. Petersen, a senior engineer in the Council's industrial department, appeared before the board of education of School District 57 as a member of the board's safety committee and as the parent of children attending school in this district to advocate the installation of a direct wire, automatic fire alarm connection with the Mount Prospect Village Fire Station. (He did not appear as an official representative of the Council.)

This action was approved by the school board that night and subsequently reported in the Mount Prospect Herald on November 22.

In his arguments for installing the fire detection system Mr. Petersen drew on his knowledge of fire protection activities which have come to his attention while performing his duties for the Council. He mentioned that a school district and its local fire department have considered conducting a fire drill in which artificial smoke might be used to make the drill appear more realistic. He made this statement, along with several others pertaining to fire protection equipment, only to inform the board members of School District 57 what is being done or is under consideration in efforts to improve fire protection.

AT NO time did he say that the school district and the fire department he was referring to had decided to go ahead with the plan, nor did he state that it would be conducted under the auspices of the National Safety Council. Likewise, he made no statements regarding photographs or motion pictures in connection with this plan, particularly since this had never been discussed between the aforementioned school district and fire department.

The term you use "frightened little faces" is a figment of the imagination of your editorial writer.

In conclusion, the National Safety Council feels that all you performed by printing the editorial was a disserve to your readers, the National Safety Council, the safety movement in general, and yourself.

Editorial Wins Reader Praise

Your editorial on the township school treasurer couldn't have been better. You took a conglomeration of information and presented a factual, understandable, and convincing case for eliminating the office. This carefully done an article does not write itself.

Columnist Earns Mother's Praise

I was certainly pleased to read Joan Lorenson's excellent article in Thursday's paper!

I am a mother of three boys and I, too, feel it is so wrong to conduct these Disaster Drills in the schools. (And now the Chicago schools are planning on stocking their basements with can goods!)

When will our educators learn that there can be no nuclear war—and if it comes about, there is no place to hide and that we don't want our children "getting used to" the idea that mankind can survive a nuclear holocaust? Why not spend that time in the classroom studying modern warfare and the peaceful alternatives to war?

Fireman's Ball Thanks Voiced

The Buffalo Grove Volunteer Fire Department would like to express its sincere gratitude to the residents of Buffalo Grove and surrounding communities for making the Fireman's Ball of Nov. 17 at St. Mary's Hall a tremendous success.

The Fire Department would also like to say thank you to its ladies auxiliary for its splendid cooperation in helping to make the ball the outstanding affair of the year.

WE HAVE reduced our debt on the fire apparatus by $1000 and we feel sure that with your future cooperation we will endeavor to give you a fire department and rescue squad that you can and will be proud of.

We wish to also thank Hillman's, Jack Keiser, Jewel Food Stores, Glenora Farms Dairy, Jewel Coffee Co., The Pro Bowl Grill, Wonder Bread, Ben Franklin's, and Father Ballweber of St. Mary's for their generous donations.

Writers' Attacks on Civil Defense Are 'Irresponsible'

As a member of local Civil Defense, I am shocked at the persistence with which Paddock Publications attack the national defense effort, including Civil Defense.

On Nov. 1 after the Cuban situation had been eased by a U. S. show of force, you quoted "50 religious leaders" as stating that the Soviet back-down was not necessarily due to our military threat.

Nov. 15, Mr. Setlik attacked the "civil defense mania."

Nov. 22, Miss Lorenson attacked school disaster drills as "futile preparedness schemes."

THESE PEOPLE are entitled to their opinions. But when they are obviously uninformed as to various aspects of Civil Defense, and nevertheless imply intimate knowledge, a question of editorial integrity is raised.

For example, Mr. Setlik states, without specific example, "Villages are again throwing money at civil defense directors." What villages? What sums? Did he check the actual appropriations of local villages before making this statement?

Miss Lorenson solemnly speaks of our responsibility to see that Civil Defense Directors don't abuse their "tremendous power" by "creating an emergency." What kind of "emergency" can Civil Defense Directors possibly create? And doesn't she know that even in a war disaster, CD directors are still under the authority of local government?

Mr. Setlik damns shelters and Civil Defense as one, whereas shelter is actually only one aspect of Civil Defense.

HE CHARGES that shelters will create belligerency, indicating lack of knowledge that even with a broad shelter program, millions of casualties could still result. For to believe that government leaders will become war-minded just because casualties may be cut from 100 million to 10 million, is of course ridiculous.

Regardless of their opinions about shelters, do these writers realize that a nuclear attack would create panic and chaos which local Civil Defense would have to handle with a volunteer organization, whose recruitment is constantly being sabotaged by such editorials? Do they want our community to be completely unprepared?

Civil Defense has been fully explained at 20 or more meetings of local organizations, which none of your staff has to my knowledge, ever attended, despite numerous invitations.

Mr. Daughtry, Arlington Heights Director, has repeatedly offered to meet with your staff, fully present the facts and answer all questions. His offer has never been accepted.

If Mr. Setlik, who proclaims that "man was not made to burrow in a hole," chooses to forget that thousands of G.I.'s saved their lives and won the last war by "burrowing" in fox-holes, or means to imply that he would have bared his breast to the guns rather than "burrow," perhaps that is his privilege.

IF MISS Lorenson believes that school children can do fire drills but not disaster drills without becoming neurotic, that is her right.

If your writers really believe that the alternative to strong defense of "developing our peacemaking capacity more fully," makes any practical sense;

—If they do not see in Cuba proof that adequate force maintains peace —And in India, proof that weakness invites war;

—If they believe that dollars given to the UN to enforce peace in the Congo by armed force are used for "peace," but dollars which make the U.S. too powerful to attack are used for "war";

—They perhaps have a right to these strange conclusions.

BUT I QUESTION their right, based on inadequate knowledge, to present pseudo-facts concerning civil defense and freely using the smear by speaking of "the civil defense mania" . . . "the great delusion of the preparedness schemes" . . . and "villages throwing money at civil defense directors."

This type of reporting smacks of irresponsibility in journalism.

Students Were Credit to High

I attended the Bears-Giants football game Sunday, Dec. 2, at which the Prospect High School Band and the Rhythmettes performed under the direction of Mr. Edward Volz, and I just have to give these "kids" a standing ovation in recognition of their fine performance. Not only did they give a wonderful exhibition of their talents, but their conduct was exemplary.

They left the high school grounds at 8:30 a.m. and returned at, approximately 5:30 p.m. During all this time, the chaperones NEVER ONCE had to correct these young people (there were 105 of them in the group), whether it was on the busses or at Wrigley Field. I know, because I was with them and able to observe, impersonally, their actions at all times.

WHENEVER Mr. Volz blew his whistle for attention, he received it immediately, not two or three seconds later, but RIGHT THEN! He is doing a tremendous job with these boys and girls, as is Miss Hallett who works with the Rhythmettes.

I must also commend the parents as the fine behavior of these "kids" is but a reflection of their home environment.

Prospect High School can be well proud of these young people.

Santa in the Suburbs . . . page 6

He's there, all right, whether he comes by helicopter, jet plane, or one-horse sleigh. In this month's Round Table, you'll discover how suburbs across the country keep Christmas, and you'll see why the old familiar celebrations are still the favorites.

Pearl Buck's Christmas Eve . . . page 10

The author of "The Good Earth" has a special ritual for this night. She hangs up "Nineteen Stockings by the Chimney Piece"—one for each of her own and her adopted children—and all by herself she fills them to overflowing. Her insight, as she reflects on the years just passed and yet to come, will tell you much about the Nobel Prize winner.

What's New in Scandinavia? . . . page 13

Plenty. We sent correspondent Lydia Ratcliff to the Scandinavian Design Cavalcade to find the best ideas in everything from furniture to flower pots for the suburban home. Here's her report on Finland's flameproof earthenware and children's chairs from Sweden, decorative tiles made in Norway and Danish "candle burst"—all things of beauty for everyday use.

The Weekend Game . . . page 16

Cartoonist Roy Doty and his wife have concocted a game to help you through a hectic weekend in the suburbs. Maybe you've put the lawn mower and garden tools away, but you still have to mind the baby and catch up on your office work. Here's a delightful way to take time out from these chores—and the winner gets a nap on the nearest sofa.

On the Cover

You can almost touch the Santa Claus whiskers and the tiny brushes on the Christmas work table. Cover artist Norman Adams has recorded, true to life, the ribbon and paper and cards of today, plus a collector's item, an apothecary jar filled with antique Christmas balls. And if you look closely, you'll see that the artist sends greetings on the card lying on the table.

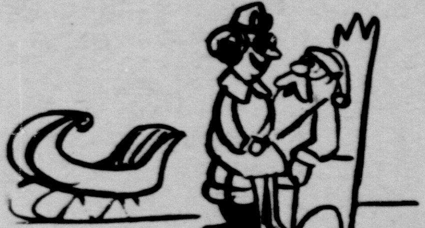
GETTING AROUND

. . . to Our Pleasant Places and People

The sight of a Santa Claus doing business at the old stand last week reminds us of a story we heard from Mrs. Thomas Woodward of Dearborn, Michigan. It seems that a large toy store in a suburban town had its Santa Claus enthroned in a king-sized igloo. To add to the excitement, a brightly painted red sleigh carried delighted and awe-struck youngsters to the igloo. Sally, aged eight, had arrived at the "I'm-not-sure-I-believe" stage; nevertheless, with her mother in tow, she boarded the sleigh for a visit. Just before it rounded the bend that would bring them into Santa's view, Sally regretted her decision and hopped out. Her mother, now the only passenger, was left to complete the ride to the throne.



"Well," said the man-in-red, his eyes twinkling over his bushy whiskers, "some people never give up, do they?"

"Seems everyone around these parts owns a pair of thong sandals," says Mrs. Fred Van Dyke of Englewood, Colorado. "Our four-year-old had quite a time with her first pair. Once she mastered the trick of keeping them on, she announced with great pride, 'I just hook them on my thumb toe.' "

Notice by a soft-drink vending machine near La Jolla, California: "Test your I.Q.—Try to put the round bottles in the square holes."

A correspondent in Silver Spring, Maryland, who travels about the country, noticed this sign above a complicated electronic computer in the Los Alamos field office of the Atomic Energy Commission: "Achtung! Alles lookenspeepers. Das computenmachine is nicht for gefingerpoken or mittengrabben. Ist east schappen der springenwer, blowanfusen and poppencorken mit spittzensparken. Is nicht for gewerken by das dummkopfen. Das rubbernecken sightseeren keepen hands in das pockets—relaxen and watch das blinkenlights."

A special referendum to annex a 25-acre plot of land to the town of Mountain Brook, Alabama, was carried by a unanimous vote. The actual tally was 2-0, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Wilson, the couple who live on the land, as the only voters.

Residents of Minnetonka, Minnesota, always look twice when D. W. McGregor rides down the street in his "Silver Ghost"—a 1926 Rolls-Royce roadster that cost nearly $25,000 when it was built. The long car has gigantic headlights, an aluminum engine hood, and a rumble seat complete with carpeting. Mr. McGregor bought the Rolls (and he's not telling how much he paid for it) from an antique-car fancier in New York. "And on the way home," he says, "I cruised along at 45 m.p.h. and enjoyed the startled looks on the faces of the other drivers."

Lots of real beef flavor is toasted into new Bar-B-Chew. When you add warm water, you set free a fragrant scent that calls your dog to dinner.

Even to finicky dogs, Bar-B-Chew smells as good as hamburger. It chews like hamburger, too. That's because the crunchy chunks don't turn mushy or sticky in water. Gro-Pup Bar-B-Chew stays firm in its beef-flavor broth.

Dogs wolf it down. And they thrive on it. This new kind of food is more completely nourishing than hamburger—contains every nutrient dogs are known to need for a long and healthy life. Let your dog live it up.

A friend in Lawrence, Indiana, tells us about a group of California merchants who decided to do something about the 600 drab parking meters that lined the streets in front of their shops. They capped each bare pole with a flowerpot filled with green plants. The move brightens up the shopping area—and the spirits of the drivers as they put their coins in the slots.

A citizens' committee advising the City Council of Marietta, Georgia, listed these qualifications for prospective policemen in their town: "He (the policeman) must have the wisdom of Solomon, the courage of Daniel, the strength of Job, the leadership of Moses, the kindness of the Samaritan, the strategy of Alexander, the faith of David, the diplomacy of Lincoln, and the tolerance of Confucius." The committee admitted that the job of hiring qualified policemen is a tough one.

ROUND TABLE 5

How Does Your Town Keep Christmas?

Santa Claus may come by helicopter, but a survey finds most "exploding" suburbs contentedly traditional

Edited by

GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

THERE'S ONE specially nice thing about Christmas—it doesn't seem to change too much. Every year, everywhere, somebody raises the cry, Let's do something different this Christmas! And every year, everywhere, almost everybody winds up doing just about what they did last Christmas—and loving it.

Innovations, if any, are an addition, rather than a change, like new ornaments on the trees. For instance, these days Santa often arrives by helicopter. No more reindeer? A little chap from Ferndale, Michigan, had the answer to that. "Look at those antlers spinning around, Ma!" he cried gleefully. In his heart the reindeer were right there.

A group of fourth-grade youngsters in Cheviot, Ohio, symbolized this instinctive desire to preserve the Christmas image by writing—with touching reverence and imaginative skill—a modernized version of the coming of the Christ child, as though He were to be born today, in their own town, with the Holy Family finding accommodations in a garage instead of a stable, and bedding down the newborn infant on the seat cushion of an old car instead of in a manger.

Solid citizens show imagination, too. In Oak Cliff, Texas, the Optimists' Club gives an annual shoe party—lunch and toys for 40 children, followed by a visit to a store for new shoes and socks. Now something really new has been added—the beauty shops of the city give a free hairdo to every girl in Oak Cliff's two orphanages. That may be a novelty, but what could cheer a feminine heart more than this bit of frivolity?

In Littleton, Colorado, a yule log is hidden away in the woods near Palmer Lake; townsfolk clad in red cloaks participate in a great hunt, the lucky finder of the log having the privilege of riding it back to town with everybody else pulling on the dragropes.

Oakmont, Pennsylvania's, high school invites the whole community to its annual Candlelight Service, in which the combined choruses of the school march into the darkened auditorium, boys in dark suits, girls in dark skirts and white blouses, each carrying a lighted candle. Marietta, Georgia, and Annapolis, Maryland, look forward to the annual presentation of Handel's famous oratorio, "The Messiah," in Marietta by the combined efforts of the Music Club, the Community Symphony Orchestra, and the choirs of the several churches, in Annapolis by the musical groups of the United States Naval Academy. But possibly the midshipmen themselves appreciate even more the annual Christmas dinner to which they may bring guests and at which they can smoke!

INTERNATIONAL friendship and understanding, in harmony with the spirit of Christmas, are dramatized by the school children of Warwick, Rhode Island, where each school stages a pageant around the songs and Christmas legends of other lands, with the children dressing the part in Tyrolean breeches or Greek shawls, as the case may be.

We did come upon a few instances of overemphasis on the commercial angles of the Christmas season, but they were not suffered gladly. In New Jersey, Summit public opinion has done away with too-garish street lighting, reducing decorations to garlands of greens; nearby Somerville protests that starting Christmas decorations in October is a little too previous. Our Raytown, Missouri, editor notes "limited participation" in a street-lighting contest sparked by the electrical industry, dryly adding that "nothing is done to discourage unrestricted lighting and decoration."

In Birmingham, Michigan, the stores have one night in which they are open for men only, to buy gifts for their wives. We were tempted to ask, "Wives only?" but refrained.

On the whole, we found widespread attention to the spiritual values of the Christmas festival. A California editor took note of the ancient belief that the date of Christmas was fixed by the early church to replace the still more ancient pagan fes-

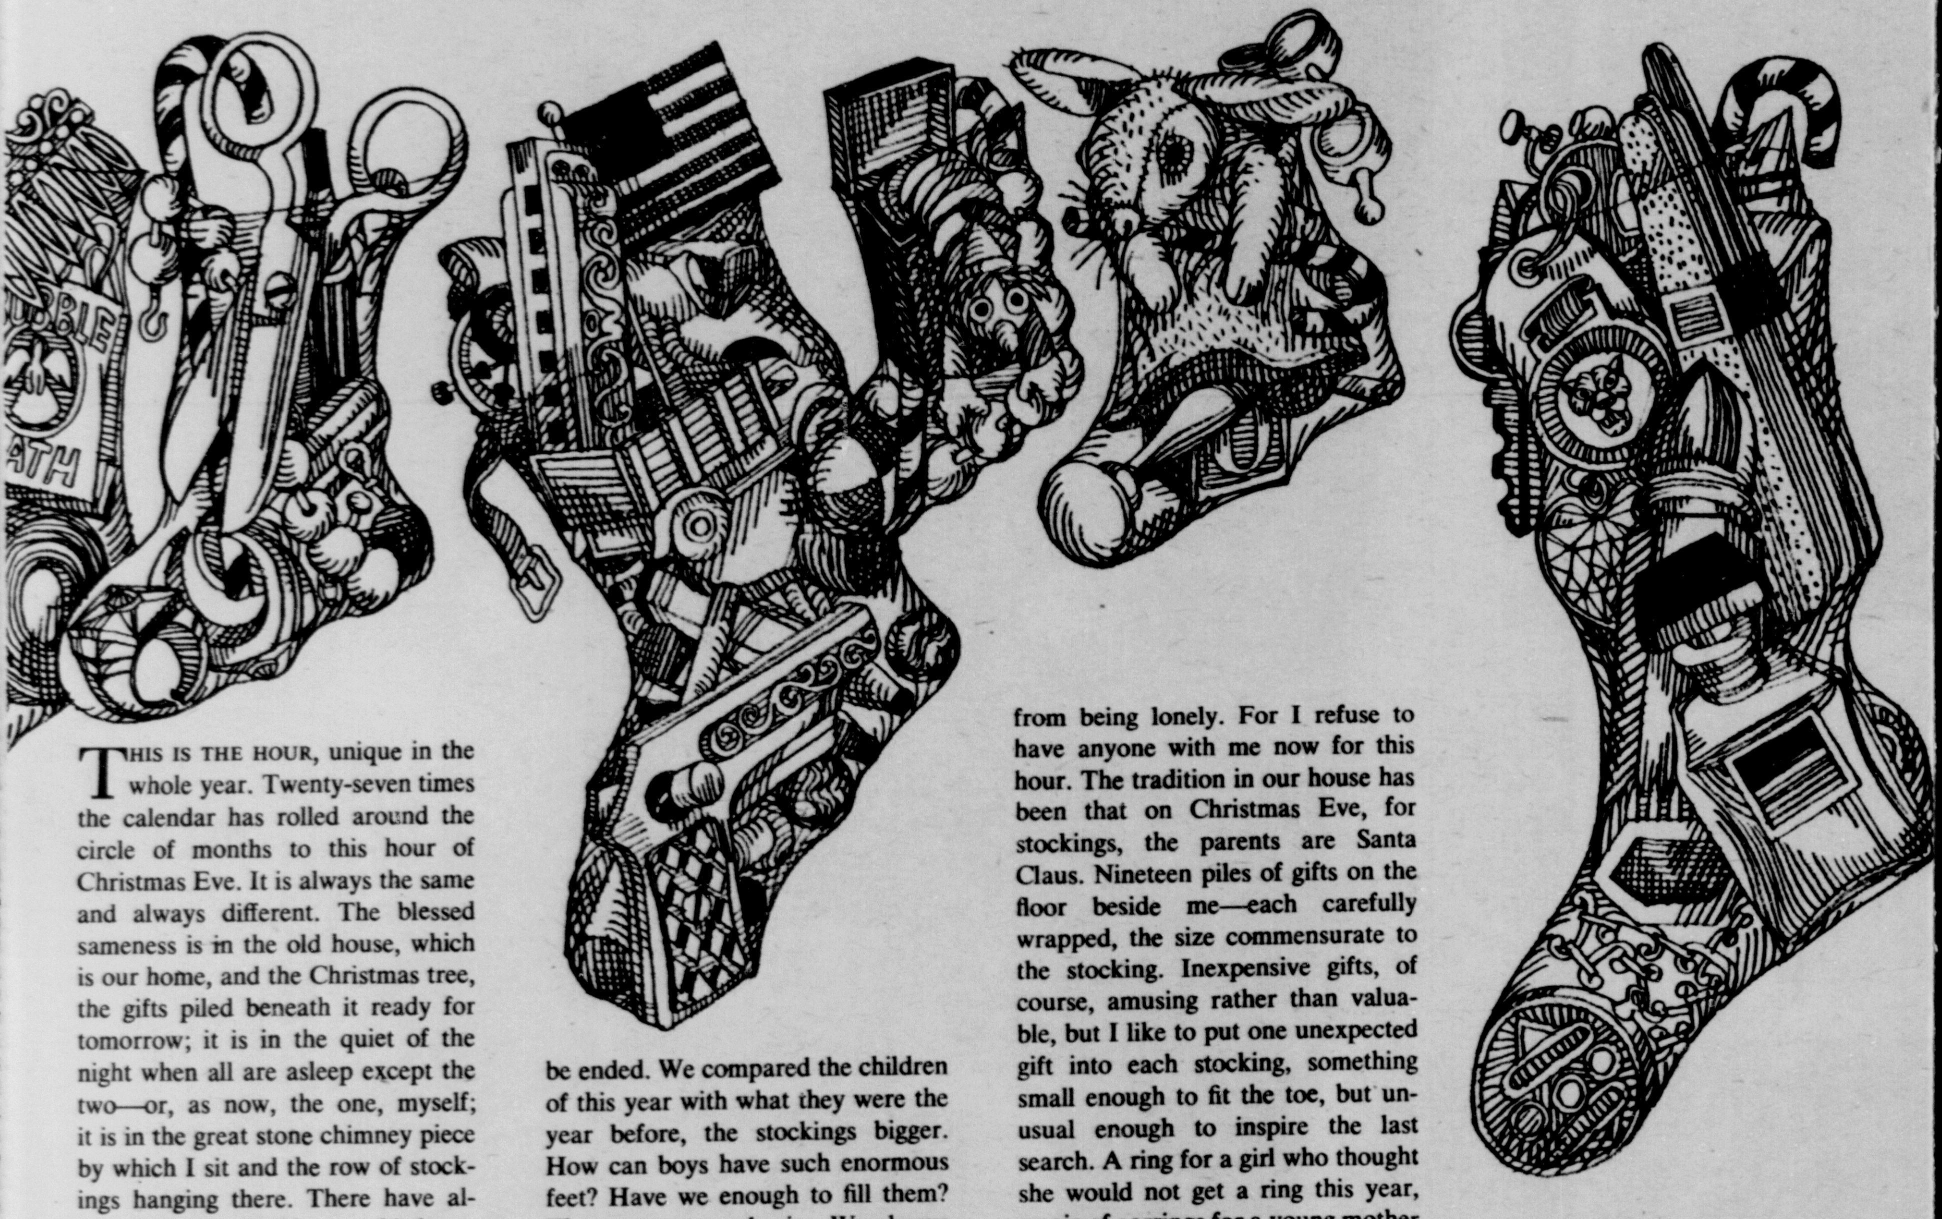
Nineteen Stockings by the

Being a parent, too, the famous novelist rejoices in the



THIS IS THE HOUR, unique in the whole year. Twenty-seven times the calendar has rolled around the circle of months to this hour of Christmas Eve. It is always the same and always different. The blessed sameness is in the old house, which is our home, and the Christmas tree, the gifts piled beneath it ready for tomorrow; it is in the quiet of the night when all are asleep except the two—or, as now, the one, myself; it is in the great stone chimney piece by which I sit and the row of stockings hanging there. There have always been the stockings at this hour. The only difference has been in the number and the sizes.

They are limp and empty at this moment, but I shall fill them. And while I fill them, my mind, as always, goes back over the years when in this room, by this chimney piece, we have filled the children's stockings. It is the final preparation for Christmas. Even when the children grew big enough to scoff at Santa Claus, even when they were big enough to go away to school and then to college, we never let them share this last hour of Christmas Eve and the filling of the stockings. This was our hour, the hour of recall and reflection, of private laughter and tenderness. We remembered, as I remember tonight, the incidents which made up the year so soon to be ended. We compared the children of this year with what they were the year before, the stockings bigger. How can boys have such enormous feet? Have we enough to fill them? These were annual cries. We always had enough, however big the feet were. And how small they were at first! There are still small ones, and the smallest now belongs to the newest baby, the tiny son of my daughter. And the row of stockings grows longer, five little stockings belonging to five little boys, and three little stockings belonging to three little girls, all the children of my children, hanging between the long stockings of their mothers and the big-footed socks of their fathers.

Here beside my chair are piled the gifts that I shall put into the stockings. The logs are blazing in the fireplace, and in the library next to the living room someone who should be in bed is playing Christmas carols softly, with the sweet intent, I am sure, of keeping me from being lonely. For I refuse to have anyone with me now for this hour. The tradition in our house has been that on Christmas Eve, for stockings, the parents are Santa Claus. Nineteen piles of gifts on the floor beside me—each carefully wrapped, the size commensurate to the stocking. Inexpensive gifts, of course, amusing rather than valuable, but I like to put one unexpected gift into each stocking, something small enough to fit the toe, but unusual enough to inspire the last search. A ring for a girl who thought she would not get a ring this year, a pair of earrings for a young mother who lost an earring last summer when a baby tugged it off and threw it in the grass, a gold pencil for the young man with a new job, a silver spoon for the middle-sized baby who believes she can feed herself better than parent or grandparent can do it, widespread food notwithstanding, a watch for a little boy who has just learned to tell time—such things are the treasures.

EVERYTHING is wrapped and if possible—my time permitting, that is—a nonsense verse or a message of love goes with each gift. Some years I am full of verses, on other years I cannot find a rhyme, however I search my brain. The children, large and small, take me as I come, and they are philosophical about it. Children learn to be philosophical about their parents, for which I am grateful. It is a holy experience to receive into one's arms a newborn human being, but sometimes I think that the highest experience of all is to look a full-grown man or woman in the face and recognize the mature human being that once was the newborn child. A new communication is established and upon equal terms. The satisfaction, the sheer human comfort of it! Next to the primary love between man and woman, I know of no other emotion as deep as that which parents feel when they know their children are grown men and women, ready to take their share in life's work.

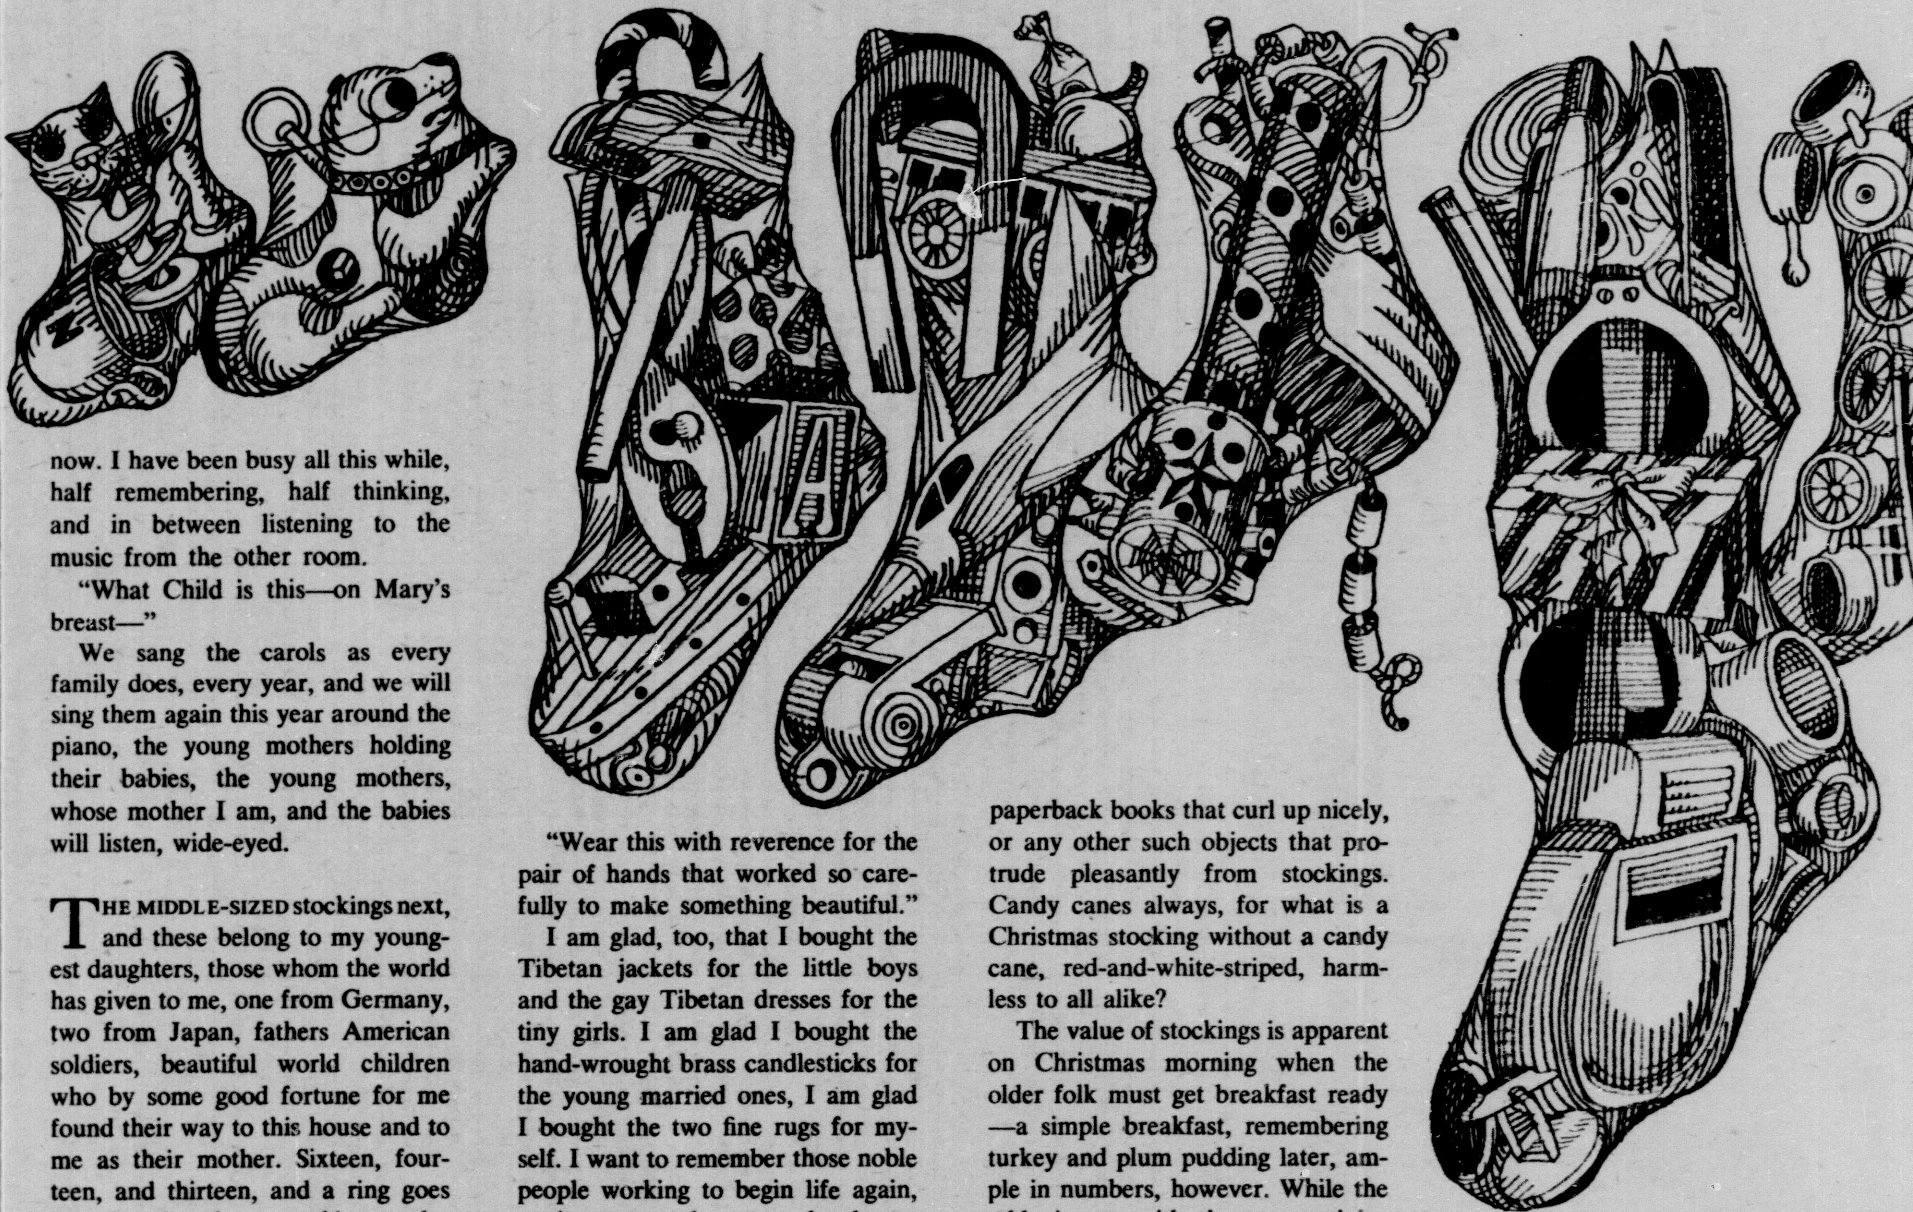
author of "The Good Earth," "Imperial Woman," "A Bridge for Passing," etc.

thought of filling them to overflowing



now. I have been busy all this while, half remembering, half thinking, and in between listening to the music from the other room.

"What Child is this—on Mary's breast—"

We sang the carols as every family does, every year, and we will sing them again this year around the piano, the young mothers holding their babies, the young mothers, whose mother I am, and the babies will listen, wide-eyed.

THE MIDDLE-SIZED stockings next, and these belong to my youngest daughters, those whom the world has given to me, one from Germany, two from Japan, fathers American soldiers, beautiful world children who by some good fortune for me found their way to this house and to me as their mother. Sixteen, fourteen, and thirteen, and a ring goes into the toes of two stockings and a gold thimble into the toe of the third, for the one who likes to sew. "No candy this year, please, Mother," and so no sweets to these fastidious three who are beginning to know they are pretty. I put in the lipstick for the eldest, and next year I shall have to put in a lipstick for the next one. Fifteen is the beginning of such decorations in our family, but a necklace goes in for each one, a silver hand-wrought necklace bought in Darjeeling, when I was there visiting the Tibetan refugees last spring. They are brave people, working hard to support themselves though exiled from their beloved and beautiful mountain country. I write a little message to go with the necklaces.

"Wear this with reverence for the pair of hands that worked so carefully to make something beautiful."

I am glad, too, that I bought the Tibetan jackets for the little boys and the gay Tibetan dresses for the tiny girls. I am glad I bought the hand-wrought brass candlesticks for the young married ones, I am glad I bought the two fine rugs for myself. I want to remember those noble people working to begin life again, anxious not to become a burden to their Indian hosts.

Ah, here is a treasure for my tall, dark-eyed daughter, an emerald, rough-cut, from India. She is clever with her crafts, and she will set it into a gold ring, or perhaps a clip. That goes into the toe of a very long stocking, so long that I wonder if I can fill it. A fan from Japan, that helps, and then the nonsense things, and last of all a paperback book for the top. It is of course essential that every stocking must appear to bulge and certainly to overflow at the top. Dolls, of course, for the tiny girls, little dolls, not competing with big ones under the Christmas tree, and small trucks for the small boys, not competing with large vehicles tomorrow, and for the older ones the paperback books that curl up nicely, or any other such objects that protrude pleasantly from stockings. Candy canes always, for what is a Christmas stocking without a candy cane, red-and-white-striped, harmless to all alike?

The value of stockings is apparent on Christmas morning when the older folk must get breakfast ready —a simple breakfast, remembering turkey and plum pudding later, ample in numbers, however. While the table is set, with the orange juice and eggs and bacon in preparation, the stockings are unpacked. The little ones concentrate on the delightful task, and the older ones perform the same task en route between table and stove. By the time we sit down the stockings are limp again, and between sips and mouthfuls we exclaim and compare and the little boys swallow with dangerous haste, so that they can get down on the floor and run their cars.

BUT THAT IS tomorrow morning, and it is still Christmas Eve. I finish the last stocking and hang it on the chimney piece and sit down in the big chair to survey the noble work. A fine array, each year more stockings than the last, and peace descends. It is almost midnight. I wait, as we always did, until I hear Big Ben from London. The logs are a mass of coals, crimson under the gray ash. The music comes to a close in the other room, and the one who made it tiptoes in and curls up beside me on the floor. I put out my hand and she takes it. Mother and daughter we wait. Midnight. Across the ocean we hear the bells in London. Christmas Eve is ended again for another year. I refuse the mist of sadness that might envelop me if I allowed it. Tomorrow is Christmas Day. This silent room will be filled with life, new life, life renewed. Another Christmas, for this world in peril, and goodwill too scarce, but, thank God, another Christmas!

GREETINGS FROM SCANDINAVIA

■ When one traveler was asked what he would most like to take home from Scandinavia, he said his first choice would be a Scandinavian. But until the Norwegians, Danes, Finns, and Swedes become available for export, we outsiders must settle for the fruits of their extraordinary imagination and uniquely creative hands. Design of all kinds has become a major tourist attraction in Oslo, Copenhagen, Helsinki, and Stockholm. Here, from this year's Scandinavian Design Cavalcade, is a sampling of products and ideas for our own houses, reported by SUBURBIA TODAY's special correspondent.

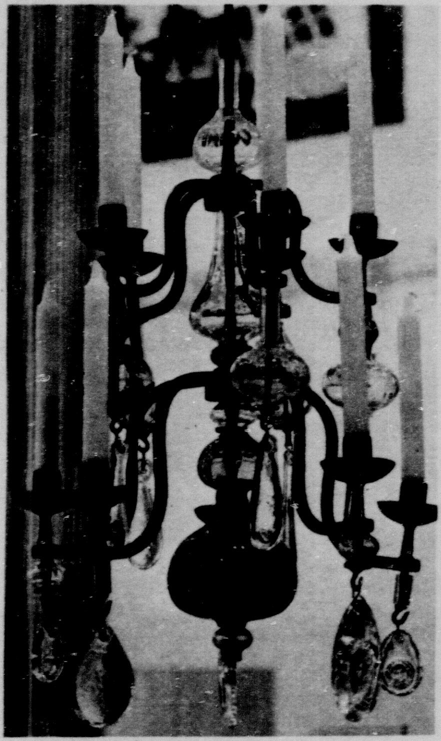
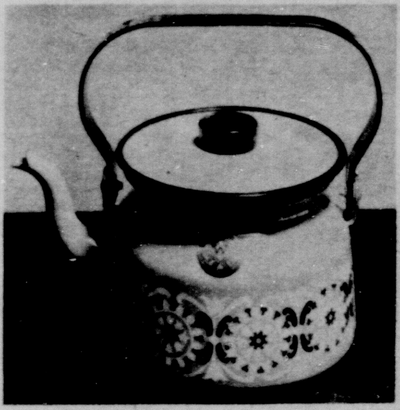
SIZZLE AND SERVE Finland's new flameproof earthenware cooking utensils are as efficient on an open burner as they are aesthetic on the dinner table, and their steady, heat-holding character is a boon to all cooks, the beginners and the demanding experts alike. Designed by a well-known artist, Ulla Precopé, the "Liekki"—"flame"—pots and pans stand to eliminate the housewife's juggling act from stove to table to refrigerator. Simple and good-looking, the new casseroles are available—like the Model T Ford—in one color only, Finnish "earth brown."

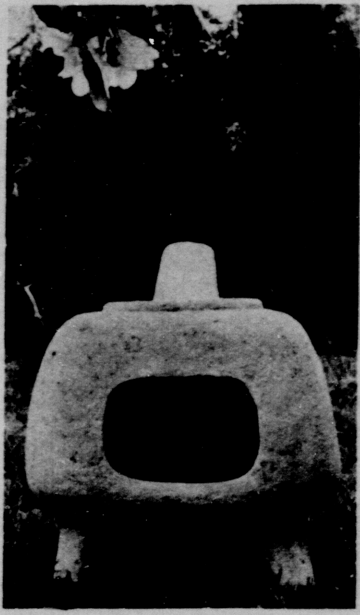


CANDLES FOR YOUR CHANDELIER One Swedish designer has gone so far as to put the candle back into the chandelier: the ones shown here shine through blue glass pendants that reflect the chandelier's wrought-iron lacework. The Swedes light up their gardens as well as their houses with candles in clusters of glass globes, reminiscent of Stockholm's glittering outdoor park lights. The Danes take a dripless variety off the vertical and lean them out from low wooden stands in a "candle burst."



POOR-MAN'S POT Designers in both Norway and Finland have taken a new look at an old material for the kitchen—enamel. Good cooks have long maintained that enamel rates among the best cooking surfaces: it cleans easily, doesn't add its own flavor to delicate foods, and it is inexpensive. They have also lamented the fact that "bathroom white" enamel is an eyesore outside the kitchen and that it tends to chip. Scandinavian technicians have devised an unbreakable variety, and artists have dressed up enamel in a host of new colors and designs. Result is a series of brightly colored teapots, cheerful plates and pans, and salad bowls—some gaily decorated—that need no apology anywhere in the house.

FURNITURE FOR FUN A typical Scandinavian craftsman, Erik Heglund, is a sculptor, ceramist, glass blower, woodworker, and architect all rolled into one, and recently he has turned his hand to children's furniture. His down-to-earth designs for the destructive set include rockers like the one shown here, "tunnel" chairs, and pig-shaped benches made out of redwood and bright woven cloth. They have all been tried out first on Heglund's own three bumptious offspring.



AN OVEN FOR YOUR GARDEN The American garden can now be graced by a Danish ceramic confection: the outdoor oven. Reaching to the Orient for its inspiration, the charcoal-burning oven is made of a heavy stone and clay mixture. A big improvement over the rusty, gangling barbecue set, it holds its heat for hours, once its thick walls have warmed up, and can be used not only for tea and plate-warming but also for cooking, or simply cutting the chill of an afternoon.

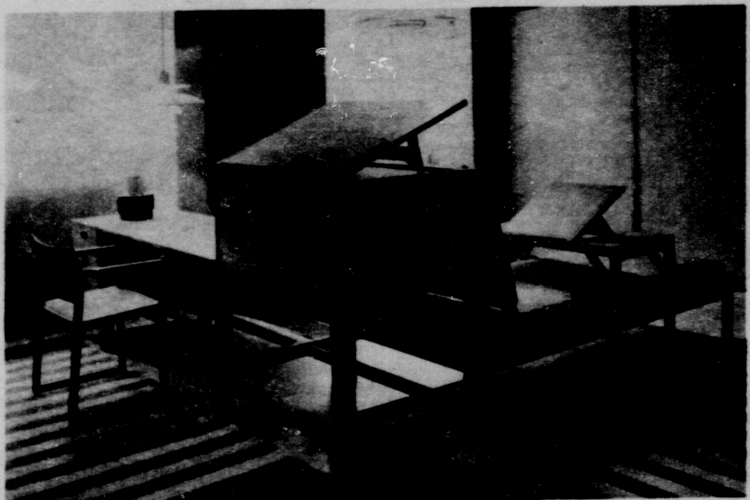
DRIPLESS FLOWERPOTS The Finns have fewer flowers than the Danes and the Swedes, but they make up for any scarcity in imagination and originality. ("We get all our ideas from the Finns," a Norwegian designer has said.) Richard Lindh, one of the artists at the famed Arabia ceramic factory, has found a way to make a lovely decoration out of the most modest geranium: put it in a clean, white-glazed clay pot with a built-in saucer. In another clever turn of the potter's wheel, Lindh took the holes out of the bottom of the pots and put them on the side, instead. This provides proper ventilation—and prevents dirt from leaking out onto the living-room table.

DOUBLE-DECKER TEAPOTS Here the Scandinavians—incurable teapot collectors all—offer another lesson to Americans. In the double-decker teapot, the tea goes below and the hot water above in an arrangement that not only saves space but keeps both ingredients hot. And the Norwegians have come up with a novel idea for the tea table, too. Topped with decorative ceramic tiles to match a set of cups, it eliminates the need for saucers!



ROOM FOR A MAN This man's "room" by the Danish designer, Berge Mogensen, is a lavish all-teak escape hatch with a sit-down desk, stand-up drawing table, and lie-down bed and couch combination with an adjustable reading rack.

■ As you see from these pages, Scandinavian ideas for the home are endless. From "Liekki" pots to this magnificent teak, their artists and craftsmen are continually inspiring and tempting the only-too-ready homeowner to show William Morris's high-minded good sense and "have nothing in your house which you do not know to be useful or believe to be beautiful."

Products of the Design Cavalcade are carried by fine shops throughout the country. For further information write Scandinavian Travel Commission, Dept. S. T., Box 260, New York 17, New York.

7 HEAVENLY HOLIDAY IDEAS

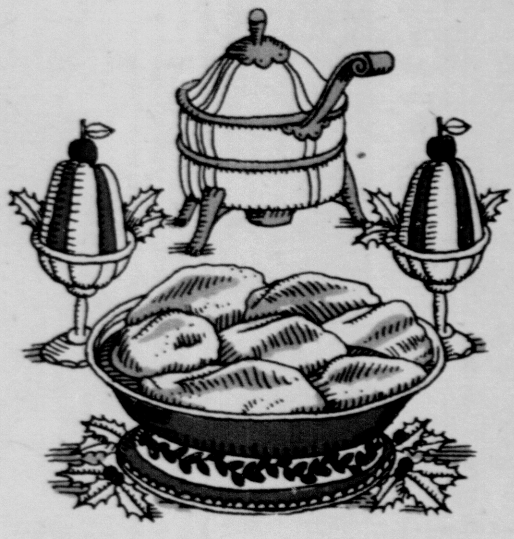
WITH

Stouffer's

FROZEN PREPARED FOODS

Stouffer's King Crab Imperial, solid chunks of Alaska crab in a mellow sauterne-sparked sauce.

Serving ideas: As hot hors d'oeuvres or appetizers, serve (on a small plate) over crisp miniature noodle rings. Or use to fill tiny cream puffs or patty shells. Makes a luscious hot-dip, plain or combined with Stouffer's Welsh Rarebit.



Stouffer's Baked Breasts of Chicken, tender white meat baked to bubbling perfection in a real-cream gravy. (One package serves two.)

Serving idea: Stouffer's Baked Breasts of Chicken over wild rice, with vegetable and cheery red-and-green jello-fruit salad.

Stouffer's Spinach Souffle, tender leaf spinach, finely chopped and blended with rich ingredients.

Serving idea: Defrost 3 packages Stouffer's Spinach Souffle until soft enough to pour into a mold. Bake in 350° oven 1½ hours. Cool and fill with mushroom sauce. Garnish with fresh cranberries.

Stouffer's Lobster Newburg, fresh Nova Scotia lobster in a cream sauce that hints of sherry wine.

Serving idea: Use one-to-four packages, depending on size of your guest list. Split hot popovers across the top and fill with Lobster Newburg.

Stouffer's Frozen Fruit Delight, fruit-and-marshmallow laced with a creamy fruit dressing.

Serving idea: Defrost two or three packages, transfer to your favorite salad mold, and refreeze. Remove by applying hot cloths to mold. Decorate with curly endive and frozen strawberries for the prettiest centerpiece of the season.

Stouffer's Creamed Chicken, chunks of white and dark chicken meat, chicken broth and honest-to-goodness heavy cream for smooth, smooth flavor. Treat your friends to most unusual hors d'oeuvres of tantalizing Creamed Chicken.

Serving ideas: Serve in French Patty Shells, top with toasted almonds. For holiday color—add pimento, peas and mushrooms to Creamed Chicken. Or try two tablespoons of hot Creamed Chicken in the center of each Swedish (extra-thin) pancake. Roll 'em up! Serve rest of chicken over pancakes.

Stouffer's Welsh Rarebit, smooth and tangy, made with cheddar cheese, aged in Stouffer's own cold-room.

Serving ideas: For a wonderful hot-dip, defrost a package or two and add a good sprinkling of crisp bacon bits. For toasted cocktail sandwiches, spread between bread rounds; butter outsides and toast in broiler. Serve hot and fragrant.

For added zest with any holiday meal, try Stouffer's New Green Tomato Pickles.

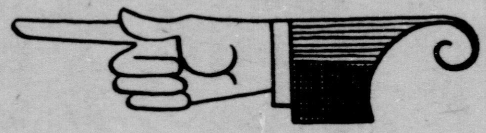
You'll find all these, and more wonderful Stouffer Foods in your grocer's freezer. Stock up soon.

Here's a game designed to give you double pleasure. It's fun to read and actually fun to play, too. Try your luck. The winner gets a rare luxury



THE RULES of THE WEEKEND GAME are simple: The object of the players is to get through the usual, hectic weekend in the suburbs, accomplishing all duties, performing all chores, attending all social functions, and surmounting all emergencies—and still squeezing in some relaxation. The winner's prize is possession of the sofa for a nap.

Two or more can play. There are no age limits—and children can enjoy the game like anyone else. Each competitor selects a marker of his own to move. A marker might be a peanut from last night's party, or an olive pit, a button, or even the screw that fell out of the kitchen cabinet last summer.

Each player, in turn, tosses two coins (any denomination) to determine the number of squares he must move. If two heads turn up, he moves one square. If two tails turn up, he moves two squares. If a head and tail turn up, he moves three squares. Blanks on the board, and spaces with direction arrows, count just the same as any other squares.

Any number of markers can rest on a particular square at one time without affecting any player's move.

The winner is entitled to his nap on the sofa without any disturbance. Losers must tiptoe from the room, turning down the hi-fi as they go. (The mere fact that they also survived the weekend should be reward enough for them.)

CINNAMON-APPLE SALAD

For pleasant flavor harmony, accompany this delicate salad with a platter of sliced smoked turkey and country-style ham. Alternate the overlapping turkey and ham slices around a mass of crisp green water cress down the center of the platter and add a contrasting holiday touch of crimson color with pomegranate seeds sprinkled over the turkey slices.

TO PREPARE: 35 MIN. TO CHILL: ABOUT 3 HRS.

Cinnamon Apples (see recipe)
Custard (see recipe)
2 tablespoons (2 env.) unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
4 drops green food coloring

1. Lightly oil a 1½-qt. fancy mold with salad or cooking oil (not olive oil); set aside to drain.

2. Pour the reserved ½ cup cinnamon apple sirup into a saucepan. Add 1 teaspoon of the gelatin; set over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved.

3. Chill gelatin mixture until slightly thicker than the consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. If chilled over ice and water, stir frequently; if chilled in refrigerator, stir occasionally.

4. Dip apple quarters in gelatin mixture to coat. Arrange about half of them around sides of mold (see photo). Chill until apples are set.

5. Transfer remaining quarters to waxed paper.

6. Meanwhile, soften remaining gelatin in the cold water in a saucepan. Set over low heat, stirring occasionally, until gelatin is completely dissolved. Blend gelatin and lemon juice into the chilled custard. Chill over ice and water, stirring frequently, until mixture begins to gel (becomes slightly thicker).

7. Beat cream cheese until very soft; gradually blend in thickened custard.

8. Spoon 2 cups of the custard mixture over apples in mold. Chill until just set, but not firm.

9. Meanwhile, blend the green food coloring into the remaining custard mixture. Chill until mixture begins to gel (becomes slightly thicker).

10. Pour half of the mixture into mold. (Both layers should be of the same consistency when combined to avoid separation when unmolded.) Arrange remaining apple quarters around sides of mold (see photo). Cover with remaining custard mixture. Chill until firm, 2 to 3 hrs.

11. To serve, unmold onto a chilled serving plate. Garnish with salad greens and thinly sliced apples dipped in a mixture of 1 cup cold water and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. 10 to 12 servings

CINNAMON APPLES—Combine in a saucepan 2 cups water, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup light corn sirup, 8 4-in. cinnamon sticks, and ¾ teaspoon red food coloring. Set over medium heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add 3 apples, cut in quarters lengthwise, pared, and cored; simmer gently until just tender. Remove from heat and allow to stand in sirup until apples are evenly colored. Remove from sirup and drain on absorbent paper. Reserve ½ cup sirup for use in salad mold.

CUSTARD—Scald 1½ cups milk in the top of a double boiler over simmering water. Blend ⅓ cup sugar and ⅛ teaspoon salt into 4 egg yolks, slightly beaten. Add a small amount of milk gradually, stirring constantly. Pour mixture into double boiler top; cook over simmering water, stirring constantly until mixture coats a spoon, about 12 min. Remove from simmering water. Stir in 1½ cups cream. Chill.

CRÈME DE POMMES

TO PREPARE AND COOK: ABOUT 40 MIN.

(allow time for chilling)

⅓ cup flour
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup cold milk
1½ cups hot milk
6 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1½ cups apple pulp (scooped from centers while preparing apple cups)
1 tablespoon lemon juice
4 teaspoons kirsch
2 cups chilled whipping cream, whipped (whip 1 cup at a time)

1. Blend flour, sugar, and salt together in a heavy saucepan. Blend in the cold milk.

2. Add the hot milk gradually, stirring constantly. Bring to boiling over low heat, stirring constantly. Boil 2 min.

3. Vigorously stir some of the hot mixture into beaten egg yolks. Then blend into mixture in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, about 5 min.

4. Remove from heat; cover loosely and set aside to cool, stirring occasionally.

5. Add lemon juice to the apple pulp and liquefy in a blender. Stir into the cooled mixture with the kirsch.

6. Fold in the whipped cream; cover and chill.

7. Spoon chilled crème into scalloped apple cups (see photo), sprinkle lightly with ground nutmeg, and accompany with peppermint candy canes, if desired. Have fruit knives and forks available so that apple cups may be eaten. About 12 servings

AUSTRIAN PECAN COOKIES

TO PREPARE: 15 MIN. TO BAKE: ABOUT 6 MIN.

2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons butter
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
½ cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups chopped pecans

1. Cream butter and extract; add sugar gradually, blending well. Add beaten eggs in halves, beating thoroughly after each addition.

2. Blend dry ingredients together; add in halves, mixing until blended after each addition. (Batter will be thin.) Stir in pecans.

3. Drop by teaspoonfuls at least 2 in. apart onto cookie sheets lined with unglazed paper.

4. Bake at 375°F about 6 min., or until lightly browned. Cool completely, then remove from paper. About 10 doz. cookies

BEEF STROGANOFF

TO PREPARE: 30 MIN. TO COOK: ABOUT 25 MIN.

2 lbs. boneless beef (tenderloin, sirloin, or rib), cut in 2x¼x¼-in. strips
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
⅓ cup butter
½ cup finely chopped onion
2 cups beef broth
3 tablespoons butter
½ lb. mushrooms, sliced lengthwise through caps and stems
1 cup thick sour cream
3 tablespoons tomato paste
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1. Coat meat strips evenly with a mixture of the flour, salt, monosodium glutamate, and pepper.

2. Heat ⅓ cup butter in a large, heavy skillet. Add meat strips and onion. Brown on all sides over medium heat, turning occasionally. Add the broth slowly to browned beef; cover and simmer about 20 min.

3. Heat 3 tablespoons butter in a skillet over medium heat. Add mushrooms and cook until lightly browned and tender.

4. Add mushrooms to the meat and remove skillet from heat. Blending well after each addition, add a mixture of the sour cream, tomato paste, and Worcestershire sauce in small amounts. Return to heat. Continue cooking over low heat, stirring constantly, until thoroughly heated; do not boil.

5. Serve with fluffy cooked rice tossed with butter and snipped parsley. About 6 servings

MULLED CLARET PUNCH

TO PREPARE AND HEAT: 25 MIN.

2 bottles claret
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
12 whole cloves
3 4-in. cinnamon sticks
Strips of peel from 1 small lemon
Strips of peel from 1 small orange

Combine all ingredients in a saucepan. Set over low heat; stir occasionally until sugar is dissolved and mixture is thoroughly heated (do not boil). To serve, strain into a heated punch bowl. About 1½ qts. punch

BASLER BRUNSLI

As appropriate to Christmas as it is uniquely Swiss, (Basler translates "from Basle"!) this rich cookie will be one of your great joys of the season.

TO PREPARE: 25 MIN. TO BAKE: 15 MIN.

(allow time for chilling)

1 lb. unblanched almonds, grated* (8 cups)
3¾ sq. (3¾ oz.) unsweetened chocolate, grated*
2½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 tablespoon kirsch
4 egg whites (about ⅔ cup)

1. Thoroughly blend nuts and chocolate with a mixture of sugar and cinnamon. Drizzle with the kirsch.

2. Beat the egg whites until stiff (but not dry) peaks are formed. Blend into nut mixture. Chill thoroughly.

3. Roll one-fourth of the mixture at a time ½ in. thick on a lightly sugared surface. Cut with 1¼-in. cookie cutters. Place on lightly greased cookie sheets.

4. Bake at 300°F for 15 min. Cool on cooling racks. About 8 doz. cookies

*Blender grating speeds the job.

GUM-DROP TREES

HERE ARE some delicious Christmas decorations to add to your regular stock, and they're easy and fun to make right at home. Take an afternoon off from the rush, clear the kitchen table, and let a gumdrop tree grow before your eyes! You can work alone if you want to, or you can get the whole family in on the project. With a little management, you'll have enough gumdrops to make your decoration and satisfy hungry helpers. The trees can cost less than $3 to make, and they're hardy, if you can control your appetite, so they can be used for several seasons.

For the working base, you get a cone of Styrofoam or similar polystyrene foam, anywhere from nine to 12 inches tall (available from $1 up, depending on size, at your florist or five-and-ten.) The stand can be a block of wood or a small vase or a jam pot filled with pebbles. There's bound to be something around the house that will do.

You will need two yards of brightly colored material for covering each cone. Red and green velvets are especially festive, but if you've already got some good scraps put away in your sewing drawer, use them.

Now for the gumdrops: Allow a couple of pounds per tree. You can choose either large or small ones, but it's best not to mix the sizes when you're beginning. And an added hint: gumdrops that have been out in the air and got hard are easier to work with than the fresh, slightly sticky ones. Make sure that the colors of the candy harmonize with the material you've chosen for the covering.

Now, cut your cloth into strips about three inches wide and six to eight inches long. Drape the strips of cloth on the cone, using regular straight pins to fasten the material in easy folds. This gives an opulent feeling when the cloth peeps out from among the gumdrops.. Be sure to leave enough room for a dozen or so gumdrops between each strip of the cloth.

You can get the children to help you with the next step: Spear each bright gumdrop with a toothpick and push it into the cone between the sections of cloth. Put the candy close together so the cone underneath doesn't show through. And for an added touch of holiday spirit, you can scatter small Christmas balls among the gumdrops or sprigs of pine or golden leaves —or anything else that happens to strike your fancy.

The gumdrop wreath is made the same way, except that you start with a circular foam base. It's best, also, to "wire" the wreath for extra support. A coat hanger will do the job. Bend the hanger into a circular shape to fit the back of the wreath and fasten it in several places by wrapping picture wire around the base. From then on, you can follow the same directions as for the tree. And you'll probably want to add a big red or green velvet bow to your finished wreath.

Gumdrop trees can go anywhere in the house. Use pairs of medium-sized ones for your table or mantelpiece, along with sweet-smelling evergreen branches or shiny holly. Or hang a wreath on the door, glowing with fruit and gilded nuts and frosty pink and green and yellow gumdrops. A big, big gumdrop tree can be the center of your living-room window arrangement, or a wreath can decorate a tray of sand tarts or Lebkuchen. Or use several small trees in the "garden" under your Christmas tree, beside the electric-train tracks.

A gumdrop wreath, with tall candles around it, will make an unusual centerpiece for your holiday table. For a party, use a large wreath as the base around the punch bowl.

Whatever you decide to make, gumdrop trees and wreaths will be appealing decorations—such sweet and pleasant fruits "as nowhere else are seen."

Here are decorations you can make yourself.

And if you make a mistake,

you can eat it!

Two most popular ways to say "Merry Christmas"

Christmas cards? Almost everybody sends them—and loves to get them. But fast becoming another holiday tradition is exchanging gifts of Canadian Club. Each passing Yuletide finds more and more folks giving and getting this world-renowned whisky.

Why is that? Simple. It's the one whisky more people want at Christmas—or on any other gift-giving occasion. They'll tell you so. (They've told us. On the record!) In fact, Canadian Club has long been known as the world's most wanted gift whisky.

So put it on the list right now for those you like to please the most. It comes luxuriously wrapped and beribboned at no extra cost.

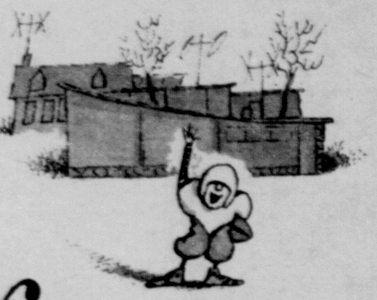
Car Pools

You can't beat 'em—but, for goodness' sake, don't join 'em

BY ROBERT DE ROOS



I resigned the captaincy of my soul and became the skipper of a car pool—for countless boys and girls.

There was a kind of logic about it. I had to drive to work anyway, didn't I? So why not take our two daughters to nursery school and pick up two or three other children on the way?

I will state right here that this logic was not mine. It was supplied by the blue-eyed logician I married and who has since given the world those splendid daughters.

So I resigned the captaincy of my soul and became the skipper of a car pool.

I am now emeritus. The little monst . . . that is, the girls have now achieved a kind of simulated womanhood. They drive themselves now. But as a car poolist, ret., I naturally have many memories of the endless days and nights I spent conveying the very youthful youth of western America to and from the unbelievable number of social and educational affairs they engage in. They do more traveling than a Secretary of State. And all the way by car.

Let me share one precious memory. If it does not chill the cockles of your heart, you have never been at the helm of a car being pooled. I can add that the memory goes back more than 10 years, and it is as fresh and ugly today as it was then.

Nursery-school car pool. The kids were two- and three-year olds, and nursery school was the first big event of their lives. The first time away from Mother.

The first three were no problem. But before the fourth passenger—a demure little girl—came aboard she had to be unstuck from her mother. It was something like carding wool.

When she did get into the car, she gave me a baleful look. Then she said, "I don't like you," and started to cry.

"Oh, she'll be all right," I assured Mother. "It's just that it's the first day." Smiles. "Watch the door. Good-bye."

I carried that car pool every school morning for three months. And every morning little Miss Borgia gave me a poisonous look along with her, "I don't like you." Then she'd cry all the way to school and get out still screeching.

What a way to start the day! My work fell off. I snarled at blameless co-workers. It was a good thing summer came and the nursery school ceased or no telling what would have happened to my career.

Looking back, I suppose those littlest ones were the worst. They were not yet out of the jungle and lived by tooth and claw. Ginny grabs Susan's doll. Gary pushes Susan to the floor, and Bobby, showing promise for one so young, lands a fairish left jab to Ginny's cheek. Then everybody cries.

And the bouncing! Boys and girls, freed from the restraint of Mother, bounce. As they bounce, they scream. Bounce. Shriek. Bounce. Scream. I have been in the tropics, surrounded by howler monkeys in full cry, and I can swear it was quieter than some of the cars I have pooled.

The only adult thing to do is to stop the car and say, in a quiet and reasonable manner:

"ALL RIGHT. ALL RIGHT. EVERYBODY SHUT UP. I WANT ABSOLUTE QUIET."

But this is not always the complete answer. I once cowed my crowd into silence after a back-seat Gettysburg only to find out later that one of the girls had received a bloody nose in the fracas. You should have seen the back seat!

"Why didn't you tell me?" I asked her.

"You told us all to be quiet," she said quietly. She had me there.

After the first year of car pooling, none of the passengers pays any attention to the driver. Long before the invention of astronauts, car-pool drivers knew about weightlessness. They not only are weightless, they became calm enough to let me drive him home, though.

One of the greatest hazards is the inadvertent car pool or car-pool-by-absorption. Here's how it works.

It is late. Your two daughters are at the movies. They are to call when they get out. The phone rings. You venture into the night.

When you arrive at the theater, six girls wave you to the curb. The other four are waifs left in the night by the above-mentioned helium-heads. The waifs do not ask for whom the car comes—they know it comes for them.

Do they all live in the same neighborhood? What a question. Lindy lives on the woodsy side of Woodside, Susan dwells on Black Mountain, Irma lives by the shore . . . I have found that a Great Circle course is the best; sometimes you get back home within the hour.

But, finally, there comes that happy day when the young are able to drive themselves and some long-suffering father coughs up the dough for a car.

Our girls pooled (can this be a verb?) in an extremely-compact, economy-sized car designed, if the number of seats is any indication, for two people. Somehow, five high-school girls got into the thing every morning. And this was in the days when young ladies wore an average of two crinoline petticoats.

Something had to give, so the girls passed a rule: no more than three books per passenger.

Now that it is all over, I cannot think of a single redeeming feature of the car pool. It is all bad. Except that it is funny once in a while and in mine you sometimes got an earful of how youth views life. For what that is worth.

If I ever have to car pool again, I'll be more selective. I won't carry anybody but Trappist monks—the ones who take vows of silence. And I won't take them if they bounce.

disappear entirely and simply become part of the car.

In this state, anyone with ears can learn many astounding facts. When my charges graduated from nursery school and went on to the grades, I learned a lot.

For instance, as we passed a cross erected for a sunrise service, a five-year-old assured me, "That's the place where Jesus was, so that's why we have Christmas."

And the comments on social life were a revelation. I remember the first day I heard Ginny and Susie discussing boys, "I just say damn and punch them."

"It's not nice to say damn."

AND THEN there was Gary's comment on dancing school: "I'm glad girls wear those white gloves. At least that way we don't have to touch them."

Nothing if not candid!

"My Mommy's going to have a baby," another rider reported, "but it's a secret and Daddy is mad. He said he didn't know how he was going to feed another mouth, but Mommy just laughed and said he should of thought of that before."

One of the first things I learned as a car-pool pilot was the difference between boys and girls. In the way they act while they're on wheels, I mean.

For one thing, boys jounce and jostle more than girls. And they are more likely to introduce fauna into the family car. I mean fauna like snakes and lizards. To this day, I am nervous whenever a snake is loose in my car.

Then there is the matter of noise levels. A noisy passenger is a better risk than a quiet one. The angelic, silent one is either poking holes in the upholstery or pinching the ones who are making the noise.

On the whole, it is better to pool girls than boys. When girls are quiet, they are day dreaming and making wishes. About boys. When boys are silent, they are either plotting a major revolt or handily taking the car apart.

I have known a seven-year-old boy who, working without tools, "fixed" the back seat of a $3,000 automobile in such a way that it took factory-trained mechanics hours to fix it back again. While he worked, it may be added, the boy wore a baseball mitt.

Which is why my definition of car pooling is "the legal destruction of a not-so-friendly neighbor's new car." Dear little souls.

Boys want you to pass every car on the road.

So do girls.

Both boys and girls instantly recognize the make and model of every car. It is absolutely uncanny how they manage to come by this information. "Cadillac" seems to be the first word they learn after "Mommy" and "Daddy."

And they are all snobs. It galls them terribly to have to ride in a car more than two years old. Since my car was four when I was in my prime as a mechanized baby sitter, I got a lot of poor mouth.

"Why don't you get a new car?" they said. "All the other kids have new cars in their pools."

But the kids began to age, too. By the time they were teen-agers, my car was much admired as a hot rod. By the time I retired from the pool, they regarded it with some awe as a "genuine antique." They had helped to make it one.

THERE SEEM to be built-in, unavoidable hazards to the fine art of car pooling. Like the time six cars show up to transport one Little League team. Enough transportation for the San Francisco Giants.

Or the helium-headed dame who remembers to "take" but forgets to "pick up." I once had the happiness of transporting six seven-year-olds after a birthday party because no one showed up for them. No strain until I got to the last one. This sturdy little American did not know where he lived. He had been car pooled so often, he thought we all knew.

I took him to my house, finally, and called his mother. (He knew his name, which was a break for me.)

"You've got your nerve," Mother snapped when I told her her castaway was with me. "I've been just about frantic not knowing where he was. I've never . . ." She

WINDJAMMER CRUISES

IF I LIVED IN WHITEFISH BAY. . .

BY HERMIONE GINGOLD

WHITEFISH BAY is in Wisconsin, right on Lake Michigan, and 20 minutes from Milwaukee. I picked it because I love whitefish, smoked, with dill and mayonnaise. And also because I love cats, and there are so many of them there that they passed a law declaring that Whitefish cats must be in control at all times—but wisely added that it was up to the local police to decide what was meant by control.

I'd have my little Yorkshire terrier, Mr. Pudding, living with me. There would be elms on my front lawn, but no flowers because the front of the house should be green. There'd be a big library, the way there was in my house in London, with a south window, so Mr. Pudding could sleep there in the sun on late autumn afternoons. Out in the back I'd have a garden with rose trees, and marigolds and masses of lilies, and there'd be a herb bed near the kitchen steps with chives and tarragon and parsley and basil and dill and mint, and I'd have a fine big barbecue, too.

I expect I should be alone a good bit in Whitefish Bay. My two sons are grown up now and on their own, as they should be. I've been married twice, of course, but divorced twice, too.

But I like being alone. Being alone gives me time for writing. I only write when I feel like it—mostly in bed. I adore my bed. So far, I've managed to turn out some short stories and articles and two books, and I have another book which Lippincott is bringing out this winter. It is called "Sirens Should Be Seen and Not Heard." They told me it was the worst spelled and the worst-punctuated manuscript they had ever seen in all their publishing experience, and I told them I didn't mind a bit, as long as I'd set a record.

If I was alone I could settle down, for instance, in that big library after tea, with Mr. Pudding hunting under the sofa for his bone, and then I'd get out my gros point and get on with the rug I'm making—I find it very relaxing—and, every now and then, I suppose, I'd think. Mostly about the theater. Nobody in my family was ever on the stage, but from the time I was a little girl, I've never wanted to do anything else. I began as a straight actress and had the luck to have a training of Shakespeare repertory. Then I was cast as a comedienne in "Sweet and Low," and I have been doing mostly comedy ever since. Sometimes in these grim times it's difficult to make people laugh, but it's wonderful when it happens.

I was brought up by a very Victorian, strict Mama. I still don't drink or smoke. When I'm depressed, I eat a chocolate bar. If something catastrophic happens, get me an eclair. I have a theory that men like plump women, anyway.

The gros point would be getting along by now—and my eyes beginning to ache—so I'd put it away and take Mr. Pudding out for a stroll along the lake front before dinner. The water would be still in the dusk, and perhaps a cat would join us, a black cat, left over from halloween and under no one's control.

In England, they still call me "the witch," and when Mike Wallace interviewed me on his midnight show, the first thing he said was, "You are one, aren't you?" I used to be, I admitted, but I've kicked the habit. Though sometimes I get a twinge for the good old days when anyone who said anything bad about me woke up the next morning to find toads in his or her bed.

Considering I have never yet been in Whitefish Bay, it may seem strange that I know so well what I would do there. But you see, it's exactly what I do now between rehearsals, or performances, at home in New York. Outside my big reading room there's a roof, 16 stories above the street, where I grow roses and marigolds and masses of lilies. There is a herb garden near the kitchen and a barbecue, too, and I do my needlepoint of an afternoon, and there's only one difference worth mentioning. New York is where my work is, when it's not in Hollywood. And home is where your work is—or within commuting distance!

You've seen her as "Gigi's" grandmother—head witch in "Bell, Book and Candle" —mayor's wife in "The Music Man." Here she is as herself

A HOUSE OF Many-Splendored Things

Mr. Seelye

THIS SWISS CHALET looks as if it might be halfway up Mt. Blanc, but it's in Minnetonka Village, Minnesota—transplanted and thriving, complete with a classic gabled roof, lovely high-beamed living room, and a feeling of warmth and coziness throughout. Inside, there are examples of brass hardware, wood paneling, and terra-cotta tiles from the foremost craftsmen in Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Seelye, who built the house, have collected these treasures from the trash pile, the junk yard, and about-to-be-wrecked mansions.

"If people would only keep their eyes open—so many beautiful things have been demolished," say the Seelyes, and they have discovered that Minnesota is a fine hunting ground. It seems that in the latter part of the 19th century, millionaire lumbermen built great houses in the state, with lavish interiors imported from Europe. Now these houses are falling under the wrecker's ball. When this happens, the Seelyes rush in and salvage a fireplace or a door or a chandelier for their chalet. And they're always on the lookout for added touches.

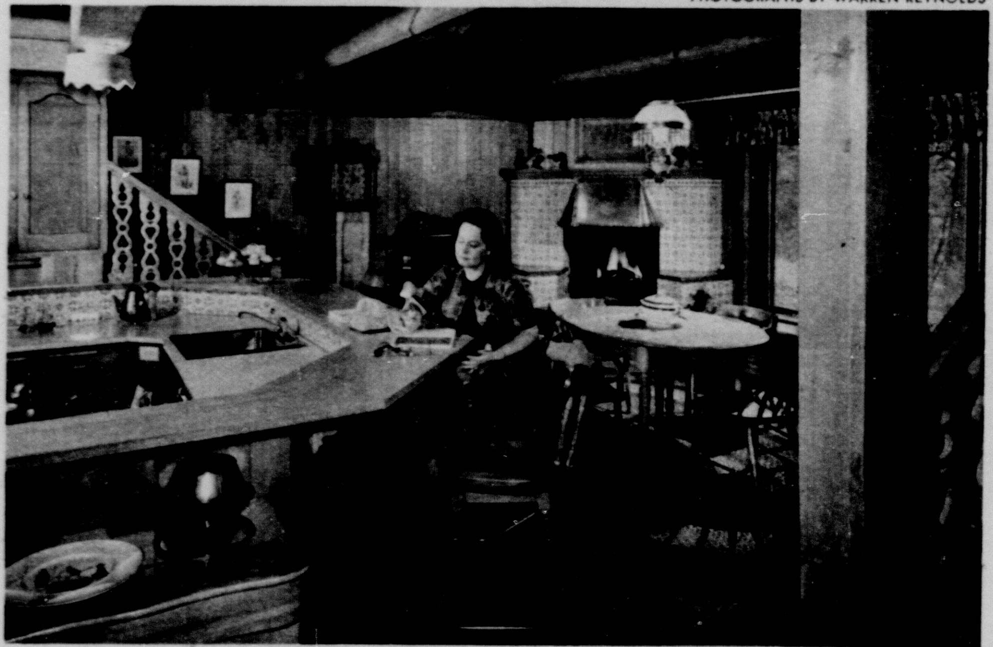
Above: The high-beamed living room has a fireplace dating back to the 1880s. Lighting the spacious room is an old chandelier of glass and crystal that is nearly five feet across. The Seelyes found it in an antique shop, but they haven't been able to trace the original owner.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY WARREN REYNOLDS



Above: Mrs. Seelye in the kitchen-dining area. Beige and white ceramic tiles from an old mansion line the fireplace and service center. Left: A bedroom with beamed ceiling, antique chests, and unusual cloth-covered sliding shutters.

How Does Your Town Keep Christmas?

tival of the winter solstice, and found this happily appropriate. "For the winter solstice," he points out, "is the time when the day begins to increase and light to triumph over darkness. Surely the old-time fathers may well have been moved to see the relation between this long-established natural truth and the new spiritual truth symbolized by the birth of Christ, the light of the soul."

Religious observances are not, however, without their difficulties. In line with the Supreme Court decision that the use of formal prayer in public schools is unconstitutional, objections were raised in Skokie, Illinois, to putting up a life-size crèche on town property, which had been a custom for years. This, it was said, amounted to using public property to support a purely religious symbol. Some very hot words were exchanged at a town meeting, at which the authorities had difficulty in keeping order, before it was decided that the crèche could stay.

Perhaps our editor in Marietta, Georgia, summed up as well as could be done the special meaning of Christmas for suburban communities. "Christmas," he said, "is a very real spiritual experience in a small town, and Marietta, though now a thriving suburb, is still a small town at heart." Our Christmas wish for all towns is that they will never grow so big and become so bustling that they will not remain small towns at heart at Christmas time.

Exotic fruits and flowers thrive in the rain-forest humidity of the Tropical Terrace.

wood for 30 years and finally endowed it as a foundation in 1937. He also built the ballroom where today horticultural organizations meet for conferences, and the public attends free lectures or listens to organ recitals. The classes for home gardeners are especially popular, and in the summer concerts and musicals are given in a large outdoor theater.

Orchids are in bloom at Longwood every week of the year; there is a special dry greenhouse for cacti and succulent plants; and the tropical-plant display and the Tropical Terrace are in other glasshouses which must be kept as moist and warm as a rain forest. In the Banana House you will always find either blooms or fruit and sometimes both. The Rose House is exciting to visit at this time of year, when the many hybrid teas are beginning to bloom again after their late-autumn rest, with brilliant bougainvillea and other subtropical vines climbing above them. In late December, too, the acacias are beginning to flower in the Acacia Passage, and by mid-January they are like a burst of fragrant sunlight.

The Camellia House is best in February and March, though some camellias may be in bloom now. April and May are the months for the rhododendrons and the Azalea Conservatory, while the greenhouses devoted to grapes and espaliered fruits are most interesting to visit in the spring and summer.

The flower gardens are wonderfully rewarding, too, from earliest spring until frost nips the late chrysanthemums. The Lilac Collection, the Flower Walks, the Peony Garden, the Maze, and the Rock Garden offer their separate delights, and the Cutting Garden is profitable to visit.

Longwood's water gardens are equal to the best in Italy. Just below the Main Conservatory two "canals" with many water jets are found, while on the lowest level are great pools with more jets inside an ilex border and level lawns, framed by pleached Norway maples, squarely clipped like enormous hedges. Every Wednesday and Sunday evening at dusk, from mid-May to mid-October a free Fountain Display is offered. At the height of the show about 10,000 gallons of water per minute are being thrown into the air.

Near the Information Center there is a large vegetable and herb garden where new varieties are constantly being tried out and compared with the good old stand-bys.

In short, we urge you to see and enjoy Longwood Gardens. Whether you go now for the holiday displays or at any other season of the year, it is worth a trip across the continent.

There's no USO in Peoria

With good reason. Peorian GI's are not staying in Peoria. They're protecting our frontiers of peace. And that's where the USO is.

USO serves GI's where spiritual uplift and homey relaxation is needed now, more than ever before. For winning the peace is a lonely battle. Of the 2,750,000 GI's, over half are under 25 . . . away from home for the first time.

The Main Conservatory at Longwood as it appears this month with its masses of poinsettias and fragrant narcissus in bloom, set off by the fresh green of a real lawn under glass.

Three Acres Under Glass

BY JOHN BRIMER

THIS MONTH Longwood Gardens at Kennett Square, Pennsylvania, just across the border from Wilmington, Delaware, will have three and a half acres of glasshouses filled with a winter treasure of all kinds—narcissus and iris and African daisies, cactus, tropicals, orchids, fruit trees—whatever you are looking for, you'll find it here.

In the great Main Conservatory, December brings a splashy red and green display. Masses of large red poinsettias burgeon against a background of two large lawns—the indoor lawns at Longwood are legendary—and over the lush green grass, tree ferns wave their great delicate fronds, indifferent to the cold and snow outside. Music of the season is played here from mid-December into January, and many hundreds of people stop on their way home from shopping or holiday parties to enjoy the peace and beauty of this great plant house, and go on their way refreshed.

At all times of the year visitors flock to Longwood from all over the country—when we were last there we counted license plates from 16 states, including Hawaii—but the grounds are so extensive that even on peak days they never seem crowded.

Horticulture has been a tradition there since the early 1800s, when the original owners began to assemble their arboretum, and as you walk through the grounds you come upon magnificent old specimens of Kentucky coffee tree, paulownia, magnolia, ginkgo, and copper beech. The conservatories were added by the last owner, the late Pierre S. Du Pont, who lived at Long-

The back of the house with carvings designed by Mr. Seelye, overlooks a tree-shaded slope.

Many-Splendored House

In addition, Mr. Seelye turns out woodwork for the house in his workshop in the basement. He designed and made the inside and outside walnut balcony rails and the exterior ornaments.

The dream of building the chalet began two years ago when the Seelyes went to Europe and fell in love with Swiss gables and balconies and rich wooden interiors. They came home, put their dreams on paper, made scale models, assembled their treasures, and proceeded to build. The happy result is the chalet, with its sturdy white-brick chimney and cross-paned double windows, nestled, as it should be, on a steep grassy slope.

Mrs. Seelye emphasizes that their house isn't an attempt to reproduce an actual Swiss chalet but rather to capture the spirit of one.

"Swiss houses are part German, part French, and part Italian," she says. "There is no rigid convention, and that's one reason they're charming."

Fine points like these hand-etched doorknobs abound through the house. Notice that even the latch front is carved with an intricate pattern.
